To house the new production line, 60,000 square feet has been added to the existing foundry which is the largest single such facility in the United States. The Buckeye plant, 2211 Parsons-av, now has 32 acres under roof and employs 1,250 persons.

Heimberger has also announced the division plans to run its own fleet of trucks to assure prompt delivery to the plumbing supply houses in Ohio and nine states which the manufacturer will supply.

Enthusiastic about the new product, representatives of the 61-year-old company which has previously devoted its output to railroad freight car castings, explained that the latest in spinning machinery and the utilization of resin-coated sand will give fittings and pipe a high degree of smoothness. A stainless steel clamp and neoprene gaskets for joints has eliminated the costly and bulky joint process of cast pipe as generally known until recent years.

More than 500 persons will tour the plant after the opening ceremonies. Among those expected are the board of directors of Buckeye, P. E. Maseter, director of the Department of Highways, city officials, Harold Bolz, dean of Ohio State, and representatives of the various building industries.

RESCHEDULED SATURDAY

Cold Water Dumped On Hootenanny Plan

They're going to try it again.

Who?

The staff of the haven for mentally retarded children known as Peck O' Wee Ones Children's Home.

With high hopes, which is a valuable commodity when one cares for children who are beyond hope of normality, the non-profit corporation headed by Otto C. Heinzerling, director was ready for a fund-raising Hootenanny last Thursday night.

Before the affair got off the ground, the rains came.

The early crowd rapidly dispersed, the electricity went off and the crepe paper decorations drooped forlornly.

But with the tenacity of purpose that has built the home, Heinzerling within a matter of hours had the whole affair rescheduled for next Saturday evening.

And rain can't hurt them this time.

The Hootenanny will be held on the grounds of the Holy Spirit Church, and if the weather man pulls another dirty trick the entire affair will be moved to the large church basement which has capacity for several hundred.

Tex Wheeler, singer, will emcee the jam-packed evening of music, dancing, and good-old hoe-down fun, Heinzerling reported.

If it's folk singers that send you there will be the Yoemen and the Reeves, and for those who go for hillbilly music, Lenny Kline and his Country Music Boys will be on hand.

Ernie Winstiffer will call

College Students, Keep In Touch; Subscribe Today

One of the easiest ways to keep in touch with the folks back home is to keep reading your community newspaper. Even though many area young people are leaving soon for college, there's no reason why they should feel left out of their home town happenings.

A subscription for the college year to any of the seven Hartley Newspapers is just $2. This will insure a paper every week in a student's mail box on any college campus.

A handy college subscription blank can be found on the inside pages of this paper. Fill it out and send it in today.

Going --- Going --- Gone!

This week will mark the termination of the Hartley Newspapers "Confederate" Money Contest.

Today various copies of the Hartley Newspapers contain 40 of the $5 Confederate Insignias like the one shown here. Each of these is contained in a display ad in a different color ink.

If your paper contains one of these, bring it to Hartley Newspapers office, 2465 W. Broad-st, no later than noon Monday, Sept. 23, and you will receive a genuine $5 "Confederate" bill which can be spent with any advertiser in this week's Hartley Newspapers at full face value.

Each $5 insignia is worth only the face value of $5 this week.

OUR NATIONAL ANTHEM

just as it was penned by Francis Scott Key nearly a century and a half ago, is now available to readers of this paper on beautiful antiqued parchment that is an exact copy of the original document. This document joins copies of the Declaration of Independence and the Bill of Rights to bring your American Historical Document Collection up to date. All are available for only 25 cents per copy. For complete details see the ad inside this paper.

YOUTH PROGRAM WILL QUESTION CHRISTIANITY IN NATION TODAY

With the theme "Is Ours A Christian Nation?" the annual Fall Conference, sponsored by the Young People's Inter-Church Council of the South Side "Y", will be held Sunday, Sept. 22.

The question will be the topic of discussion by a panel of ministers, including Rev. John Coppic of the Williams Road Presbyterian Church, Rev. Robert H. Streaty of the Clair Methodist Church and Rev. Roland G. Perkins of the Livingston First Methodist Church.

When Dr. Floyd Faust, pastor of the Broad Street Christian Church speaks at the evening vespers, he will attack the problem as it affects the future. The panel discussion will center around the past.

The present phases of Christianity in our nation will be portrayed dramatically by young people of the Central Christian Church of Kettering. Their play is entitled. "The Delinquent, the Hipster, the Square."

Designed to stimulate interest and cooperation from each group that will lead to establishment of a worthwhile program for the years, the three-phase program will begin with registration at 1:30 p.m. and continue until 8:30 p.m.

Consideration will be given to what intentions the founding fathers of the United States had toward the Christian faith, what has been made of these intentions today, and what youth will do in the future.

A potluck supper, group singing and recreation are planned as part of the day.

ALL HANDS have been busy getting ready for the annual fall conference to be held at the South Y-Park Sunday by the Inter-Church Council sponsored by the South YMCA. Dennis Antle of the Benford Church of Christ looks on as Connie Stewart from South Methodist Church types away. Carolyn Wood of Oakwood Methodist Church is in the foreground, while Sandra Snelling of the Hope Evangelical United Brethren works to her right.

One of My Most Unforgettable Characters

In my book, one of "Life's Most Unforgettable Characters" is my very good friend, Mae Hilsheimer.

About 17 years ago Mae and her husband, Walter, answered an ad for a couple to stay at our place in the country. That was back before we built our home. We wanted someone to do a little farming and a lady to assist a bit around the house and be a baby sitter when needed.

The time between that day we first met and two weeks ago when Mae came to Patty's wedding seems to have made little difference in Mae's appearance or her manner.

Her pleasant smile, her white hair, her fluent conversation—generally that quality of warmth that only belongs to Mae—these have always been the same.

When she came to our house to work she was always a member of the family. Meticulous care went into every move and everything had to be orderly and in place. Back at her home, however, it wasn't always the easiest thing to do to make your way around. But it was pleasant and still showed a lot of signs of Mae.

Everyone who ever came to our house knew Mae. And even though she moved away several years ago, today our friends are still her friends.

Zippy Grandma Zipf Ignores The Calendar

With women half her age taking slowdown pills, hurry-up pills, liver pills, stomach pills, assorted vitamins and what have you, Mrs. Elizabeth Zipf is plainly out of step.

Her only effort to keep the pharmaceutical companies of the nation out of bankruptcy is an occasional aspirin "for the sniffles."

Actually there's not too much excuse for such eccentricity. Mrs. Zipf is not an elderly centenarian, but a gay young character of only 99.

She was gracious when interviewed recently, but it was plain she didn't have all the time in the world, You see, she and her daughter, Mrs. Helen Reed, who lives with her, were going out for dinner with one of Mrs. Zipf's sons, and ladies don't keep a gentleman waiting too long.

Though she loves to "gad," Mrs. Zipf finds plenty to keep busy with around the house.

There's Lawrence Welk on television and "What's My Line" that she doesn't like to miss, There's her hobby of making hot pads, and her addiction to bingo to be considered.

And though her daughter is fussy about letting her overdo, she insists on drying dishes and dusting, and is most emphatic about the fact that "I help myself."

Mentally alert as a girl, she began counting up her children and in turn their children. Seven of her nine children are living and they in turn have 11 progeny. There are also 22 great-grandchildren and seven great-great-grandchildren to keep track of. Certainly she has earned the name of "grandma" by which she is known to friends and neighbors as well as her family.

With a keen sense of humor she related a story of a trip to the dentist 72 years ago. With dire threats hanging over the head of this reporter if the story is printed, it better be said only that the techniques of dulling the pain of extractions have been changed considerably during the last seven decades. Drop over and see Mrs. Zipf — she will probably entertain you with the whole anecdote.

Born and raised on S. High-st, Mrs. Zipf married her husband William in 1883 when not quite 19. After 53 years she was left a widow.

The picture taken on their Golden Wedding Anniversary shows a couple of very handsome individuals, not showing their age any more than Mrs. Zipf does today.

Her husband was the founder of the Zipf Lock Shop, which William, Jr., operates today.

Medical science undoubtedly would scoff at the prediction that Grandma Zipf will live another 99 years.

But as one listens to her it is hard to believe that she isn't good for at least another 50.

ONE MORE detail was taken care of when Robert Horowitz, left, chairman of the dedication of the Steelton parking lot arranged with Miss Judy Robinson to cut the ribbons when Mayor W. Ralston Westlake turned over the new facility to the local merchants. Miss Robinson was chosen Miss South Side at the annual Fourth of July celebration sponsored by the Council of South Side Organizations.

WILL STEELTON LOT PAY OFF?

AN EDITORIAL

When the ribbons were cut at the dedication of the Steelton Parking lot Tuesday night a ten-year-old vision came true.

Believing that in a mobile age adequate provision must be made for the cars of customers, merchants of the area have long known that if the South Side business section is to survive a parking lot is a "must."

Today, the lot built by the city and leased by the Steelton Merchants' Association, is a reality.

Local residents showed their support when a big crowd turned out for the ceremonies and the annual

CHURCH OF GOD PLANS DAY-LONG DEDICATION

Church of God at Frebisav and 17th-st, which started with 13 families in 1951 and now is made up of 180 families, will dedicate its $140,000 building with day-long services Sunday.

Its pastor, Rev. T. A. Perkins, who has seen the complete rebuilding of the physical plant since coming here a year ago, has announced that Milton Parson, state director of youth and Sunday School for the churches, will give the lesson at the classes beginning at 9:45 a.m.

Before the sermon by Rev. Wade H. Horton, general overseer of the Churches, who will be assisted in conducting the services by Rev. F. W. Goff, state superintendent, Ohio's Governor James Rhodes will speak.

A basket lunch will follow the dedication ceremonies at noon. During the afternoon acknowledgment of the charter and recognition of the building committeemen and former pastors are scheduled.

Among the music on the program is the Revelators Quartet, the Hitle Trio and Conner Hall, tenor soloist from the Tennessee Music Publishing Co. Sharon Bennett, seven-year-old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Jerry Bennett of the new church, will also sing.

Horton will again deliver the sermon at 3 p.m. services and Goff will speak at Vespers at 7.

Trustees of the church are Harrison Kirk, Elva Evans and Frank Crapyou.

BLUE RIBBONS are routine when Mrs. Henry Young packs up with her 8-year-old Philodendron and heads for the nearest flower show. Grown from a leaf by the chairman of the Great Southern Strolling Flower Show to be held Oct. 4 and 5, the plant is a perennial winner. Co-chairmen of the House Plant section in which the luxuriant plant will be entered are Mrs. Bronson A. Durrant, 1929 Harwick, and Herman W. Allison, 3085 Stelzer-rd.

Attention All Gardeners: Flower Show Coming

When the first annual Strolling Flower Show registration opens at the Great Southern Shopping Center at 9 a.m. Friday, Oct. 4, there will be a slot for exhibition by every type of flower gardener.

Whether one's forte is roses or African violets, vining house plants or arrangements, cacti or chrysanthemums, the competition will be keen for the first three ribbons awarded in each of 29 classes. According to Mrs. Henry Taylor, general chairman, more than one honorable mention ribbon may be awarded at the discretion of the judges.

The Purple Rosette will be awarded to the best of show in each of the seven sections. These sections include artistic designs, the invitationals interpreting Great Southern's sixth birthday, the junior division of designs using animal figurines, table settings, African violets, house plants and specimens of annuals and perennials.

The theme "Growing Up" has been selected for the show in which 1,800 women of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs and the Columbus Region Garden Clubs of Ohio will participate.

Registration will close at 11 a.m. and the exhibitions ready for display from 1:30 to 9 p.m. Friday and from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. Friday.

Mrs. Taylor pointed out that although exhibitors may have only one entry in each class, they may enter as many classes as they wish. All specimens must be grown by the person who shows them, and house plants and violets are required to have been owned by the exhibitor for 90 days prior to the show.

Each of the participating garden clubs are asked to let Mrs. Young know how many entries can be expected. She may be reached at BE. 1-5845 or UL. 5-7177.

SAME OLD STORY!

A boy and girl...he carries her books to school...they share stories and laughter ...yes, it's the same old story, but it's all new to them. Even though we have seen it many times before, we receive joy in seeing their joy.

From the beginning of man's time on earth, God has revealed himself to man, and man has told others about God, and how much God has done for man. Through centuries the story has not changed, but there are many who have not heard the story. Invite someone to church this Sunday. It may be their first opportunity to hear of God's great love.

"For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."
John 3:16

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

'63 GREEN AND WHITE BACKFIELD CORPS

HOW FAR ROSARY progresses in the loop pennant race this season probably will fall largely on the shoulders of these four Crusader backs. Coach Bud Trapp's starting backfield this fall will include, from left, quarterback Randy Butler, fullback Kenny Pearrell, halfback Don (Duck) Spurlock and halfback Butch Michael. The latter runner was an All-County selection last season.

Bears Edge Bulldogs; Rams, Crusaders Win

By ART KIENZLE

South Side football fans cheered loudly last weekend as their three high schools made fine showings, two winning impressively, the other dropping a heartbreaker.

Marion-Franklin, under new coach Jim Harper, blasted Miami Trace, 28-14; St. Marys scored 36 points for the second straight week in a 36-8 win job on University while South lost a hard-fought 18-13 decision to powerful Arlington.

ARLINGTON 18, SOUTH 13

SOUTH LOST a bid to score early in the first period when the Bulldogs fumbled on the UA three-yard line.

Later Glen Farraro grabbed Mike Stanley's five-yard pass for the touchdown that gave the Golden Bears a 6-0 first-period lead.

The score remained the same until early in the third stanza when Bill Jacoby's 25-yard run made it 12-0, Arlington.

DICK FISHER made UA's last TD on a one-yard plunge.

The Rebs first TD came in the third period when Lloyd Pate sidestepped his way 75 yards to paydirt.

Pate shot over again from the one and Harry Strauss kicked the extra point with a minute to go to close the gap to five points. But the rally came too late as Arlington ran out the clock to gain the victory.

ST. MARYS 36, UNIVERSITY 8

QUARTERBACK Jim Yates and halfback Mike Hodge proved to be an unbeatable combination Saturday night as St. Marys streaked impressively to its second straight win.

Yates picked up two touchdowns on runs of three and 10 yards and flipped a 52-yard scoring pass to Hodge, who added his second score on a 44-yard jaunt.

The Rams, who held the Bucklings scorless until the final minutes of play, put the game out of reach with two second-period TDs that gained St. Marys a 22-0 intermission lead.

Fullback Jack Gassman notched the Rams' other score on a short plunge.

ROSARY 24, AMANDA 0

ROSARY DISPLAYED a well-balanced offensive Friday night in the Crusaders' opening game victory over Amanda-Clearcreek, sending three different runners over the goal line.

All-County halfback Butch Micheals got the Green and White off to a good start by racing 47 yards to paydirt midway through the first period to stake Rosary to all the margin it actually needed.

Tackle Joe Zizek's fumble recovery on Amanda's 40 set up Rosary's second score with fullback Kenny Pearrell going the final four yards.

DON SPURLOCK completed the Crusaders' offensive show for the evening, climaxing a 75-yard Rosary drive with a short plunge in the third quarter.

Rosary, who picked up 12 first downs as compared to 7 for the Aces, outgained their hosts, 251-83.

M-F 28, MIAMI TRACE 14

Marion - Franklin, sparked by a 97-yard TD by Steve Jackson with an intercepted pass, evened its seasonal mark

Get Your MVP, Rookie Shopping Done Early

Being, first and last, a baseball fan, we don't wish to elbow it out of the sports picture with a premature death.

But about this time each baseball season, we get anxious to dig into the diamond statistics and try to figure out the breadwinners in several individual categories.

BASEBALL PEOPLE, who simply don't believe in football, basketball and the like, string out selections for MVP, rookie of the year, etc., for the winter months when baseball is forced into a back seat.

Always looking for a new and different approach, we're going to "jump the gun" and list a few strong possibilities for these honors.

In retrospect, '62's MVP's were Mickey Mantle and Maurey Wills. Neither has much of a chance for a repeat, a trick turned in by only six previous stars in the last 32 years (Mantle, Roger Maris, Yogi Berra, Ernie Banks, Hal Newhouser and Jimmy Foxx).

MANTLE, BASEBALL'S most injury-prone performer, hasn't had enough at bats to even make the official averages and Wills, though flirting with the .300 mark again this season, is well behind his record 104 stolen bases of last season, which undoubtedly had a lot to do with his selection.

There are certain "customs" that generally erase top performers right off the consideration list before the first poll is taken each season in this category.

One is that the winner is usually a member of the pennant winner, and two, batters are usually given precedence over the pitcher.

WHITEY FORD could upset this policy in the AL polling for two reasons. He's been the spark of the flag winner and no Yankee has an overly impressive BA this time around.

Ford has never won the award. The last pitcher to do so was Don Newcombe for the old Brooklyn Dodgers in 1956.

Other possibilities are Albie Pearson (Angels), Al Kaline (Tigers) and Carl Yastrzemski and Dick Radatz of the Red Sox. None are members of a contending AL club this season. (So who did contend for the AL flag this season?)

IN THE NL, Sandy Koufax (23-5) looks like a shoo-in, but the Dodger strikeout king will be fighting the old "but he's a pitcher" jinx plus two guys named Dick Groat (.331) and Tommy Davis (.321).

If Los Angeles should blow another pennant this fall, Groat could dance to the award.

OK—How about the "rookie of the year?" Last year's winners were Tom Tresh and Kenny Hubbs. Both, incidentally are currently below their '62 batting marks or battling the sophomore jinx as any baseball man will tell you.

THE BIG ROOKIES seem to be unbalanced this season with quite a few candidates in the AL with only a few apparent in the senior circuit.

Most likely National League bet is Cincy's second baseman Pete Rose. Rose currently is sticking around the .270 mark with six homers and 39 RBIs to his credit.

Only .270 you ask? Well, Tresh's '62 BA was .286 and Hubbs turned in a .260.

THE AL DERBY should be a dandy with four clubs supplying at least one representative. The Cleveland Indians are blessed with three young stars — Joe Azcue (.283), Max Alvis (.279, 22 homers) and Vic Davalillo (.295).

Davalillo was the pre-season "best bet" for the honor but an injury which kept him idle most of the campaign most likely dropped him right out of the race.

The White Sox have two strong contenders in third sacker Pete Ward (.293, 20 homers and 79 RBIs) and pitcher Gary Peters, a likely 20-game winner by the time you read this column.

THE TWINS can point to outfielder Jim Hall (32 homers, .268 and on his way to 100 RBIs). The Yanks have Joe Pepitone (.275, 24 homers, 81 RBIs).

Two other Yanks, pitcher Jim Bouton (20-6) and Al Downing (12-4), though not regulars in '62, are ineligible for "rookie" consideration.

Now about the "flops" of '63? Try Frankie Robinson (from .342 to .261), Pete Runnels (.326 to .242), Roman Mejias (.286, 24 homers, to .214, nine homers) and Rocky Colovito - Norm Cash (76 homers to 44, less than one month to play) for the hitters.

(WE KNOW IT'S irreverant to even think about it, but Stan Musial dropped from .330 to .252. We just can't see listing "The Man" in the "flop" category.)

In the pitching department, try Jack Sanford (24-7 to 14-13), Billy Pierce (16-6 to 11-10) and Joey Ray (21-14) to (6-17).

While we're talking about flops, how about the "double take" Houston and Boston got in the Runnels-Mejias trade?

WHERE THERE'RE flops there are also comebacks

'Fearless' Predictions

Amid cries of 'what's he know' and an actual demonstration at one South Side school last Friday, five insurance companies cancelled life insurance policies on the "fearless" one last week.

We could hardly blame them (the demonstrators or the insurance companies) as the swami's guesses-dipped to an all-time low (13-10-1).

But he's back again this week. If nothing else, the guy's got moxie:

ST. MARYS - GLENWOOD — A popular choice. St. Marys.

ROSARY - CANAL WINCHESTER — Indian scalps. Rosary.

HARTLEY - PLEASANT VIEW — Hawks soar. Hartley.

Fishing Over In Sept.? Not In Buckeye State

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

A hearty recommendation for the good fishing at Indian Lake has just been reported by Don Weber, Darbycrest. He recently spent a week there, concentrated on the fishing and caught plenty — mostly catfish and crappies.

Weber took his boat to Indian for the week, and his tactic was to get out early and stay late. "I put in a lot of time fishing, but I caught fish," he emphasized. He hooked a walleye big enough to break his rod and reel and escape, which is enough excitement for any vacation.

DRIFT FISHING is the method that produced for Weber. He used nightcrawlers for bait and would let the boat drift whichever direction it wanted to. Fishing just off bottom produced the heavy stringers. He caught 110 keeper catfish when he stopped counting, and finished the week well over this number. While he did not keep any record of the crappies, they seemed to hit in about the same numbers as the catfish, according to Weber

What about deep or shallow water? "Made no difference," the angler replied. "I tried the deep part of the lake, the channels and the shallow areas, and caught fish everywhere. The important thing seemed to be to keep the boat drifting — to keep moving."

There may be some areas the best fishing occurs during the main vacation season, but Ohio isn't one of 'em. Oh, there are a lot of days in June when you can have a field day on the water, and if you know your business you can fish right on through July and August. But the best of the lot are May and September.

PLENTY OF ANGLERS go out in May for the urge is strong to go fishing, but the good sport offered by September is largely neglected. Thoughts are turning to hunting, and Labor Day has become the traditional end of summer activities. But the fish haven't learned about Labor Day yet, and I hope that they never do.

Stream fishing for bass, both smallmouth and rock, is improving and will get better until falling leaves clog the water courses. Bluegills will hit readily in farm ponds, but not on surface flies. You'll have to go down toward bottom to find the schools of 'gills. Bass in the ponds also pile in the calories and Weber's report speaks for the larger lakes. In other words, now is a good time to go fishing right around home and throughout the state.

SQUIRREL HUNTING seemed to be spotty in these parts for the first week or so, probably due to the dry condition of the woods. After the rains last week, things picked up and I've heard some good reports from hunters. Some hunters have trouble seeing squirrels with all the leaves on the trees, and this is one of the hazards of an early opening.

There is still some time for several squirrel hunting jaunts. This area is in the north squirrel hunting zone, and the season does not close until Nov. 2.

A good idea this time of year is to combine a squirrel hunting trip with some fishing. You can hunt until 9 or 10 a.m., and then fish a couple of hours. This makes a morning of outdoor fun at its best.

Gals Included In Golf Tourney Here, July 3-5

The Ladies' Professional Putters Association, born at the PPA Board of Directors meeting at Jamaica last month, will conduct its first women's tournament in conjunction with the men's National Championship tournament, set for Columbus next July 3-5.

The men's championship will offer a purse of $30,000, and will be complemented by the gals' competition which includes $2000 in prize money.

The twin tourney has been tentatively planned for either the Putt-Putt Course on S. Hamilton-rd or the new, proposed layout in Arlington.

Apr. 3, 1948, President Harry S. Truman signed the multi-million dollar foreign aid bill—the Marshall Plan — which sped Europe's economic recovery after World War II.

After a 6-6 first period tie, the Devils were pretty much in command as John Turner provided a dazzling touchdown show for M-F fans, running for scores of four, 24 and 46 yards.

JACKSON ALSO added four more points on a pair of successful conversion efforts.

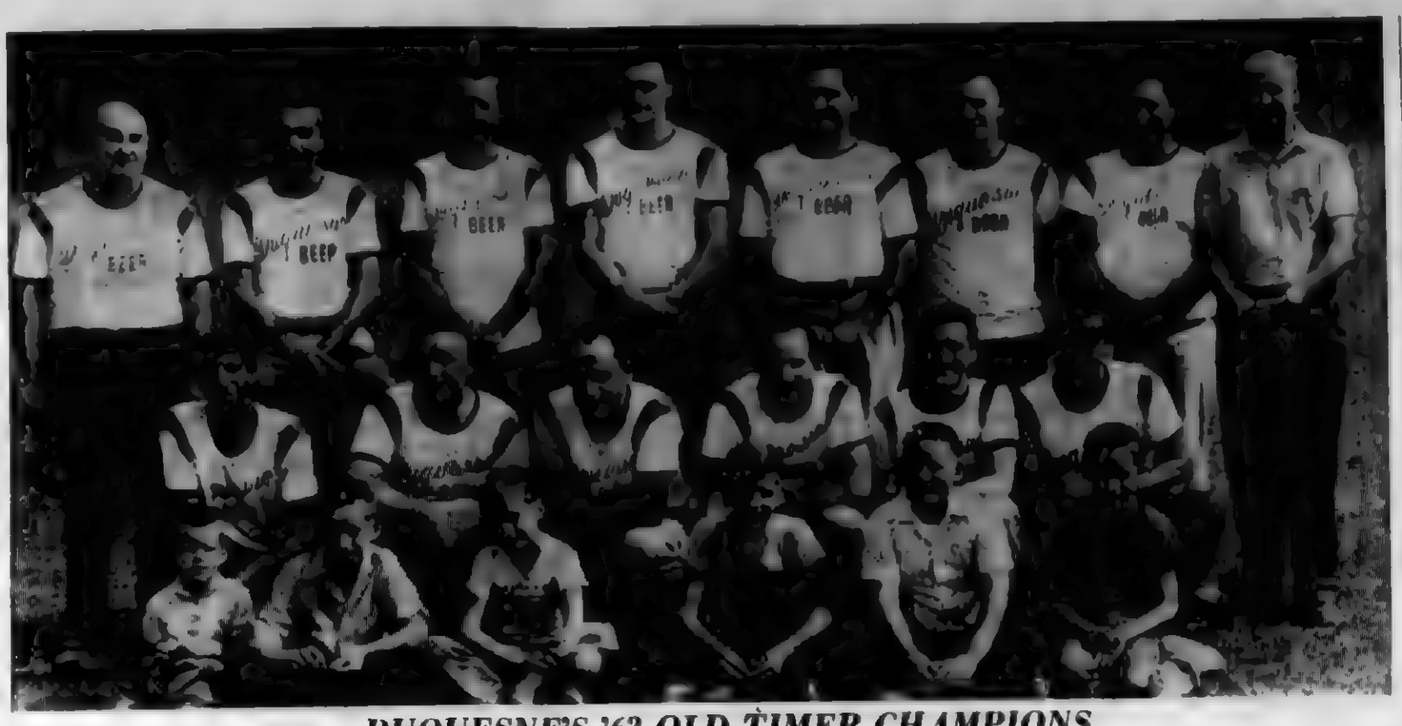
WATTERSON 20, AQUINAS 20

Watterson slipped off the hook Saturday night to gain a 20-20 tie with Aquinas with a fourth-period TD and conversion run.

The Terriers took a 20-12 intermission lead on two short plunges by Paul Reiner and halfback Jim Fritter's 71-yard dash.

BUT AFTER a scoreless third period, the Eagles pulled up even on John Schultheis' seven-yard gallop to paydirt his third score of the evening.

Friday night's action will find St. Marys (2-0) traveling to Glenwood, Rosary (1-0) visiting Canal Winchester (1-1), Aquinas (0-1-1) opening its CL season at Linden (1-1), Marion-Franklin (1-1) looking for two straight at Whetstone (2-0) and South (1-1) getting a stiff opening test of league competition at Eastmoor (1-1).



'Championship' Runs Saturday At Beulah Park

The nineteenth running of the Ohio Championship at a mile and a sixteenth headlines the racing program at Beulah Park Saturday and indications are that one of the best fields in recent years will be in action in this $10,000 added event.

Heading the list of nominees to the Championship is Loyal Son, owned by the Eastwood Stable of Jim Katis and Dick Bittner of Grafton, O. Loyal Son was the winner of the Championship last fall and is expected to be back to try for a second straight triumph.

Darby Dan Farm, owned by Mr. and Mrs. John W. Galbreath of Columbus, has named three for the race and the outfit is likely to have two starters in an attempt to win the race for a third time. Darby Dan won it previously with Skipper Bill and Flavia.

Representing Darby Dan this season are Ornamento, Macedonia and Match Wits — all three winners this season.

DUQUESNE'S '63 OLD TIMER CHAMPIONS

standards as a guide, nominator will describe the woman of their choice and how she exemplifies these characteristics.

The difficult task of choosing the Suburban Homemaker of the Year award will be given to a panel of five local citizens, representatives of various fields such as education, home economics, social service, civic affairs, etc. The names of these judges will be announced soon.

After our Suburban Homemaker of the Year is named and has received her honors locally, she will attend the National Suburban Homemaker Conference in Chicago in November where she will meet her counterparts from suburban communities all over the country — top homemakers all. From among this group will be selected, by a panel of prominent national authorities as judges, the National Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Anyone 15 years of age or older may make a nomination. Official entry blanks like the one inside will be available at local schools, libraries, business establishments and will be printed each week in this newspaper. Closing date for nominations is midnight, Saturday, Oct. 26.

Nominators, as well as nominees, have an opportunity to reap rewards. First, if your nominee is chosen as our local suburban Homemaker of the Year, you will receive an award from this newspaper. If your community's homemaker should be selected as the national award winner, you as nominator would receive a $500 award given by the Suburban Press Foundation.

We are proud and pleased to be a part of this nationwide tribute to suburban homemakers, and we are sure that in conducting this search for our own award winner we will re-discover along with our readers many of the reasons why our town is a fine one in which to live.

To have known her was to remember her. To have loved her was to never forget her.

From the first Christmas of our acquaintance every member of our family has always been individually remembered and a birthday is never forgotten.

A long time ago I started giving Mae five silver dollars each Christmas and she tells me these go each year to her funeral director as a deposit on a good send off. I hope I'm allowed to give her a million of them. She deserves the best.

Old Man Trouble has visited her often but he has never been able to dent her smile or destroy her spirit.

She never knew a stranger and there is no subject she doesn't understand and many she has mastered in her own way.

Time is a thing she has for others. She has a strong belief in God and to know her well is to know God better.

It's fall and time to send her a basket of apples, some corn and tomatoes and a jug of fresh cider.

These are the fruits of the country and no one enjoys these more than this former resident of the Mt. Sterling community.

Yep, in my book, Mae is one of my most unforgettable characters!

Nov. 14, 1937. France's General Confederation of Labor proclaimed a boycott of Japanese goods by its five million members. The action was one of a series of national demonstrations for peace.

The first copyright in the U.S. was issued to Noah Webster, of dictionary fame, in 1783.

The parking lot was jam-packed and it was a heartening sight.

But as one robin doesn't make a spring, neither does one crowd rejuvenate South Side business.

It will take the continued support of the entire community to prove the long range plans of so many.

The businesses of the Steelton area are owned by civic minded men.

Every dime taken in at the auction will go right back to the South Side.

Charitable and civic organizations have long looked to the members of the SSBIA for help. And the organization has always responded with open pocketbooks and open hearts.

Whether it is the annual Easter egg hunt at Lincoln Park, support of St. Stephens Community House or help for the needy, the SSBIA is always there.

But now it is the turn of the people who live on the South Side to show their appreciation.

Money spent in the South Side stays in the South Side and helps it grow and prosper.

The parking lot has been provided. The rest is up to the people for whom it was built.

2. Those whose name has been changed either through court action or marriage.
3. Those who will become 21 years old by Nov. 5.

Editor:

It has come to my attention that your "fearless predictor" knows absolutely nothing about football. Evidently he must pick names out of a hat. Does he ever talk to coaches or people in the know?

He couldn't possibly and still make his almost insane predictions.

I WOULD think that the Eastern Review, being an East Side paper, could at least give some moral support. Concerning the write-up about the East-Hartley game, nothing was mentioned about how the Hawks held the Tigers to their 18 pts. or how the Tigers failed to make their extra pts. because of the Hawks great defensive line. What say you?

Hartley is a very up-and-coming school and this year should have an excellent season. So let's hear something good for a change.

I know when I read one of your articles I am disheartened and I am sure the players must feel worse than I do. So PLEASE let's hear something good.

THANKS FOR listening. I'll be anxiously awaiting my copy of the great Eastern Review.

A Hartley Hawk

P.S. — Hartley BEAT Brookhaven last night, 14-12.

DEAR HAWK:

You're absolutely right! The 'fearless one' knows absolutely nothing about football. He doesn't own a hat, however, and coaches don't want anything to do with him.

After last week, his sanity is held up to question. This is why we keep him under wraps. Seriously, we are sure Hartley High is an up-and-coming school and we always hope every school has an excellent season.

WE HAVE only one request, PLEASE provide us with the information about your games. Without your help we cannot know all the details of each game. It's pretty tough for one person to handle 31 area schools without help. Thanks.

P.S. — Check this week's predictions.

Prior to coming to South he was vice-principal at the Crestview Junior High.

Mr. Tilton's hobbies include hunting and fishing. He is also a member of the Air Force Reserve and is married and has two sons.

"I think South is a very fine high school," Mr. Tilton said. "I like the interest the students show in the football games. They have good school spirit."

There were also 15 new teachers waiting to greet South High School students on the first day of school. The additions to South's faculty are: Carl Benedetti, industrial arts; Miss Maria Blackburn, Mrs. Judith Costill, Allison Custick, Mrs. Jean Taracko, Miss Grace Twine and Mrs. Nancy Vernon, English; Edgar Darling and Miss Fern Harrison, history; David Liebchen and Delmar Mowery, mathematics; Edward Dunlap, Spanish; Mrs. Beverly Fatig, science; and Mrs. Karyl Meyer, speech and dramatics; Miss Winifred JaQuay, assistant librarian.

The activities for this year include soccer, basketball, volleyball, softball and bowling.

Teams for soccer have been chosen: Captains are Barbara Bean, Jean Cox and Sharon Stein, sophomores; Kay Dunree, Cheryl Mitchell and Karen Nothstine, juniors; and Loretta Boso and Barbara Coleman, seniors.

The first meeting was held Sept. 10.

Boosters Hold Drive

Saturday, Sept. 7, was the date of South High School's annual Booster Drive, and six senior girls helped make it a most successful one.

By ringing door-bells on Wilson and Linwood-ave, Donna Wilcox, Sally Edwards, Darlene Holmes, Casey Oddi, Carol Larimer, and Virgene Watts added $87, the largest single group contribution to the fund. Robert Bateman, South coach and teacher, provided transportation for the girls.

The money raised through this appeal is used for athletic equipment at South.

New Band Routine

The 1963-64 South High School Marching Band, under the direction of Howard Cozart, has been working out new routines in a patriotic theme. The band will bring this new theme to the halftime shows in the near future. Cozart's student assistant for the 1963-'64 season is Bob Hoersdig.

The band continues to feature its majorettes, Diane Cary, Karen Fiaone, Nancy Fortier, Donna Jenkins, Dorothy Marte, Diana Raush, Theresa Szekely and Susan Westlake. These girls are under the direction of Ray Lamberson, drum major. This season Ray has an assistant, Dave Wiechers.

Y-Teens To Meet

Officers of the South High School Y-Teens include president, Christina Hopner; vice-president, Connie Stewart; secretary, Carrol Larrimer; treasurer; Lynn Mitchell, and member-at-large, Rosemary Barnhart.

Their first meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 9, will be a membership kick-off. Their first big event of the year is the annual Y-Teen slumber party at Y-Park Saturday, Oct. 19. To raise funds all Y-Teens are selling pencils with "South High School" printed on them.

National Anthem Third Offering In Americana Historical Collection

This week we add to our Americana Historical Document Collection, the "Star Spangled Banner," is an original facsimile in the hand writing of the author, Francis Scott Key. The document has the look of the cherished original . . . in antiqued parchment which actually feels old.

Circumstances surrounding the writing of the national anthem are in doubt. It is agreed, however, that in 1814 Key approached the British to effect the release of a friend they had captured. He was held by the British to conceal their plans for attack, and while on either the British ship Surprise or cartel ship Minden, when Fort McHenry was attacked on the night of Sept. 13. It matters little which ship, because the inspirational "Star Spangled Banner" was born and is now a part of our national heritage.

Key, according to reports of the day, stood on the deck of the ship and watched the flag over Fort McHenry until darkness obscured it. As the night wore on, and the mighty fire of the British fleet poured into the fort, everyone expected the bastion to fall. Key, watching every shell as it poured from the cannon's mouth, waited breathlessly until dawn. Then, by the dawn's early light, he saw that our flag was still there. It was then that the words formed in his heart . . . the words which have warmed the hearts of countless Americans in the years since that eventful night.

The music adopted for the "Star Spangled Banner" was composed by John Stafford Smith for an English song: "To Anacreon in Heaven" published in London between 1770 and 1775.

The Document "The Star Spangled Banner" is this week's feature in our Americana Historical Document Series . . . and is available by mail or at our office at 2465 W. Broad-st for 25 cents. Order now . . . and if you haven't started your complete Americana Collection, get the other documents now available.

Let's Keep It A Game

Friday night football games are colorful, exciting, entertaining and generally enjoyable, unless you're caught in the pre-kickoff traffic on the way to the supermarket.

If you're young, they provide opportunities for a super-modified discharge of energy built up to the bubbling-over point during a week of seemingly endless history quizzes and chemistry labs.

Last season in a neighboring state, excess energy bubbled right out of the stands, onto the field and extended into the city streets after games in a very unsportsmanlike manner.

Result: TV re-runs on a Friday night for the oversealous fans instead of local football games after police officials ran out of patience.

In many municipalities around this country, local law enforcement officials look forward to the first football game of the season with about as much enthusiasm as a starving koala bear out of mulberry leaves.

Except for a few isolated cases, we have never had this problem in our community. High school football crowds have been noisy but well-disciplined, over-enthusiastic but non-destructive, angered and disappointed but tempered with the knowledge that there's more to the game than simply winning or losing.

Spirit and the love of competition are worthwhile values, but they have been known to be confused with injured pride and a "let's show them" attitude.

Parents must keep in mind that they are still responsible for Johnny's behavior whether at home or abroad.

Sending them off to the football game with blankets, binoculars and brightly-colored pennants doesn't end the responsibility of parental control.

Hold on, junior. You're not getting off the responsibility hook so easily.

Somewhere on that ticket you purchased at school Friday afternoon is the reminder that by your actions you're representing not only yourself but also your school.

Ladies and gentlemen are the representation the ticket implies. It might not be stamped there in black and white, but it's there just the same.

Football is a game. Some of the post-game activities in which the young fan seeks "something to do" aren't classified as "good, healthy fun" by the local patrolman on the beat.

As we've said, our record is relatively unspotted. Let's keep it clean.

Don't let yourself or the school you represent get thrown for a loss this fall because of some misplaced value.

Remember to keep all the action where it belongs—between the goal posts.

Group Tackles Tough Task

The publishers and peddlers of smut-for-profit have been dealt a well-deserved clip on the chin from the New York Academy of Medicine.

A statement dealing with the increased traffic in obscenity and pornography, which the Academy believes is "purposely directed toward teenagers," said in part:

". . . Such reading encourages a morbid preoccupation with sex and interferes with the development of a healthy attitude and respect for the opposite sex. It is said to contribute to perversion. In the opinion of some psychiatrists, it may have an especially detrimental effect on disturbed adolescents."

The academy suggested introducing, in the 1964 session of the New York Legislature, "legislation designed to make salacious literature unavailable to minors by prohibiting sale of it to them."

We are aware that legislation in this field is not quite as simple as prohibiting the sale of alcoholic beverages to minors. Alcohol is alcohol. A definition of what is obscene or what is pornographic is not so easily come by.

But we in the Columbus area are fortunate that we have an added ally in the fight to protect our youngsters from printed garbage. A Columbus Chapter of Citizens for Decent Literature has been formed and has already begun the work of promoting the four basic aims of the national CDL organization: to create public awareness of the nature and scope of the problem; to encourage the reading and promotion of good literature; to expect, encourage and promote the enforcement of obscenity laws, and to gather and distribute information on the problem.

An enlightened public is our best hope. We wish the local CDL group every success in its endeavor.

Cuba's Progress Went 'That-A-Way'

The price of gasoline in Cuba has been increased from 34 cents to 60 cents a gallon "in the interest of the national economy," according to a news dispatch from Havana.

The 60-cent price is twice as high as the average United States gallon of gasoline including taxes, and three times the cost of a U.S. gallon before taxes.

Castro said the price hike provides a new avenue for Cubans to make a greater contribution to progress. According to reports from newsmen who have visited Cuba recently, a little more Castro-type "progress" may put the island out of business entirely.

The gasoline Cubans can buy is low in quality, and an estimated 30 per cent of the island's automobiles have had to be junked for lack of spare parts. About 40 per cent of the Cuban service station operators are reported to have abandoned their stations.

Castro is not importing any new automobiles. Instead he is trying to convince his people that private transportation and freedom of personal movement are unnecessary capitalistic frills.

In the United States, by contrast, more than 92 million drivers operate 79 million motor vehicles, enjoying unprecedented freedom of movement. More than 200,000 service stations — 90 per cent of them operated by local independent businessmen — compete with each other to supply motorists' needs and to add to their enjoyment of highway travel.

To most Cubans the high price of gasoline is a purely theoretical subject. But it is a significant indicator that progress in Cuba is going—not coming.

Greek Myth Has Parallels Even Today

In Greek mythology there is a tyrant called Procustes. It is doubtful that you would care to meet him, for he had an iron bedstead to which he would tie any traveler unfortunate enough to fall into his hands.

Rev. Klopfer

If the captive proved to have legs that protruded beyond the limits of the bed, his legs were promptly cut to the length of the bed. If, however, the captive happened to be shorter than the bed, he would be painfully stretched to the bed's dimensions. The victims of his cruelty were many.

As it is with all tyrants, Procustes finally met his master. Although warned against the hazards of the conflict, a young warrior named Theseus overpowered the monster and slew him. Theseus, however, neglected one important matter. He did not destroy the bed.

Because the iron bed had the power to multiply, the world today abounds with little iron beds to whose dimensions their owners attempt to fit others, as if they had nothing to say and no rights of their own.

The iron beds in our land are many. Probably the most outstanding one at the moment is the way we treat the minority races. We attempt to cut them here, add to them there, all in an effort to make them into the people we think they ought to be.

While we, the majority, enjoy abounding freedoms, we cut off theirs. While there are all too many things we would absolutely refuse to do, we insist and force them to do it. Thus in an effort to break away from the iron beds, we have a justified demonstration in Washington of those from all races and creeds.

We of the Christian Church all too often forget that God's love extends to the whole world—to all! He has no favorites. As the Son of God walked this earth He demonstrated His love for all peoples as they lived in this life by feeding, healing, forgiving. When He ascended the Cross it was for all men, and not a select few. And so should our love be for all men.

Are there iron beds in your house?

An Editor's Outlook . . . by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

What Good Are Grades In Our Schools?

Dr. Calvin W. Taylor, professor of psychology at the University of Utah, is hunting for a better grading system for school and college students.

The successful human being is not merely a right-answer-giver. He has, in varying degrees, such qualities as curiosity, flexibility, initiative, imagination, originality and independence. How, asks Dr. Taylor, can we get a grade card that considers these precious virtues?

Jones

Here's little Willie, a bundle of rebellious and jittery energy, impatient with rote learning, inclined to daydream, and a scuffler in the cafeteria line. And here's little Rollo, passive, timid and meticulous, who rarely puts down a wrong answer and is a jewel of deportment.

Anyone with half an eye can see that the world is going to hear a lot more from Willie than Rollo. Willie will either head the chamber of commerce, lead a devastating strike, become an archbishop, or be hanged.

Out of this truism, that mere grades are no sure indication of eventual capacity, has come a theory that grades are worthless.

It got a big boost during the zaniest era of "progressive education" when teachers colleges were indoctrinating teachers with all kinds of goofy teaching gimmicks.

When the look-say method of reading began to turn up a generation of kids who couldn't spell, it was natural that the moguls of education who had pushed the method should discount the importance of grades on spelling tests. Educators, like dictators, rarely admit error.

There was also the argument that grades made children nervous. They introduced the pressure of competition, so the theory maintained, upon children of tender years and delicate sensibilities. They induced feelings of inferiority and insecurity. The solution: pass everybody.

But this approach was a flop. With practically every child being marked "satisfactory" there was no incentive to excel. Nor was there anything to prod the youngster who, through laziness and inattention, was working far below his capacity. All over America parents began making the chilling discovery that their little darlings weren't learning much even though the report cards kept assuring them of "Good group acceptance," "Works well with others," etc.

The fact is, of course, that all normal kids glory in competition. At recess time they don't wander off by themselves to commune with their spirits. They rush into games — games in which somebody wins and somebody loses. "Look, Ma, I can climb higher than Billy!" much more nearly expresses the childish mind than any academic gobbledegook about "togetherness."

It is true, of course, that competition in the narrow field of grade-getting can be overdone. The grinding "examens" which palsy the hands of French kids are, undoubtedly, overemphasized. Russia has brutal cut-offs where the 12-year-old stares at test papers that will either send him to the lyceum and a white-collar life or toss him into a factory as a bit of child labor under the euphemism of "technological training."

And by attempting to judge human potential by the single standard of academic quickness these societies may cost themselves much leadership. The president of a famous eastern university recently remarked that his school now has such a huge waiting list that he could fill an entire freshman class with high school valedictorians. But, he added, in the list of great alumni who helped build his university he couldn't find many valedictorians.

All such reflections are cherished by the lazy and the stupid. In college, how we loved to be thought of as "well-rounded," which meant soaking up an inordinate amount of beer and listening to the baseball broadcast while we should have been wrestling with Spinoza. We pitied the "grinds" whom the Delta Gamma housemother never had to shove off the front porch at midnight.

But the plain fact is that, whatever the shortcomings of grades, they are a long way from being meaningless. There is a far higher percentage of thumping successes among Phi Beta Kappas than among non-Phi Betes. And while many a high horsepower brain lacks either the incentive or the persistence to rack up top grades, there is no sound brain that cannot, with a little self-discipline, turn in a satisfactory school record.

Some day, perhaps, we will reach a point in the art of mental testing where we can achieve Dr. Taylor's dream of a report card that weighs in with grades such ephemeral qualities as personality and attitudes. A lot of psychological placement tests are still pretty crazy, for the art is young. But they will improve with experience, and as the charlatans are unmasked. We may see a time when delicate instruments gently attached to the skull can give brain-wave readings that will actually register some degrees of mental capacity.

But until that day, let's preserve the grades—plain, old, and objective A, B, C, D and F grades. These are not gods or goals. But they are useful goads. They increase the pace of the walkers and they make the runners run. Grades, taken with a little sense of humor, are good for our children.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Recently I had the very great honor of being guest speaker at both the fabulous Golden Anniversary celebrations, Thursday and Friday, Sept. 5 and 6, sponsored each year by Hartley Newspapers. This is the first time in my public career that I was ever privileged to attend such an inspiring affair.

Attending the parties were nearly 150 couples of marvelous oldsters who have been married 50 years or more, and some of them better than 60 years. Many of them were so peppy and alert-minded as to belie their ages.

As usual, the "gals" were the "life of the party." Some of these lovely ladies had perfectly beautiful snow white hair, styled to perfection. Others were hardly gray at all. Whether or not these had been "touched up" mattered not one iota. The important thing is to be actually exposed to so many couples who have lived as one so long together.

There is no longer any doubt about it; celebrating a golden wedding anniversary is tops in human achievement and a terrific testimony to the greatest virtue of all—just plain, old-fashioned "horse sense" about human relations.

When one reads column after column in all the daily papers of divorces, it causes one to wonder what magic secrets of character and patience must have guided the pathways of so many still young and lively oldsters down through the years.

Mrs. Ross and I have two years to go before we can attain membership in this most select and distinctive of all social organizations. May Almighty God preserve us too until that magic date is ours also to celebrate.

STRICTLY FRESH

The modern line of least resistance is the dotted one at the bottom of an installment plan.

A real educational toy for children would be one that would teach the youngster to put it away when he was finished playing with it.

Remember the woman who complained about dishpan hands? She now suffers from push-button fingers.

If you want to write something that has a chance of living on forever, sign a mortgage.

To some, a ticket gets them into the opera; to others, practice does it.

OUR READERS' Views . . .

Letters to the Editor on topics of public interest are always welcome. They should be written or typed legibly on one side of the paper only, and limited to 350 words. Always sign your name and address so that authenticity of the letter may be checked if necessary. The writer's name will not be printed if so requested.

A Good Time Was Had . .

To the Publisher:

We want to thank you for so royally entertaining us at the golden wedding party at Shade's Restaurant. The refreshments were fine and the talk by Dr. Ross was great. Glenna did a splendid job as master of ceremonies. We also enjoyed meeting Janet and all your other helpers.

Again we thank you.

W. J. Milnor

To the Publisher:

I want to take this opportunity to thank all of you for the most enjoyable anniversary party given for us old couples Sept. 6. When the younger people take the time and the work it takes to show us that much love and respect, we know there are still a lot of good people left who will be able to take up the responsibilities that we will soon have to lay aside.

It was a happy day for all who were present, and I am sure I voice the sentiment of all when I say thanks a million for everything, and may God's richest blessings be with all of you.

Mrs. Frank Baker

To the Publisher:

We want to thank you and your staff for the kindness shown us at the golden anniversary party Sept. 5. The beautiful flowers, refreshments and the pictures taken showed us we were not forgotten.

God is so good to us all, and friends are our most precious possessions.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Pippin

To the Publisher:

Please accept the thanks of Mr. Herron and myself for the lovely golden wedding party that we are privileged to attend at Holiday Inn Sept. 5. Even the weather cooperated to make it a very wonderful and lovely event in the lives of those who attended. Having attended three of the four parties you have sponsored, it seems to me they get better each year.

The selection of the fall month of September is so very appropriate, for it is significant of the third season of marriage.

Your party will remain in our memories as a very beautiful tribute to those of us who have lived and loved together for fifty years or more.

Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Herron

Register Before Sept. 25

To the Editor:

Interest in political affairs of the city, state, and nation has never been keener than it is this year as election time draws nearer. It is good that citizens are interested in their future; yet, talking and doing are two entirely different things. Personal freedom, free elections, and a free, competitive, private enterprise system cannot be maintained through talk alone. Every citizen must get out and register by Sept. 25 in order to keep America free.

One vote from one intelligent, well-informed citizen can mean the difference between a Constitutional government and a dictatorial regime. One uninformed, haphazard vote can make the same all-important difference. Every American citizen must listen to the issues and candidates in order to vote intelligently and effectively for the cause of freedom. Voting is a privilege in which even the poorest patriot may indulge.

MORE THAN A PROFESSION

Since Hippocrates, physicians have taken care of the sick faithfully and well with all the knowledge and skill at their command. With few exceptions they have devoted their lives to their profession. No group has been more true to its ideals or more zealous in pursuit of its purpose.

Nurses, too, do their part in the healing of the sick. Doctors alone are permitted to practice medicine, and then only after a long probation of study and experience under qualified people. Nurses are trained to do everything but practice medicine for the ailing. A nurse saves a doctor's time and energy for other things. No one can say which profession is more important. The sick man needs both. A nurse is a doctor's third arm.

A distinguished French army surgeon, after a long and useful career, was commended for his work. His answering remark was he only treated his patients. God healed them. We think all doctors and nurses would agree with that.

Medical education and hospitals with their equipment are costly. Charges may seem to a patient rather high at times, and perhaps they are. But what is your life worth? It may well be saved in a hospital by a good team of doctors and nurses.

It is no reflection on other professions to say that medicine is more than a profession. It is a dedication to human service. If the body is the soul's temple, what could be more noble than its care? Doctors and nurses, we salute you.

It says here . . .

Modern medicine is here to stay and get better.

World Of Ballet Opened To SS Children At St. Stephens

By JANE ROBINSON

"Please don't try to put any laurels in my crown. I am only doing what I enjoy."

With these words Alexis Alva, Russian immigrant, tried to gloss over the tremendous amount of devotion he has poured into the ballet school he conducts at St. Stephens Community House.

It is an understatement to say that he conducts the school. He IS the school.

Alva is teacher and choreographer, costume designer and skilled tailor, banker, publicist, manager, disciplinarian and father confessor.

A certificate from St. Stephens testified that he gave over 1,000 volunteer hours last year to the classes.

Though this figure is conservative, the hours mean little in comparison to his real contribution to the children he works with.

He has given his heart.

Classes opened this fall for the third consecutive year, and girls from eight to 18 and boys from eight to 12 are welcome.

On Tuesdays at 5:30 p.m. the advanced classes are held On Thursday at the same hour, the intermediate group begins to work, and when the noon whistle blows or Saturdays a four-hour session commences for advanced, intermediate and beginning students.

When a child asks to join the classes, Alva does go through the formality of an "audition." Though he claims he takes only children with some natural ability, it is obviously very easy for this teacher to see ability that is effectively hidden whether under layers of baby-fat, clumsiness, poor sense of rhythm or shyness.

Actually, it is easy to get into these classes, but only a child who wants to learn ballet will stay.

You see, their teacher has the old-fashioned idea that hard work and discipline pay off.

"When my children dance with groups who have had many more years of training, I know I am right," he proudly explained. "They can dance rings around anyone. They are just wonderful."

Although his own pockets seem almost bottomless, Alva gets a slightly greedy look on his otherwise kindly features when he discusses ballet slippers. With each child wearing out four pair a year and only being charged $1 a season rental, he is not too proud to accept outside help on this difficult little problem.

Eager to instill professional pride in his pupils, the teacher makes his young ballerinas and dancers available to any group without charge.

But if any such group insists upon a small fee, the money goes, not to the school but to the pupils.

"It is good for children to hold a little money and know they have earned it," he emphasized.

One trend he has noticed distresses Alva.

"Too often, as the children enter adolescence, and often his comes just as they are beginning to accomplish a great deal in ballet, they decide it is just kid-stuff, and drop out," he lamented.

Being a realist, he does not see professional careers for each of his students, but he hates to see a child who is becoming more graceful, gaining self-confidence, growing self-disciplined and thoroughly enjoying himself suddenly give it up to conform "with Susie" who may think ballet is "square."

Asked why he, not really a young man anymore, gives so many hours without pay to the St. Stephens program, Alva summed it up with words that should inspire a lot of parents to do just a little more for their children.

"I had a wonderful childhood and adolescence, and I think one must pay for such years."

Certainly the investment his parents put into his early happiness is being returned with his interest — not to them, but to hundreds of South Side children, many of whom have few opportunities approaching what is offered by the ballet school.

They are learning to dance, which may or not be important to them in the years to come.

But the example set by this fireless and kind man cannot help but be a life-long example of unselfishness.

ONCE A DESIGNER of costumes for productions such as the Ziegfeld Follies, Alva now puts his skill to work in beautifully designed and tailored costumes for the ballet school at St. Stephens. Theresa Young, 1793 Franklin-av, on the left, is dressed as the little Dutch girl, and Jean Yenichedk, 339 E. Moler-st, portrays the little Dutch boy. They are performing a folk dance in ballet form.

"WONDERFUL LEGS"! The child has just wonderful legs"! Alva exulted as he placed one of his littlest and newest pupils in the Develope in second position. Phyllis Todhunter, 646 Sheldon-av, is 10 years old and has had less than a dozen lessons.

PERFORMING A SISSONE to the side, Maurita Anderson, 703 E. Welch-st, is Alva Alexis' right hand. Not only a star pupil, she takes roll, does endless telephoning for him and helps with the books. It is her desire to succeed has brought her so far," he explained.

HOPEWELL CHURCH

"Study to shew thyself approved unto God, a workman that needth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth."

IAH Club will meet at the church at 1:30 p.m. Friday, Sept. 20.

The MYF will have a wiener roast at the farm pond of James White at 6:30 p.m. Sunday, Sept. 22. The devotional service around the campfire will be conducted by Carolyn Timmons, Anita Hoff and Glenna White. In case of rain, services will be held at the church. All the young people from 12 to 21 are urged to attend. Plans for transportation will be announced Sunday.

We are happy to report that Mike Newberry continues to improve rapidly since returning to his home. Greg Watkins is able to attend school on crutches, but his cast has been removed. Bill Fridley has his left arm in a cast after he fall from a pony.

IT'S A REAL frolic when the two Russians above go into their routine at St. Stephens Community House ballet school. A careful look shows that although in disguise, they are two very American little girls from the South Side. On the left is Pat Storer, 2788 Gibson-dr, and her partner, Vickie Rinehart, 3255 S. High-st.

To End Course

Army Reserve Pvt. Donald L. Wishon, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Justin E. Wishon, 1436 S. Fourth-st, is scheduled to complete an eight-week supply handler crewman course under the Reserve Forces Act program at Fort Polk, La., Oct. 18.

He is a 1958 graduate of South High School and was employed by Allen Press before going on active duty.

TRAFFIC ROUTES TO KIDS DAY - LOCKBOURNE AIR BASE

ALL ROADS WILL LEAD to Lockbourne AFB this Saturday morning when the Air Force and Kiwanis sponsor the 10th annual Kids Day. Thousands are expected from all of Central Ohio to flock to the program to be highlighted by the spectacular aerial demonstration of the Air Force's supersonic Thunderbirds. The above map is published with routes suggested by the base information office of Lockbourne, laid out to avoid traffic congestion and confusion. Parking is available for thousands of cars.

Gates will open at 11 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 21, and the program beginning at 1 p.m. will continue until 5 p.m. The Thunderbirds' acrobatics will begin at 2:30 p.m. For six children the day will be an especially memorable occasion, as their names will be drawn and they will be honorary base commanders for the day. The Bomarc supersonic missile on display and the famed sentry dogs in action, are among the attractions on the four-page program. The public is also invited

The Gadabout

Priscilla LaRue Lones

HI. 4-1851

The Columbus and Crooksville, O., hosts of Mr. and Mrs. James Turner, natives of England, have had the fun of looking at their Buckeye State through the eyes of first-time visitors to America. It was a pleasurable experience for all concerned. The Columbus hosts were Mr. and Mrs. Rodger Trieb, 1628 Parsons-av, and Mr. and Mrs. Schellie Allevine, 389 E. Morrill-av. The English visitors are the parents of Mrs. Alfred Dunn of Crooksville, who had been an English bride of W.W. II. Mr. Dunn is a relative of the Triebs and Allevines.

Arriving on June 5, the Turners traveled 3,000 miles while in Ohio, visiting well-known spots that are tourist attractions. One trip was made to Wooster, to visit the daughter of an English friend. Columbus was pretty thoroughly explored, too, and the guests particularly enjoyed the Park of Roses and Franklin Park Conservatory.

The escalators in the department stores were frightening to Mrs. Turner, but she marveled at the low cost of clothing here. She stated that a $3 dress here would cost $12 in her home place. She assisted her Columbus hosts while they were working on a church rummage sale, and was amazed that people would "give such good things away." She found our white bread too sweet and was not fond of our ice cream, although she generally enjoyed the new dishes she had never eaten before. Surprisingly enough, she had never before eaten mangoes, scalloped potatoes or meat loaf. Green beans must not be generally known on her island, as she asked if the mangoes were green beans.

The many used car lots intrigued the Britishers, as did the fact that so many non-grocery items were sold in the supermarkets. They thought Broad-st was aptly named, as they had never seen such a wide street. They had no idea that Columbus would be such a large city and were awed by that fact. Although in New York twice, once on arrival and again on their Labor Day departure, there was no chance for them to do any exploring there. The warmth of our summer days seemed practically tropical to them for they are used to the cool mistiness of their native country.

The American hosts were puzzled when their guests asked where the nearest "snorkel" could be found, and weren't sure there were any in Columbus. Cross-examination revealed the wanted article was a street corner mail-box!

Mr. Turner will always have occasion to remember the birthday he spent in America, for he was the guest of honor at a party, to which the neighbors of his daughter had been invited. The natal day occurred in August. Incidentally, his main amazement of America was that it is a land of "wide, open spaces."

The British subjects are residents of the Island of Barry, and the sandy beach forms the front yard for their apartment home. An interesting manner in which things are done across the seas was in the way pensions are distributed. They are given out weekly, and the pensioners return to their former place of employment to pick up their checks.

The Turners made the trip on a plane chartered by the Transatlantic War Brides, who thus are able to show their new homeland to the relatives still residing in the land of their birth. More than likely the recent return of the plane-load of tourists from America has produced a "bumper crop" of impromptu get-togethers in Merrie Olde England, as they make first-hand reports on life as they found it under the stars and stripes of Uncle Sam.

Mrs. Lucille Vance and her daughter, Lucille, 611 Stewart-av, spent two weeks in Ocala, Fla., visiting Mae and Virgie Dean, former Columbusites. The Vances are Mae's mother and sister. The latest communique from Mae tells us that she and Virgie hope to make a visit to Ohio in October.

The many South Side friends of Rev. and Mrs. L. A. Schreiber, former pastor of Gates-Fourth Methodist Church, will be glad to know that the couple will celebrate 50 wedded years on Tuesday, Sept. 24. Those wishing to pay their respects in person may attend the open house on that day, from 2 to 5 p.m., in the couple's home, 1179 Ebner-av. In the evening Rev. Norman Schreiber and Helen Ellsworth, son and daughter of the couple, and their families will fete the celebrants with a dinner at the Southern Hotel.

The younger minister and his family reside in Cleveland, while Mrs. Ellsworth resides in Wilmington, Del. The six grandchildren will also be present. The male half of the wedding achievement also rates congratulations for his 79th birthday on Sept. 26.

Nature is preparing the land for its months of inactivity but these youngsters remain as active as ever, although they soon will be a year older! Dana McArtor, David Phillips, Deborah Maupin, Jane Hashman, Terri Moore, Michael Harrison, Tamera Post, Gregory Pilkington, Daniel Nagy, Don Barber, William Keeney, Linda Stepp, Robert Davis, Wendell Fellure, Carolle Williams, Larry Koon, Charles Contosta, Stevie Wallace, Doug Biegler, Nancy Reuter and Mike Miller.

Teen-age activities are the main interest of this segment of the birthday groups: Judith Boros, Janet Smith, John Obert, Suzanne Larimer and Rick May.

Neighbors and friends who will have another candle added to their birthday cakes are Mrs. Angelo Felice, Richard Vogt, David Hamilton, Johnny Rogers, Danny O'Hara, Kenny Yunker, Isabel Dunkle, Lena Vogt, Myrtle Schafer and Mary Weaver.

Anniversaries to be recognized with good wishes include those of Marianne and Richard Kane, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Pfeifer, Mr. and Mrs. David Hamilton, Virg and Vivian Lenox.

The annual Harvest Festival of St. Paul's Lutheran Church will be an event of Sunday, Sept. 22. The church will be decorated with fruits of the harvest and autumn flowers. Members of the congregation are asked to bring non-perishable food which will be given to the Lutheran Welfare League. Loose offering for the day will be given to the Wernle Children's Home of Richmond, Ind.

Sympathy is extended to the family of Elsie Holderle, who passed away last week.

Serving time is 5 to 7 p.m. Tickets are $1 for adults, 50 cents for youngsters.

The Firemen's annual golf tournament and banquet will be an event of Monday, Sept. 23. The golfers will tee off at Minerva Park at 9 a.m. The banquet will be held at 7 p.m. in Aunt Nettie's Party House, 6091 Cleveland-av, a half-mile north of Rt. 161.

The Kick-off Ball of the Trudeau Guilds will be an event of Friday, Sept. 27, 9 p.m. to 1 a.m., at the Seneca Hotel. Ziggy Coyle's orchestra will play for the annual affair. The $4 donation may be made at the door. Mrs. James Vincent is the dance chairman, assisted by Mrs. Howard Merritt. A football, autographed by members of the OSU football team and Coach Woody Hayes, will be one of the door prizes, as well as two tickets to the season's first game on Sept. 28.

The many friends of Fred Bier were shocked by his sudden illness, but heartened by the good news of his resultant surgery at Mercy Hospital. Also a patient in the South Side hospital is G. R. Fahrion, a resident of 27 W. Markison-av.

Woodwind Artist Among Year's Naturalized Citizens

HUNGARY'S LOSS COLUMBUS' GAIN

Although the Hungarian government believes it has a citizen some place in the world known as Imre Szekfu, the gentleman knows better.

He is an American, and immensely proud of it.

When 350 persons from Central Ohio gathered at the YMCA Sunday afternoon it was truly a cosmopolitan group.

The background of these people vary so that only one fact in the world could have ever brought them together.

Each has become a naturalized citizen of the United States during the past year.

Szekfu, Yugoslavian by birth, was among the guests at the reception held for these new Americans by the Citizenship Committee, inc. of Columbus.

When the ill-fated Hungarian Revolt of 1956 began, the bassoonist for 15 years had been with the Budapest State Philharmonic Symphony.

A few days later he was a Russian prisoner, stripped of material possessions and armed only with his burning desire to escape and the musical talent that could not be taken from him.

When the opportunity for freedom came, Szekfu fled to Vienna and through the Rockefeller Foundation was once again armed with the "tool of his trade," in this case a Heckel bassoon.

The year 1957 found him in New York City, handicapped only by the fact that English was not among the half-dozen languages that he spoke.

"I even think in English now," he laughed, recalling his early struggles with the language which without formal instruction he has mastered completely.

He spent the next two years between New York City and Dallas, Tex., as bassoonist with symphonies of those cities before coming to Columbus.

"It is here that I have found the field in music that I love best," he explained.

Though a member of the Columbus Symphony, he is now primarily a teacher.

An employe of the Columbus Board of Education, he gives instruction in oboe and bassoon in the nine city high schools and in all instruments in four elementary schools.

The development of talent of the young people with whom he works has brought to him a satisfaction that he found lacking in his life-long career as a performer.

There are a number of words to describe this man—talented, handsome, suave, sophisticated, humorous, dedicated, are a few.

But talking with him one becomes convinced that there is one adjective that he would prefer to all others.

That is "American."

What so many take for granted has come to him the hard way.

And it is apparent that he treasures it. To him, as the others at the reception Sunday, American citizenship is a priceless possession.

Originator Of Shopping Center Concept Is Dead At Age 65

Don M. Casto, whose business vision made Columbus nationally known as the birthplace of the modern, regional shopping center, died in his sleep early Tuesday following a heart attack at his home, 31 S. Columbia-av. He was 65.

Funeral service will be held Thursday, 1 p.m. at Trinity Episcopal Church.

Founder of the Don M. Casto Enterprises, 42 S. Fourth-st, he pioneered the concept of shopping centers back in 1921, when he built his first one, designed to serve an immediate trade area of about one mile.

He visualized the present regional shopping centers in 1928, and constructed the Grandview Shopping Center, grouping 30 diversified merchants and providing free parking area.

First the depression, and then World War II with its construction restrictions, postponed until 1948, further development of his shopping concept, Town and Country, 3600 E. Broad-st, was the first of the modern Casto shopping centers.

Columbus is now ringed with Casto developments, and the operations of the Casto organization have spread throughout the country.

Casto established himself as a civic leader and developer of residential and commercial property after World War I. Sensing the coming importance of the airplane, he helped to provide the city with its airport, establishing Columbus as an aviation center.

A member of the original Metropolitan Airport Commission of Columbus, he was one of the first passengers to fly the Atlantic on the Graf Zeppelin's maiden voyage in 1928.

In the years following he helped develop Linden, Clintonville, the Hilltop and South Columbus.

After World War II, his son, Don M. Casto, Jr., joined the firm as a partner.

Town and Country Shopping Center was followed by Great Western, Northern Lights, Graceland, Great Eastern, Central Point and Great Southern.

Surviving are his wife, Ruth; son, Don, Jr., 363 Westland-av; daughter, Mrs. Frank (Nancy) Benson, 172 S. Columbia-av; grandchildren, Don Casto, III, Ann and William Casto, and Frank, Nancy and Libby Benson.

Casto was a member of Trinity Episcopal Church and was a board member of Children's Hospital, Columbus Jets and International Council of Shopping Centers.

He belonged to the Shrine, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Columbus Country Club, Columbus Club, Columbus Athletic Club, Duquesne Club of Pittsburgh, and Explorers Club, New York.

A native of Cleveland, he moved to Columbus with his father when he was 13. He attended North High School, and in his senior year entered the army, receiving the French Croix de Guerre with two oak leaf clusters, and was awarded the Purple Heart.

Burial will be at Green Lawn Cemetery by Weir-Arend Funeral Home.

Through the suburban business division, all stores and offices employing fewer than 25 are solicited. This year's drive is Oct. 7 to 24.

Overall Franklin County goal is $3,998,106, representing funds needed to help operate 65 health, family, children's and youth guidance agencies in 1964.

100-Year-Old Hungarian Immigrant Basks In Son's Endless Devotion

Mrs. Sabo and Son

An eight-year-old boy left Hungary in 1888 with his mother and brother to join the father of the family in the new world.

As that son, John Sabo, 830 S. Washington-st, visited with his mother at a Bryden-rd rest home this week one immediately thought of the commandment "Honor thy father and thy mother."

It is a commandment that John Sabo has followed faithfully.

Last week Mrs. Paul Sabo celebrated her 100th birthday with her son, John, at her side as usual.

During their childhood days in New Pittsburg and Murray City, Mrs. Sabo's four children learned to deeply love and respect the little Hungarian immigrant who with their coal-mining father struggled so valiantly to make a home for their family in the strange "Nyomorika."

(Nyomerika was the name given to America by the Hungarian immigrants who found life so difficult. In their native tongue it means "Land of Misery.")

Although to this day Mrs. Sabo speaks or understands no English, John recalls that they arrived in Ohio on a Wednesday and his mother, determined to start her sons off right in their new homeland, entered them in school on Thursday.

Thirty-one years ago when Mr. Sabo died, John, who had been with the Pennsylvania Railroad in Columbus, returned to Murray City and the mines to devote the remainder of his life to his mother.

When he brought her to Columbus in 1961 his own health was impaired by a mining accident, but until very recently he was able to care for her.

He reluctantly allowed her to enter the nursing home this summer as no longer can the 74-year-old man give her the attention she requires.

"She would so much rather be home," he regretfully explained.

He marvelled, though, how in spite of the language barrier, her cheerful smile has already won her the love of everyone in the home.

Delighted as a child with her birthday gifts, Mrs. Sabo told, through John as her interpreter, how beautiful were the 100 yellow roses sent to her by Allied Florists on her 100th birthday.

Now too feeble for most activities and with her sight too far gone to read her beloved Bible, Mrs. Sabo spends much of her day in prayer.

According to the pastor of her church, the Wood-ow Avenue Hungarian Evangelical and Reformed Church, she is able to pray more beautifully than a minister.

When the reporter who visited her last week prepared to go, Mrs. Sabo expressed her hopes that she too could enjoy 100 years of life.

"But I have been here too long," the aged woman insisted.

With her unlimited faith now she looks forward to another world not with fear, but with anticipation.

But this world will be an empty place when she goes for her son, John, who spends each afternoon with her.

To have earned such affection from a son is a far greater laurel in her crown than her longevity.

Curb Cuts, Ston Signs Approved

Members of the Columbus Traffic and Transportation Commission meeting in regular session Sept. 13, approved five 35-ft. curb cuts in conjunction with construction of the Southfield Shopping Center at Groveport-pk and Grovewood-dr.

Presently planned curb cuts will allow for traffic from Groveport-pk, Grovewood-dr and Watkins-rd.

The Commission also approved installation of stop signs on Lockhurst at Lockbourne-rd and Fairwood-av at Fairbanks.

Solons Approve Miller-av Work

City Council Monday night authorized expenditure of $2,500 as the city's share of a street improvement project for Miller-av, from Deshler-av to the alley north of Gates-st. Total cost of the grading, draining and paving project is estimated at $22,589.

The city's share represents five per cent of the total cost plus the cost of intersection work. The remainder of the cost will be assessed against abutting property owners.

DON'T LET THE ROCKING CHAIR GET YOU!

Register Right Now At Schiller Park For Winter Fun

A lady's weight is her business.

Whether you want more pounds, less pounds or simply yearn to rearrange what you have, Miss Donna Schmidt, a newcomer at Schiller Recreation Center, is the girl to see.

The physical fitness classes scheduled by the professional tumbler and gymnast are just one phase of the program going into full swing at Schiller now.

With the recreational needs of children, teenagers and adults met, there is a club, a class or activity for everyone.

Are you interested in woodworking?

William Nemec has been borrowed from the industrial arts department of Central High to give the "do-it-yourself" teenager and adult professional guidance. These classes will be held from 6:30 to 10 p.m. Mondays, Tuesdays and Thursdays. He will be available to get children interested in woodworking off on the right foot the afternoons of the same days and from 9 a.m. until noon on Saturdays.

The basketball teams now going into practice are divided into junior groups for those 12 and under, intermediates from 13 through 15 and seniors up to 19 years old.

Ron Kirkpatrick is coaching for the boys while Mary Gillen is mentor for the girls. Prospective cagers should see the coaches for practice time of the various teams.

The art of pottery making is included in the ceramic classes scheduled for adults and older teens on Tuesday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 and for children in the afternoon. Miss Pam Argus is the craftsman in charge of this instruction.

Youngsters coming to the center after school on Fridays will have the chance not only to learn how to make puppets but how to operate them. Throughout the year shows will be given using hand, finger, paper sack and marionettes of string puppets.

Teenagers are asked to attend the first meeting of the Schiller Teen Club Monday, Sept. 30, at 7 p.m. As in the past this club's activities will be keyed to the interests of boys and girls of high school age.

Small fry have not been forgotten in the crafts department and every afternoon after school classes in the basic arts will be given. An eye will be kept on the calendar, and the handicraft will be tied in with the holidays as they roll around.

These particular classes are in addition to ping pong, shuffleboard, table games and gymnastics that are always available.

With dramatics rounding out the program at Schiller there is plenty to do for anyone and everyone at the center. Registration is open and the staff is waiting to sign you up.

An Open Door To Understanding

Those who had the opportunity to attend the reception on Sunday afternoon for Miss Karin Lindfors and Miss Dari Stoner at the home of Dr. and Mrs. George Hoeflinger, 4701 Leppert-rd, had a chance to see first hand the very fine work of the American Field Service.

Dari, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Stoner, 3535 Schirtzinger-rd, recently returned from three months spent with a family in Thessalonica, Greece.

Karin will spend the entire school year as part of the family of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Jones and daughter, Susan, at 5949 Timberbrook-ln. Both students are enrolled in Hilliard High School.

Representatives of the local American Field Service Chapter pointed out that it is a distinct honor and a privilege for a youngster to be selected to participate in this program. Outstanding American boys and girls with particularly good scholastic records are placed in homes in 50 countries of the world. In the current year 318 are spending the entire school year abroad and 2,560 foreign students are enrolled in schools in this country. Emphasis was laid on the fact that special care is taken to avoid sending "typical teenagers" abroad.

It has been demonstrated many times that youngsters coming from abroad to this country are more likely to have a good understanding of the English language, while Americans going abroad know very little of the languages they will come in contact with in the homes of their "parents."

Karin, whose home is Helsinki, Finland, speaks English fluently and is able to translate rapidly.

Dari, who became a "Greek" for the three-month period, had an opportunity to get a better understanding of that country and its people through a daughter of the family who spoke English.

The request from this family was for a "smiling American girl" and Dari said "So when they talked and I couldn't understand, I just smiled."

Dari pointed out that the big difference in living abroad and in America was in the fact that the people of her community in Greece were never in near the hurry Americans are and they seemed to have more leisure time for a calmer type of living.

Dwight D. Eisenhower perhaps defined the American Field Service Scholarship program best when he said, "This kind of exchange, as it grows and grows, will have a better effect of advancing the best of the world, of giving a greater promise to each of us, young and old, to live fuller and better lives, free of the burdens of armaments, free from the fears of attack, living together in the confidence that humans can trust and believe in other humans."

DESIGNED AND ENGINEERED by Bonham, Kuck, Grant and Brundage of Columbus, the sewage treatment plant under construction at Shadeville will include eight tanks each one and one-half times larger than a football field. Expected to operate at 95 per cent efficiency as does the present Scioto plant, the system, when completed, willl be considered an example of municipal sewage treatment that is tops in the field. The service road which will lead from S. High-st to the 168-acre plant site purchased by the city last year is now better than 75 per cent completed, according to Mayor W. Ralston Westlake.

Set Oct. 1 For Opening Shadeville Plant Bids

Bids on the administration and service buildings of the $15 million sewage plant south of Shadeville between Rt. 23 and the Scioto River will be opened Tuesday, Oct. 1, at 11 a.m.

With bids to be awarded immediately, construction will get underway during October according to Mayor W. Ralston Westlake.

A meeting for visitors has been included in the plans for the administration building. Westlake explained this facility was deemed necessary as the city's employment of the activated sludge method of treatment continues to attract technicians in the sewage disposal field from all over the United States.

Before the plant eventually goes into operation a screen building, pumping station, a series of pre-treatment, aeration will have been completed.

The initial operation planned for 40 million gallons to be treated daily will increase present sewage capacity of Columbus by one-third, and when the plant goes into full capacity operation of 180 million gallons a day, the city will be able to handle two and one half times its present flow of sewage.

NEW OFFICERS ELECTED

Kiwanis Picks Lower

When Mike Lower was elected president of the Kiwanis Club of Southern Columbus Tuesday the nominating committee showed their belief in the old adage, "If you want something done, ask a busy man."

Lower, who is principal of Marion-Franklin Junior - Senior High School, will also serve as the president of the Council of South Side Organizations during the coming year.

Enthusiastic about the work of Kiwanis International, Lower stated that the opportunity to carry out its services with its emphasis on youth especially appeals to him as it ties in with his profession as an educator.

A charter member of the group, Lower has served either as secretary or in one of the vice-presidential slots since its beginning.

When the new officers are installed at the President's Ball in January Bill Bellamy will take the office of president-elect which precedes election to the presidency. Other new officers are Omer Bohl, first vice-president; Bill Cotner, second vice-president, and Fred Ingram, treasurer.

Cotner is expected to continue in the appointed position of bulletin editor and Albert S. Justis will be offered the post of secretary, according to Lower.

On the board of directors for 1964 are Norman Altman, Al Braverman Tony DiGioia, Charles Greiner, Walter Johnson, Frank Nutis and Carey Pace. As retiring vice-president, Robert Horowitz is also an ex-officio member of the board.

CSSO Calls 1st Meeting

"We must take a look at where we have been and where we are going," Mike Lower, new president of the Council of South Side Organizations, stressed shortly before the first executive committee meeting slated for 7 p.m. at the South Side 'Y' this Thursday, Sept. 26.

As the council prepares to swing into the season's activities, Mike Lower placed the appointment of committee members for the coming year at the top of the agenda.

But when members of the group arrive Lower will have ready for them the publication he has prepared redefining the purposes of the organization as they were set forth when the organization was founded in the early 1940's.

Primarily, the CSSO works as a unit coordinating the civic organizations of which its membership consists, and providing the leadership to carry out its projects.

A review will be taken Thursday of its continuing projects such as the Halloween parties that are coming up, the Fourth of July celebration and its annual clean-up week.

"But at this meeting, and before the general membership, the question must be put to the men as to what new projects they are interested in tackling," the new president emphasized.

Asked whether the CSSO would continue in its campaign to gain the cooperation of South Side salvage and junk dealers in alleviating the unsightliness of the yards, he gave an emphatic "yes."

Mike Mileusnich, the retiring president, who has been so intensely interested in this work, will be asked to head

Trinity Lutheran Church Revives Traditional Parade Of Long Ago

The revival of a parade from the Old Trinity Lutheran Church, 404 S. Third-st to Schiller Park for a picnic is part of the celebration planned upon its 115th anniversary, Sunday, Sept. 29.

Led by the Boy Scout color guard of the church and the Capital University marching band, the parade will follow morning services, according to Edward P. Becker, chairman of the anniversary committee.

While Rev. and Mrs. Harold S. Goers ride along in a horse-drawn carriage, the children of the Sunday School will march waving small American flags.

Emerson Herrel has been named marshal of the parade in which floats of the organizations of the church and a display of antique cars will participate.

The program at the park has been planned by Mrs. Becker after the picnic which has been arranged by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Huiss. A play by the Luther Leaguers of Trinity, Indian dances by the Scout troop and singing have been planned. Miss Helen Kielmeyer will supervise the games for children.

All former members are invited to the celebration at which Rev. F. LeRoy Sarver, now of Oil City, Pa. and a former associate pastor will be the guest speaker at the morning services.

WANTED: 40 Boys Who Like To Sing

Rehearsals begin Monday, Sept. 30 at the South Side timist Boys' Glee Club. Branch YMCA for the Jr. Op-

After 25 years of engagements throughout the city by the club it is hoped that at least 40 boys from eight to 18 will become 1963-64 members.

Those interested are asked to be at the Y, 190 Southwood-av, at p.m. for the rehearsal which will last until 7:15 p.m.

The group has sung in the past at the Downtown Optimist Club, at the Youth Center and at Schiller Park's Christmas programs.

"SINCE I DON'T specialize, I am not a very interesting gardener," claimed Mrs. William Harrison, 95 S. Parkview-av, as she sat in the section of her spacious grounds surrounding the swimming pool. Many would find the variety in her garden refreshing with the greenhouse, the Japanese garden and the lawns surrounded with annuals, perennials and two magnificent hollies among the trees. Having lived in her garden for 20 years, it is well-established and has the charm of its owner.

Judging Of Flowers No 'Hit Or Miss' Skill

When the blue ribbons are awarded to the winning entries at the First Annual Flower Show at the Great Southern Shopping Center there will have been no "eenie, meeny, miney, mo" by the judges.

According to Mrs. John H. Butler, 4982 Cherry Bottom-rd, who is chairman of the judges and clerks, six certified judges have been selected. Each is an expert in the field.

Before one may qualify as a judge, the student must complete five two-day courses of lectures and written examinations over a 30-month period under the auspices of the National Council of State Garden Clubs. Equal attention is given to study of horticulture which involves the quality of the specimens and plants as to the finer points of arrangement.

Mrs. Butler, in discussing the coming show, emphasized that too many exhibitors forget that before pleasing arrangements can be created that a tip-top horticulturist must grow the flowers to be used.

To keep up with the changes in the flower world, all judges must take a refresher course

Want An Evening Of Bang-Up Fun? Head For Band Boosters' Carnival

When the doors open at the Walnut Township Band Boosters' Carnival at 6:30 p.m. Saturday night the Teays Valley Cadet Band will begin to play and with the flavor of an old-fashioned circus, the fun will begin.

Forty booths of nickel and dime games and rides have been set up for those who can tear themselves away from the temptations of chicken, barbecued beef, fish sandwiches, cider, home made candy and cookies and all the trimmings.

Through the prices have that children may have a splurging good time, Carl Scothorn, Booster president, claims the program is planned for adults as well as kids.

A fortune teller will be on hand for those who want to peek into the future, a spook house is ready to give steady-nerved some spine-tingling chills, and the shooting gallery will allow Dad to show off.

There's bingo for all and at 9 and 10 p.m. 20 prizes will be awarded.

For those who may have a skinny piggy bank there are free displays of police weapons and equipment, antique autos, and a horse tack and trailer so it doesn't even take a thin dime to have an evening in carnival atmosphere.

The money left there in return for so much entertainment will all go to the bands of the Teays Valley district.

Want An Evening Of Bang-Up Fun? Head For Band Boosters' Carnival

When the doors open at the Walnut Township Band Boosters' Carnival at 6:30 p.m. Saturday night the Teays Valley Cadet Band will begin to play and with the flavor of an old-fashioned circus, the fun will begin.

Forty booths of nickel and dime games and rides have been set up for those who can tear themselves away from the temptations of chicken, barbecued beef, fish sandwiches, cider, home made candy and cookies and all the trimmings.

Through the prices have been kept low so that children may have a splurging good time, Carl Scothorn, Booster president, claims the program is planned for adults as well as kids.

A fortune teller will be on hand for those who want to peek into the future, a spook house is ready to give steady-nerved some spine-tingling chills, and the shooting gallery will allow Dad to show off.

There's bingo for all and at 9 and 10 p.m. 20 prizes will be awarded.

For those who may have a skinny piggy bank there are free displays of police weapons and equipment, antique autos, and a horse tack and trailer so it doesn't even take a thin dime to have an evening in carnival atmosphere.

The money left there in return for so much entertainment will all go to the bands of the Teays Valley district.

Pilot Dogs Bring 'Double Sorrow'

BUT 'TRIPLE HAPPINESS' TO BLIND OWNERS

The friendship between a boy and his dog is often touching.

But the relationship between one who lives in a world of darkness and the guide dog who leads him through it is one of mutual devotion.

It all starts simply enough —with a bath.

When four men and a woman came to Pilot Dogs, Inc. of Columbus recently, they knew what was in store for them.

All had known, loved and depended upon at least one dog to lessen their shared handicap of blindness.

And each had lost his faithful servant and was now seeking another.

But Patsy, Cindy, Captain, Chief and Rachel had to play it by ear.

Each had survived the preliminary tests which eliminates half of the dogs offered to the non-profit organization.

Each had gone through four months of the grueling course of training that two out of three dogs flunk.

The vicious, the dull, the introverted, the poorly mannered and the dog who simply can't resist chasing cats had been sent home.

But there was one more hurdle to be jumped.

Will this particular dog and this particular person adapt to each other?

For two weeks (it takes twice as long for a person who has never owned a guide dog) the dog and his new master will live, work, eat and sleep together.

According to George Starling, one of the men of the class just completed, owning a dog resembles the problems of marriage.

"It bring double sorrow, but triple happiness," he explained.

Dogs are not stereotyped, no more than the blind, and before a man or woman and his or her dog can form a team they must accept the responsibility of each other and form a mutual admiration society in which each has implicit confidence in the other.

And that all begins, according to Stanley Doran, head of the corporation that is wholly supported by public contribution (there is no charge to the blind or their relatives or friends), with that first bath.

The future master thus assumes the responsibility he must bear for the physical well-being of his dog, and the dog realizes that here is a person who cares about him.

City traffic, escalators and elevators, stairs and excellent manners are old stuff to the dog before it begins the period of adjustment to his master.

But, now a host of individual differences must be met.

Does the blind person stroll, or stride briskly along?

Does the dog merely tolerate or really go for children?

Will the master treat his dog as a business associate with no foolishness entering in, or as a beloved friend to whom he will slip steak bones under the table and give the tail end of an ice cream cone, as Starling will?

Is the dog "people" or just a well-trained robot? (When he pet of a nine-year-old in Washington state was shipped to Columbus to undergo his four months of training which would develop him into a guide dog his crate bore the legend, "This dog is people — handle with love."

In five instances two strangers met recently. In each case the human beings involved differed, either in sex, race or background. And the other strangers involved differed widely in breed and temperment.

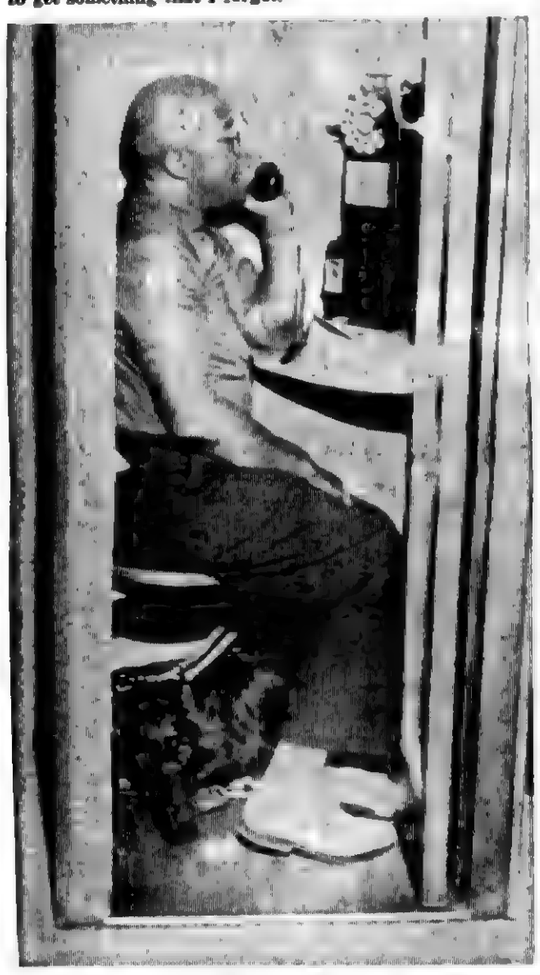
But, without exception, each pair left Pilot Dogs Inc. as friends.

The dogs are saddled with the responsibility of seeing for those who cannot see for themselves.

The owners, who were not necessarily dog lovers before being blinded, must respect the animals which will devote their working years to them.

Milton, born in an age that knew blindness but not the services of a canine trained to further help those who want to help themselves ended his famous sonnet, on blindness, "Those also serve who only stand and wait."

Patsy, whom you may meet on the streets of Columbus and Cindy, Captain, Chief and Rachel will stand and wait — indefinitely if necessary.



But more often they will serve more usefully — as the eyes of those whose eyes are useless, but whose indomitable spirits have led them to strive to lead almost normal lives with the help of a dog.

IT'S A SHARP group that ended its training period at Pilot Dogs, Inc., last week. Shown with Walter Doran, far right, one of the few qualified trainers in the United States, brother of the corporation's founder, from the left are Marlin Ryan and Captain, Bob Pellin and Cindy, Mrs. Pauline Andrews and Rachel, George Starling and Chief and Joseph Mathews and Patsy. The rapport between Cindy and Pellen, who works in the shipping department of a Denver, Col., florist, is such as is usually established between two who have lived and worked together for years. Mrs. Pellin is also blind and though she never "worked" her husband's former dog, she shares with their little daughter an automatic love and respect for the creature that guides Bob wherever he must go.

GETTING OUT of an automobile is routine for most but it is a technique that Mrs. Pauline Andrews and her dog, Rachel, must learn together. After owning two guide dogs in the past she said, "I feel that I have come home to get something that I forgot."

"THIS IS JOSEPH Mathews speaking," the Columbus broommaker and salesman told the operator as he sat in the training booth with Patsy, his Doberman Pinscher at his feet. Living at 149 E. Rich-st Mathews requested his dog be of Patsy's breed because he admires its quick one-man devotion and all business-no play attitude. All guide dogs learn to take their masters to a telephone upon command.

"IT'S BEEN TOO LONG," George Starling, who owns a piano store in Winston Salem, N.C., said when asked about the interval between the death of his beloved Big Boy and his coming to Columbus to get Chief, his new German Shepherd. Suffering a case of "love at first sight" Starling and Big Chief left Pilot Dogs after a short week together, having made the adjustment that usually takes at least two weeks.

"I HAVE MORE flees than he has and we will learn to live together," stated Marlin Ryan of Oklahoma as he worked his new dog, Captain, last week. Devoted to boxers, he cheerfully admits that the dog will probably ditch him for the nearest child. It doesn't bother him particularly because as a breeder and leaser of greyhound racing dogs, he is a gregarious person who does not want or need an overly protective dog.

Lex Mayers Chevrolet Will Feature Full '64 Truck Line

Lex (Hole-in-the-Head) Mayers has long been cognizant of the growth in importance of the trucking industry to the over-all economy of the nation.

For several years he has enjoyed a lead position among competitive dealers in the sale of motor cars and has constantly been improving his facilities for the sale and servicing of Chevrolet trucks.

With the start of the 1964 model year, Chevrolet, long the leader in truck sales, has 195 models in trucks of all types for all kinds of work.

Anticipating even greater volume of truck business, Lex has allocated more space for both the display of new and used trucks, and will, in addition to materially increasing the variety of light and medium duty trucks displayed and stocked, show some of the specialized heavy duty job units.

The recent acquisition of a new heavy duty wrecker increases the scope of service to truck customers.

With factory trained mechanics, service and parts departments at 2212 E. Main-st and body and paint shop at 407 Holtzman, "down time" for truck repairs is reduced to a minimum.

Lex has two truck specialists to assist in selecting the right truck and accessories for the particular requirements of his customers.

Volume business has long been the foundation of the famous "Hole-in-the-Head" deals and applies to trucks equally as well as to automobile.

Yes Sir, My Friends— We've Got Trouble . . .

Every decade is marked by some quality that sets it off from each preceding ten-year period. At the rate the 1960's are progressing, this slice of time will probably be listed in history books as "the era of protest."

We suppose protesting is fine in its proper place, but it is something like the measles. The doggone thing is contagious.

OUR MAIN concern is that eventually the "protest parade" will invade the sporting world. If it does, then, my friends, we got trouble with a capital T.

Imagine and consider for a minute what might happen if dissatisfied people in athletic endeavors decided to do something about it:

KANSAS CITY, MO.—Last night's scheduled game between the Athletics and Orioles was called off because neither team could provide bats.

The Adirondack Co. which provides both teams with their bats, learned that three players were using the Spalding models and held up delivery.

The matter was further complicated when it was learned that KC infielder Wayne Causey was using an 'Al Kaline 29-oz. special', made exclusively by the Louisville Slugger people.

LOS ANGELES, CALIF.— Dodger officials feared attendance would drop sharply following last night's demonstration by 15,000 Giant fans who flatly refused to sit in sections occupied by LA patrons.

GREEN BAY, WIS. — This city was shocked this afternoon at the NFL championship game between the Packers and the New York Giants. Eight players walked off the field in protest after Vince Lombardi sent in a play to quarterback Bart Starr in the second period.

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Last evening's game between the Yanks and Indians was interrupted for one hour and 13 minutes when three NY rookies charged out of the dugout and marched around the field. They carried signs which charged Yankee skipper Ralph Houk with partiality in handling personnel.

WESTPORT, CONN.—The Little League program here is in serious trouble this morning after the team bus that transports players to the local diamond neglected to pick up an 11-year-old pitcher.

The boy's father charged discrimination on the part of the driver whose son is a converted outfielder. The driver replied that the pitcher's home was out of the way.

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. — Australia's leading tennis contender, Chancey Dover, refused to play in the finals today after American star Joseph Racket didn't hop over the net to congratulate him on his semi-finals win yesterday.

"It's not that he can't do it," Dover said bitterly, "I've seen him do it hundreds of times."

BUTTE, MONT. — Four game officials at a local football game here last night quit abruptly in the third quarter, protesting that they were "sick and tired of having some smart-alec kids on the line signal touchdowns and first downs before we get a chance."

And there would be stepped-up protests from Cincinnati sportswriters on Vada Pinson's pugilistic talents and charges from Casey Stengel on 'dialogue misinterpretation' to say nothing of action by Jim Piersall and Cassius Clay.

It would become unsafe for umpires to walk the streets alone after dark.

OF COURSE, every problem has a bright spot. Protesting could liven the slow, dull three-hour-plus baseball game, revive dormant football rivalries and keep fans everywhere right on the edge of their seats.

One thing sure would be the slackening off of the gambling influence. With all the protesting going on, there wouldn't be any time for "fixing." Besides, it would probably be too much trouble anyway.

SOUTH BACKFIELD SKULL SESSION

REB ASSISTANT coaches Bob Bateman (left) and Dick Kate check over a few grid pointers with South backfield performers (from left) quarterback Jerry Robison, fullback Lloyd Pate, halfback Mickey Simmons and halfback Paul Pate at a short break in a recent practice session. The evident smiles could be due to the fact that both Kate and Bateman are line coaches.

RAMS GET BAD 'BREAK' BUT . . .

St. Mary Wins 3rd; Bulls 'Bite' Eastmoor

By Art Kienzle

The South Side's high school gridmen had just fair luck the past weekend as the five teams posted a 2-2-1 record.

South toppled Eastmoor in the Bulldogs' City League opener, 16-8, and St. Mary's won its third straight, 28-8, over New Boston Glenwood but Canal Winchester buckled Rosary, 14-8, and Whetstone blanked Marion-Franklin, 28-0, while Aquinas tied Linden, 14-14.

SOUTH 16, EASTMOOR 8

THE BULLDOGS won their CL lid-lifter as the Pate brothers combined to score all but two of South's points.

Fullback Lloyd put the Rebs on the scoreboard with a 61-yard off tackle run. Halfback Paul then dashed over for the extra points and an 8-0 first-period lead.

That's the way things remained until the final period although South's defense had to dig in just before intermission when Eastmoor drove to the two-yard stripe.

IN THE LAST quarter South marched 40 yards in nine plays with Lloyd going over for a five-yard TD. Don Collins plunged for the EPs to give the Rebs a 16-0 bulge.

The Warriors came back fast, getting on the scoreboard with 5:01 left in the game on a two-yard run to paydirt by Jim Justice. Ron Bollie ran for the EPs.

Eastmoor made one last final stab at victory but the Bulldogs stopped all threats when Lloyd Pate intercepted a Jerry Groves pass with 30 seconds left in the game.

TOTAL YARDAGE was won by the Warriors, 284-254, as well as first downs (13-7).

The Bulldogs got an additional victory early this week without even stepping onto the field. Arlington, who defeated South, 18-13, two weeks ago tomorrow, discovered an ineligible player on its roster, thus forfeiting the game to the Rebs.

ST. MARY'S 28, GLENWOOD 8

St. Mary's rolled to its third straight win of the campaign Friday night but the Rams paid a big price in gaining victory.

The Rams stunned their hosts with long touchdown runs as four different players lit up the scoreboard.

ST. MARY'S didn't waste any time gaining its win as the Rams added up 20 points in the first period.

Fullback Jack Gassman scored twice on runs of 29 and 21 yards while Tom McDonald went 61 yards for another score and quarterback Jim Yates streaked 67 yards to paydirt on yet another occasion.

But the victory was bittersweet as Yates suffered a second-quarter leg injury that will most likely sideline him for the remainder of the season.

CANAL WINCHESTER 14, ROSARY 8

ROSARY WAS victimized by a Winchester comeback as the Indians scored late to pick up their second win of the season.

The Crusaders got off on the right foot, completing a first-period touchdown march when quarterback Randy Butler hit halfback Butch Michael with a 26-yard scoring pitch.

Don Spurlock added the two-point conversion and Rosary led, 8-0.

IN THE SECOND period, a pass interference call provided the Indians with a first down on the Rosary 15.

The Crusaders held for two downs but Buddy Schiller connected with end Bob Flesher on a 19-yard TD pass on the third down to bring C-W up to 8-6 at intermission.

Winchester went ahead to stay with less than four minutes remaining when Wendell Bond capped a 55-yard drive with a two-yard plunge. C-W outgained Rosary, 212-112.

WHETSTONE 28, M-F 0

THE BRAVES stunned the Red Devils with long touchdown plays in gaining their third straight '63 win.

Whetstone scored in every period except the first to hand Marion-Franklin its second loss against one win.

Greg Evans returned a punt 86 yards to paydirt, Rick Zimmerman went 75 yards for another score and John Schuman galloped 67 yards for a third tally.

AQUINAS 14, LINDEN 14

THE TERRIERS, who got stuck with a tie last week when Watterson came from behind in the final stanza, put the shoe on the other foot against the Panthers, striking for two late TDs to gain their deadlock.

Linden pulled out in front, 14-0, with a pair of pre-intermission tallies.

But the Irish pulled up even in the waning moments of play on quarterback Paul Reiner's two scores and Jim Vincent's two perfect placements.

A QUICK check of this weekend's gridiron activity finds St. Mary's (3-0) at Hamilton Township (0-3), Rosary (1-1) at Reynoldsburg (1-2), Aquinas (0-2-1) at Walnut Ridge (1-2) and Marion-Franklin (1-2) at South (2-1).

South YMCA Will Sponsor Jr. Bowling

The South Side Branch YMCA is starting Junior Bowling Leagues for any boy or girl, age eight through 18. If a boy or girl turned 19 after Sept. 1, 1963, he or she is still eligible to bowl in these leagues.

The one requirement to principal will be that you must be a member of the South Side Branch YMCA.

AN ORGANIZATION meeting will be held at the South Side YMCA, 190 Southwood av, Saturday, at 1 p.m. Any boy or girl interested in joining these leagues should attend this meeting.

There will be a film shown entitled "Young America Bowls" and William (Red) Harrison will explain the American Junior Bowling Congress Rules and awards to be given during league play such as trophies, patches, etc.

The following week the bowling will begin at the German Village Lanes, with each boy or girl bowling one free game. At this session there will be certified instructors to instruct those boys or girls who have never bowled and to help those who wish to become better bowlers.

THE LEAGUE will then be formed according to age groups and league bowling will start.

The price of the bowling each week will be $1.15 per person which includes the bowling of three games, rental of shoes and registration fees in order to belong to the A.J.B.C. (American Junior Bowling Congress).

Bowling balls will be furnished by the lanes.

More To Hunting Game Than Meeting Squirrel

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

Fishermen claim that theirs is the contemplative sport. But who's to argue that squirrel hunting doesn't offer the same solitude and diversion from worldly affairs. This is the way I've found it on my two excursions so far this year.

Unlike many outdoor sports, you can work too hard at squirrel hunting. A casual, easy-going approach is best. Stroll along leisurely-like. Take in the fall colors and sniff the clean, crisp autumn air. Keep an eye peeled for a good fall of acorns or hickory nuts and signs of nut-cutting.

THEN PICK OUT a tree that fits your back, loosen your clothes and let the sun soak into your bones. No need to keep craning your neck. A squirrel will announce his presence. You'll know it even, or especially, if you're in a deep sleep.

After a long watch or a short snooze, move to fresh hunting grounds.

Move slowly and look and listen ahead for a darting shadow and rustling in the leaves. But pause for a deer track and follow along. It takes a ways to decide on whether it was made by a buck or a doe and about what size. And anyway it will cross more squirrel sign.

THIS TIME turn the other side to the sun. It's best to be irradiated clean through. Sometimes watching the ants at your feet helps keep you awake, especially if you bear down and really try to figure out where they're coming from, where they're going and why. But don't put too many twigs across their trails. The squirrels will spot you and they won't come out.

On second thought, maybe you'd better just watch the nut hatches. Maybe you can figure out how they manage to run down and around those tree trunks, upside-down. Among all the birds, they alone, you understand, run down a tree head first.

And while you're in a problem-solving mood, give a little time to the brown creepers — that is, if you can manage to see one of the secretive birds. Their color blends so neatly with tree bark that you can scarcely make them out. Knowing naturalists refer to it as protective coloration or camouflage. It's supposed to help them get by, and to last better in the rough and tumble of outdoor living where something is always looking for something smaller than it is to eat.

NOW, WHERE is that squirrel that you hear rustling?

THE HONOR GIVEN to Bruce Gillespie, left, when he was chosen honorary fighter commander at Kids' Day was especially important to him. He is the son of Mrs. William Gillespie and the late Capt. Gillespie, B-47 commander who was killed in a refueling accident three years ago. Cobern Blair of the Northwest Kiwanis, who was chairman of the committee arranging for the honorary commanders, stands behind Bruce and Craig J. Cassell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Robert E. Cassell, 4143 Ongaro-dr. Bruce plans to attend the Air Force Academy and Craig, base commander for a day, though interested in jets for a hobby, wants to study medicine.

ROYAL CARPET ROLLED OUT FOR KIDS AT LAFB

WEARING THE FLIGHT jackets given to them on the great day are the six Columbus boys who were chosen honorary commanders at the Kiwanis Kids' Day at Lockbourne AFB last Saturday. From the left, with the officer who holds the command position "for real," are Dave Moffatt, 953 E. North Broadway with police chief Major F. E. McGee; Jeff Lanum, 3268 Fakin-rd, with tanker commander, Capt. W. H. Ernst; Gregory Rogers, 425 Larose-dr, with Major R. H. Kline, bomber commander; Craig J. Cassell, 4143 Ongaro-dr, with Lt. Col. R. O. Ryan, base commander; Bruce Gillespie, 5004 McAllister-av, with Lt. Col. C. J. Land, squadron commander of the 87th, and William T. Rees, Jr., 3531 Trabue-rd, with fire chief Larry "Fearless" Donavan.

SKY-GAZING was the order of the day when nearly 50,000 children and their parents converged at Lockbourne to watch the breath-taking demonstration of precision flying by the Thunderbirds at super-sonic speeds. The young gentleman above came from Circleville to take in the show.

Seeks Permit To Sell Liquor

The Ohio Department of Liquor Control has announced the filing of two applications for liquor permits in this area.

Charles W. Johnson, Jr., 3601 Lockbourne-rd, applied for a permit to sell 3.2 per cent beer for on-premise consumption and carry-out and to remain open until 2:30 a.m. Application was filed Aug. 28.

John A. Forkin, The Village Inn, 897 City Park-av, applied on Sept. 13 for a permit to sell 3.2 per cent beer, high-powered beer and wine and spirituous liquor by the glass.

Suburban Homemaker Search Continues

Do you have a friend who could use a cash gift of $5,000?

If she is an outstanding homemaker it may be possible for you to assist her in winning this award.

Here's how.

First, read the judging standards of the contest as contained in the box below. Then, in a letter of not more than 500 words, outline your reasons why your friend or neighbor should be selected Suburban Homemaker of the year. Send the letter and enclosed entry blank to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus 43204.

Several local women in the area served by the Hartley Newspapers will be selected as local homemakers.

These winners will be sent to Chicago late in November for a three-day, all-expense paid trip. There they will meet all the Suburban Homemakers of America. At that time the National Suburban Homemaker will be announced and the grand prize of $5000 will be awarded.

Local winners will be selected by a committee of qualified judges from the Columbus area. Judging will be done by a set of standards provided by the Suburban Press Foundation.

Clayton W. Rose, Judge of Franklin County Court of Domestic Relations, has been chosen to serve as one of the national judges. National judging will be in Chicago on Nov. 21.

Nominators as well as nominees have an opportunity to reap rewards this year. If your nominee is chosen as one of the local Suburban Homemaker winners, you will receive an award from this newspaper. If your community's homemaker should be selected as the National Award Winner, you, as nominator, will receive a $500 award from the Suburban Press Foundation.

Last year Hartley Newspapers sent four local winners to Chicago on an all-expense paid holiday for the national competition.

These were Mrs. Mac McKinley, 835 Enfield; Mrs. Philip Wagner, 2869 Bulen-av; Mrs. Kedron Heckner, 161 Topsfield-rd, Lincoln Village, and Mrs. Oliver Tallman, 3306 Stephen-dr S.

When contacted this week Mrs. Tallman was very enthusiastic in relating her experiences at the contest and expressed gratitude to Hartley Newspapers for the event. She felt that this contest gave her a much needed "pat on the back" in her role of homemaker.

Mrs. Tallman is looking forward to sending in her nomination even though selecting one of her friends or neighbors is a very difficult decision to make. She feels that this opportunity should be made available to as many as possible.

Mrs. Oliver Tallman

Blue Plan Success Demands Total Acceptance

The Blue Plan for the Central Ohio Community is now a reality, backed by a no-strings-attached federal grant of $537,836 and the coordinated effort of area planning groups. First phase of the plan — a three-year study to determine future community needs and plans for orderly growth — will cost $1.5 million.

Franklin County local governments will contribute $268,919, and the balance of funds is to come from the Federal Bureau of Public Roads.

The Blue Plan is both sound and necessary. It is even more. It is vitally essential if we are to meet the challenges of automation, technological advances and the population explosion.

This comprehensive master plan for ALL communities within Franklin County was born of the knowledge and work of area leaders in fields of planning, industry, commerce and government. But its success can be assured only if there is a solid, county-wide acceptance of the Blue Plan by the general public. And that means YOU!

You, the public, will determine the ultimate success or failure of the Blue Plan. How do you feel about this? Will you adopt a "beatnik" attitude that "planning is for the birds because it is materialistic and a plot to force conformity"? We hope not! We are surely inviting insurmountable problems when we fail to recognize our inter-dependence as individuals and as communities. Personal (or community) initiative need not be sacrificed to total conformity. But neither should we avoid cooperative effort toward solution of common problems.

We should welcome leadership that is both optimistic and enthusiastic. But we must avoid the "head in the clouds" attitude that says "Life is beautiful as it is and we don't need planning as long as we all love one another." Love is a wonderful thing, but it demands more than lip service. And faith is beautiful, but "faith without works is dead." There is no standing still. As individuals, and as communities, we are in motion—either forward or backward. And if we are self-satisfied, the passage of time will surely bump us off the mountain top of complacency.

As you read, see, and listen to the story of the Blue Plan, adopt for yourself a Ben Franklin attitude. Old Ben would have declared that "community planning is logic in action, preparing for tomorrow." It's only common sense to plan for the needs of the future, taking into consideration such factors as expanding and shifting populations, industrial and neighborhood zoning, adequacy of highways and sewers, commercial growth, the need for schools, parks and recreation, public transportation, and other factors that will affect the total community through the use of land.

If enough of us start to "Think Tomorrow" and get behind the Blue Plan, the Central Ohio Community has a "Future Unlimited." How do you choose?

An Editor's Outlook . . .

by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Wave, Swell, Tide, Are Like History

ABOARD S.S. QUEEN ELIZABETH—I am sitting on the veranda terrace. And I am looking aft at the boiling wake as it is gradually swallowed by the Atlantic rollers. The taffrail flagpole inscribes lazy letter-S's on the misty horizon.

Now, philosophy comes easily after a staggering five-course luncheon, and it has occurred to me that the ship can be likened to civilization and the ocean to human history.

Jones

The sea has three kinds of vertical movement — waves, swell and tides.

The waves are the product of local winds and currents, soon raised and soon quieted. The small boatman is most concerned with waves, and with good reason.

The swell comes from a great distance, born in remote storms and hurricanes, its undulations racing across thousands of miles of ocean at 50 miles an hour. It does not swamp small boats, as waves can, for the distance between crest and trough is too great. But a ship like this one, far too big to be concerned with waves, rocks and pitches with the swell.

In the open sea the tide is imperceptible to the huge liner and the fishing dory alike. But it affects both equally. It can be ignored, but not resisted. It is the great fact of the sea.

As waves most directly concern the small boat so do the waves of life command the interest of the average human being. In their absence there is calm, in the ripples good fishing, and in the combers potential disaster. And, since journalism is merely a reflection of human interest, waves, too, are its chief concern.

How are the Yanks doing? What is the price of lambskins in Christchurch? Will the new vaccine really protect the babies from measles? Who is the Mad Strangler? When will snow drive down the elk and rain come to save the rice paddy?

These are the things that absorb us all. Whether we eat blubber or chili, wear Ascot ties or walrus skin breeches, worship tree gods or nothing, the little waves are what we call "news." They may spell plenty or want, divert us with gossip or with style, supply us with the real wars of killing or the mock wars of sport. These are the waves that make the rides in our little boats interesting or terrifying.

But far greater than the waves is the swell. The swell reaches across time. Its rise and fall interests philosophers and theoretical historians who try to fathom why civilizations flourish and decay, why man finds himself marching generally uphill for awhile and then generally down.

In the trough of the Dark Ages man looked wistfully back on the crest of ancient glories and mourned the death of the arts and sciences. The medieval despair ended with the discovery of the New World. The feverish activity in empire-building and invention both enriched and shook the old kingdoms and culminated in the common man's efforts to govern himself.

The up-swell was a time of optimism, Western Man worshipped his new machines. He hailed the end of superstition. The missionary would uplift the grateful heathen Education would cure the ailments of the world. In the glow of transcendental cheerfulness he roared into the 20th century.

Then came the grinding horror of World War I, the agony of empires, the Communist revolution. And, half a breath later, Hitler arrived with his brown-shirted berserks and elaborately rationalized cruelties unknown since the Inquisition.

So we hit the down-swell and the Existentialists say that mere existing in this awful world is good enough. The preachers thunder about man's inherent and hopeless sinfulness. Beneath the H-bomb the world crouches and whimpers as it did in the days of the Black Death half a millennium ago.

But we forget the tide. Short of gravity itself the tide is the world's greatest force. And in the history of living things the course of the tide has been up, never down. Regardless of the waves, regardless of the crests and troughs of the swell, itself, life has moved toward intelligence and perfection. The record in the rocks is plain. The slow progress from simple cells to complex, from spores to seeds, from ganglia to brains. This is the tide.

In the brief span of human history the time is most impressive. We are ashamed of ourselves not because we are not better than our ancestors but because we have learned to be ashamed of what they gloried in. We murder still, but not with the lusty joy of Attila and Akbar. Our excuses for hatred may be lame, but it is wonderful that we now feel the need of excuses. Tyranny never used to apologize, but all our present tyrannies now proclaim themselves the instruments of freedom.

The tide may not always rise. In our folly we could poison the air. Our earth might collide with a vagrant planet or a hot star may peel away our atmosphere. Our vehicle in space is, after all, a small satellite of a second-rate star two-thirds of the way out in a bush-league galaxy.

But if you sit upon the after-terrace of the Queen Elizabeth, watching the taffrail rise and fall against the boundless sea, it is hard to escape the warm conviction that the Master Builder is neither blind nor purposeless, that the rising tide will not be a short one.

Whatever the danger of the waves and the disappointing downsweep of the swells, we are embarked on a good ocean.

Guest Pulpit . .

'Blessed Is Nation Whose God Is The Lord'

Someone has asked "Why should we venture out into space when we still haven't solved the many complicated problems here on earth?"

Perhaps the answer is if we were to stop gazing out into space so much, and focus our attention on those things which come down from Heaven the world might be a better place in which to live for all concerned.

Rev. Deck

In Psalm 33:8 we read "Let all the earth fear the Lord; let all the inhabitants of the world stand in awe of Him." And in the 12th verse of the same Psalm it says "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord; and the people whom He hath chosen for His own inheritance."

God is interested in nations as well as individuals, and likewise God deals with nations. Abraham Lincoln, recognized this. While the battle of Gettysburg was in progress, Lincoln prayed to God for help and promised to submit to God's will, and serve Him for the balance of his life if He granted the Union Army success. He told how a sweet comfort crept into his soul with the assurance that the Almighty had taken the whole thing in His own hands.

More than ever before we need men with conviction who will stand upon God's holy inspired Word, and will believe the words of Jesus to His disciples, "If you have faith as a grain of mustard seed, ye shall say unto this mountain, remove hence to yonder place; and it shall remove; and nothing shall be impossible unto you." Mountains of fear—fear of what men may say about us for taking a bold stand for the Lord Jesus Christ. Mountains of doubt concerning the Scripture, which says God's people are to be a separated people, Holy and acceptable unto God. These doubts not only tend to break down the moral fiber of the individual, but of a nation as well. Doubts will be flung aside as we accept Christ.

We call ourselves a Christian nation and yet perhaps we have forgotten the true meaning of faith as was manifest by the early church fathers and the fathers of our great nation. We may sing the old hymn—

"Faith of our fathers living still,
In spite of dungeon, fire and sword,
We will be true to thee till death!"

But are we willing to die, if need be, for the cause of Christ?

As Lincoln stood on the field of Gettysburg and saw the piles of dead, he asked: Why were all these men so willing to die, and the answer came as Dr. Lemmon says, "Christ a self-giving Saviour and His love compelled the devotion of men to the right as God gave them to see the right." While this mood was upon him he uttered the famous Gettysburg address.

Do we as individuals realize the power of the enemy of our souls and our nation? The anti-God, communistic nations are determined to rule the world. Some of these evil nations seem to prosper. In many ways the real evil is disguised from its victims; prosperity smiles upon them, and the world gives them its applause. Because judgment is not speedily executed, men set themselves to do evil. Success blinds men to the fact that they are slaves to sin. Yet the time always comes when they awake to a realization of their terrible bondage.

Paderewski, in Carnegie Hall, at the close of World War I declared: "We shall save the world not with passion, but with compassion."

Let us call upon God for a mighty spiritual awakening throughout our land, and throughout the world.

Rev. Wilbur Deck, pastor
St. Paul Evangelical Congregational Church, 22 S. Warren-av.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

For 30 years, "success" has been a dirty word and good old fashioned "horse sense" called piffle or worse. The only way one could be "intellectually respectable" was to join the lodge of inane mediocrity.

Dusty minded professors who hadn't joined the parade of Progressive Education were passe and held up as objects of scorn and ridicule. But that so-called "dust" had in it the real "grains of gold" because they believed and taught that four plus four was eight, not 9½.

The eminently proper sense of values that best described the genuine good life went out the window as six-syllable words took over and four-letter words were "in" and if "you weren't with it" you were a square.

The new "square" was a cockeyed personality and WORK became the dirtiest word of all.

Only fools ever became "involved" in anything except status symbols and God forbid that anyone with commanding instincts of decency ever volunteered information that would cut goons and brats down to size. It just wasn't done, you know."

So, crime goes up and up and "mental illness" became a sacrosanct excuse for just plain cussedness. Courts gave out a little "pat on the wrist" and theory took the place of heavy handedness.

Then the country woke up to the sad truth that Johnny and Mary had taken over and that Pop and Mom were poison to put up with. Now things are looking brighter all over the land. Parents are being sued for vandalism damages and judgments rendered in court after court. Every so often human society does show some signs of intelligence.

One Man's Opinion . . .

Fear Spurs Protest Groups Into Action

You may believe what you wish about Franklin Delano Roosevelt. Believe that he was the first great tranquilizer who eased the panic of depression in '33 or that he "sold us down the river" as a tired man with heavy legs in '45.

Witteameier

But the 32nd president said many wise things as other prominent world leaders have been wont to do since the beginning of time.

One snatch of FDR phraseology is particularly timely at this time in our history. "The only thing we have to fear is fear itself."

Citizens of 1963 America fear bombs, Communism, international booby traps and their fellow man.

If was fear in the final reckoning that sent four little Negro children to execution last week in a Birmingham house of worship for the unpardonable sin of being black instead of white.

You may call it prejudice or racial emotionalism but I call it fear—fear of a step forward, fear of change.

American students screamed "un-American" hatred at the House Un-American Committee last week. But then, they are Communists, many believe.

Maybe so, but more likely they are confused and they are afraid. Afraid of some belief that is no longer believable—afraid of some image that is no longer imaginable.

Their protestations are voiced in the same manner as the frightened child who can do no more than scream.

Suddenly, almost overnight, we have become a nation of chanting, marching protestors. We protest where we may work, how long and for how much we should work or if we should work at all.

We protest where we may go to school, how we should get to school and what we should or should not teach at school.

My protest is against the protestor. True, by our Bill of Rights, Constitution and Declaration of Independence, we have rights of assembly and freedom of expression.

On the other hand the 21st amendment to the Constitution gave us the right to drink. It did not give us the moral obligation to become a nation of hopeless alcoholics. —JACK WITTENMEIER

PROTEST DEMONSTRATIONS are now commonplace in our society. This melee took place as crowds paralyzed Times Square in New York the afternoon of Sept. 15, protesting the U.S. student trip to Cuba. The picture was snapped by Robert L. Hannah of J. Curtis Allen Studios who accompanied Miss International of Ohio on her winning trip to the city.

It is said that lazy people are just yearning a living.

Some say that this isn't such a bad world after all, once you get used to being nervous about everything.

It has been said that persons would sooner follow your footsteps than they would your advice.

A nickel goes a long way even today. You can carry one around for weeks before you find something to buy with it.

Many domestic explosions have been touched off by an old flame.

A well adjusted person is someone who can play bridge as though it were only a game.

In days past, men lost their shirts in the stock market; now however, they lose them in the supermarket.

Some say that Patrick Henry would have kept still if he had known what taxation with representation was like.

Men—like steel—are of little use when they lose their temper.

Ministers To Report On Christianity As Seen From Behind Iron Curtain

Two groups will have the opportunity to learn of Christianity as it exists behind the Iron Curtain when Gene Dulin and John Huk present programs at the Southwood Church of Christ, 1466 S. Fourth-st.

The ministers, who spent nine weeks this year in Russia, Poland, East Germany and Yugoslavia, will offer an illustrated narrative of what they found to an all-men's meeting after a 6:15 p.m. buffet Monday, Oct. 14.

The next afternoon they will repeat their story to women from Columbus churches at 1:15 with refreshments following. The Mothers Club of the Southwood Church is sponsoring this meeting.

The two men met in Toronto where Dulin has worked since 1957 in the establishment of the Toronto Christian Mission. Concentrating upon the Russian Ukranian people of the city, Dulin became acquainted with Huk, who is the president of the Union of Evangelical Christians and minister of its church in Toronto. The latter, born in White Russia, where his father still lives, is now a naturalized United States citizen.

WITNESSES MEET

A Columbus delegation of 1,400 headed by Nelson A. Crites, city supervisor, was among those from 35 communities in the Central Ohio area attending the circuit convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at Marion, last week.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of my beloved husband, Louie Krumpholz, who passed away Sept. 26, 1959, whose birthday was on April 30 —

So sad and sudden
Death comes to call.
Your sudden passing
Surprised us all.
A sudden change
In a moment fell
Without a chance to say farewell.
We often sit and think
Of you and then of how—you died. To think you
Could not say good-bye
Before you closed your eyes.

Sadly missed by wife,
Myrtle Krumpholz,
Two granddaughters,
Two great-grandsons.

Our thanks to American Legion Post 144, St. Mary's Catholic Church and Moose Lodge and Catholic Order of Foresters.

DOING A...
MAN SIZED JOB

Heat . . . sweat . . . fatigue . . . blisters . . . aches . . . Dad says its all a part of "carrying my share of the load." He also says that, "it's important that I help make provisions for the present and near future." But he says "that it is even more important because I am preparing for the days ahead when I am a full grown man." Sometimes I think that my Dad has the wisdom of Solomon, that's this king that I learned about at church . . . and that's another thing that Dad says is important . . . "that I go to church regularly, so that I can learn about God, and prepare my spiritual life for the future, too." You know . . . Dad must think it's important . . . He goes to church, too.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ..... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

WHALE SIZED SALES

A MAYOR, A QUEEN AND SHOESHINE BOYS PITCH IN AT AUCTION

WITH A QUICK snip Miss Judy Robinson cut the ribbons to the Steelton Parking Lot after Mayor W. Ralston Westlake, right, presented the keys to South Side councilman William Fornof, left. Miss Robinson was asked to take part in the ceremonies as South Sider who had been chosen Miss Fourth of July at beauty contest sponsored by Council of South Side Organizations last summer.

AS THE AUCTIONEERS called for bids, the stack of green bills grew when the South Side Business and Industrial Association held its annual auction last week. Donating their talents at the sale from which proceeds were earmarked for needs of the South Side are, from the left, Dick Faiella and the two veterans of more than a hundred auctions who bear the title of colonel, Ernie Villiers and Kermit S. Alspaugh. In the background can be seen Joe Ronson who as chairman handled the 1001 details of the affair.

TAKING FULL advantage of the business advantages offered by the opening of the Steelton parking lot, three very young entrepeneurs were spotted. No better testimony could be given that small business on the South Side is is alive and "smiling."

LAFB SECRETARY OFF FOR ENGLAND

Friendship Spans Ocean and Time

Eight years ago, 4,000 miles from here in England Mrs. James W. Bozeman worked toward building a bond between the wives of American airmen and the local women's clubs of Whitney near Brize Norton Air Base.

Though Mrs. Bozeman returned to the United States a couple years later, the program never lost heart, and last week she flew to England to address the eighth annual conference of the club she had nurtured, the British-American Women's organization.

With her she took silver trays to two British women who have kept the program alive, one a personal friend, Mrs. Bernard E. Woodford who pioneered with her, and the other Mrs. F. MacNeece-Foster, wife of a British Air Vice-Marshal, who has been president of the group since its inception.

When she spoke to her old friends Mrs. Bozeman compared the early beginnings of the group with the first voyage of Columbus, who knew not where he was going or where he had been upon his return.

"I am sure all of us knew where we were going, although I am just as certain that the journey is longer than we thought," she said grateful that at least a few hundred lives have been made richer through the friendships formed.

READY TO TRAVEL a third of the way around the world to further kindle the spark of American-Anglo friendship she helped to light eight years ago when her husband, Capt. James W. Bozeman, was stationed in England, Mrs. Bozeman packed for the long journey back last week.

SWAN CLUB'S 1963 BABE RUTH AL CHAMPIONS

THE SWAN CLUB completed another successful season by winning the American Division of the Babe Ruth League. The team, sponsored by the Swan Club with the help of many local merchants, compiled a 14-1 mark. Mark Rhoades and Bob Cloud led the team in hitting with .547 and .519 averages, respectively. Pitcher Keith Bugos finished with a 13-1 record. Team members are, from left, kneeling: Mark Rhoads, Mike Warner, Mike Raymond, Dan Hoffman, Ron Foraker, Dave Rings, Tom Wilcox, Gene Mock and Bob Vick. Standing: Coach Jim Warner, scorer Ted Rhoades, John Stump, Bob Cloud, Dick Rings, head coach Harry Lamberson, Ed Speakmen, Keith Bugos, business manager George Shadwill and coach Bob Clifford. Missing was player Charles O'Neil.

'HE' GETS LETTERS

To whom it may concern:

We, the football team and cheerleaders here at Canal Winchester, have been watching every week for the column in the sports section of the RURAL-URBAN written by the so-called "fearless" one.

AFTER SEVERAL discussions, we decided that he wouldn't be so fearless if his readers knew who he is. In other words, this guy is a chicken. And furthermore, he can't make accurate predictions.

In case he wasn't informed, Rosary did not win over Canal Winchester; Winchester beat Rosary. Let's get that straight.

Really now, do you ever stop to realize how many people read your silly column? It's making you look pretty ridiculous, you know.

ANYWAY, if you have any intestinal fortitude (that's the nice way of saying it) (Editor's note: GUTS) at all, you will: (1) reveal your identity; (2) admit you don't know what you are doing; (3) confess that you're really a frustrated fortune teller who never quite made it.

We expect a little more encouragement in your predictions. You may be hearing from us in the future!

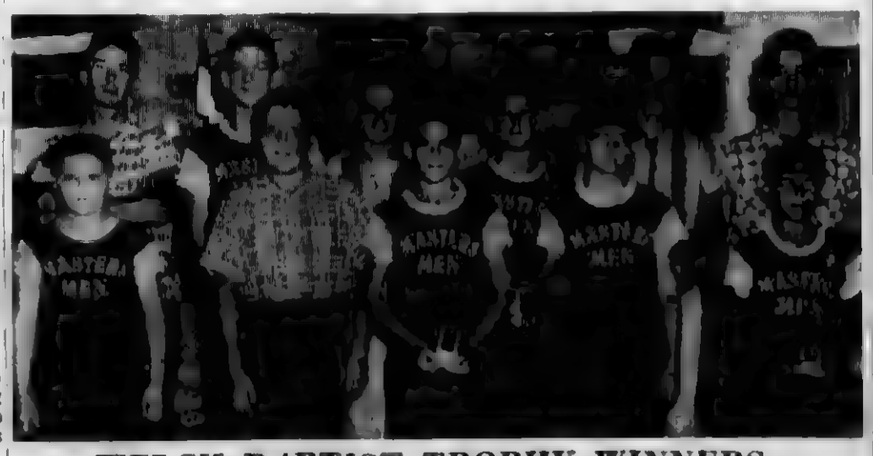
SIGNED BY: Lorri Boyer, Susie Manker, Marian Hackman, Karen Johnson and Connie Bolar (cheerleaders), Chuck LeBel (coach), Bob Flesher, Wendell Bond, Vernon Williams, Mike O'Connor, Dean Williams, Peter Warga, Tom Kinsel, Roger Hummell, Don Miller, Buddy Schiller, Stanley Johnson, Bob Detty, Gary Heffner, Nick Burgess and William H. Hanners II (players).

TO INDIANS:

You are completely right! The "fearless one" is really chicken and it's disgusting! We never realized how many people did actually read "that silly column" until the letters started to pour in.

However, with scaffolds erected from Dublin to Canal Winchester and West Jefferson to Reynoldsburg, the "fearless one" still refuses to come out into the open (wife, family, insurance companies, you know).

YOU'RE CORRECT in assuming he's frustrated. We're happy to know that we'll only be "hearing" from you in the future. That's a safer promise than most of the letters ole' "fearless" gets.



A wrong-doer is often a man who has left something undone, not always he who has done something.—Marcus Aurelius

U. S. Department of Agriculture's Economic Research Service says each American eats just over six eggs a week, compared with about seven and a half 10 years ago.

... I'll be home in 12 minutes

THAT'S RIGHT ... IF YOU WORK IN OR NEAR DOWNTOWN COLUMBUS, YOU CAN DRIVE TO YOUR NEW HOME IN BEAUTIFUL MONTEREY PARK IN JUST 12 MINUTES!

Consider the savings of your time each day when you drive to your new home in Monterey Park via the new South Freeway with no stops to slow you down. (Saves a lot of gasoline and auto wear too.) And another benefit of the freeway artery is that your disposition is better when you arrive home in the evening and when you get to work in the morning because you have been spared the many perplexing inconveniences that we all experience in crowded rush hour driving.

The South Freeway is but one of the many conveniences you enjoy every day in an ACCENT HOME BY HALL in Monterey Park located in friendly Grove City. Others are: maintenance free exteriors of brick, stucco and aluminum; flameless electric kitchens equipped with the most-up-to-date appliances; and large efficiently designed rooms with many custom built appointments. Inspect the six competely different furnished models open every day till 8 P.M. at Monterey Park just west of South Freeway at the Stringtown Rd. (Grove City) exit only 12 minutes from downtown.

You'll like the prices in Monterey Park also . . . $17,500 to $23,000 with down payments starting at $800.

Crowds Swarm As Smoke Screen Billows Over Brice

BRICE'S FIRE TRUCK is being readied to return to action. Minutes earlier the vehicle's radiator hose and fan belt broke while the vehicle was in the center of things. It had to be pushed out of the area to keep it from being destroyed.

A spectacular grass fire struck the west edge of Brice Sunday, sending billowing white clouds of smoke high into the air. Spectators were drawn from as far as 12 miles around when afternoon drivers sighted the smoke climbing high in the sky.

Firemen at the scene speculated the fire began when a diesel-type railroad engine pulling a load of freight cars emitted carbon from the exhaust and caused a fire that burned an area nearly two miles along the tracks from Brice-rd on the north edge of the town. The flames spread quickly. At one time an area of approximately a half-mile width from the tracks south of Refugee-rd was afire.

Quick action by the Truro Township Fire Department, with its volunteers coming from both Brice and Reynoldsburg, fought side by side to extinguish the blaze. By their diligence there was no extensive damage reported to the many barns and houses jeopardized in the area.

One of Brice's fire trucks broke a fan belt and the radiator hose while in the center of action. This necessitated the vehicle to be hand pushed and "run out on the battery" to keep it from being destroyed.

The fire that had reached its height at about 2 p.m. was extinguished by 3:30 p.m.

VOLUNTEER FIREMEN Dan Theis, Terry Nicodemus, Bud Polace and Bob Taylor from Reynoldsburg; Bud Taylor, Pickerington, and Frank Perrault of Brice all joined in to quickly extinguish the fire before jeopardized homes and farm buildings were damaged.

every three years. Mrs. William Harrison, co-chairman of the strolling show, was among the experienced judges who recently completed such a program at Green Meadows, north of Worthington.

Discussing the changes in flower arrangements, she explained, "Styles have changed, much as the styles in other art forms have veered from the traditional."

She pointed out that the abstract and avantgarde have come into their own, pushing back the convention concept of formal balance so long followed by all but the most daring of arrangers.

"Actually, the only rules that one or another has not thrown to the winds is that the total affect must be pleasing to the eye," she went on.

Without advance registration required for the Great Southern Show, it is only a matter of speculation how many exhibitors will take part in the two-day show next weekend, but 1,800 women have been invited to participate.

Many of these are members of the clubs of the Ohio Association of Garden Clubs in Columbus and its suburbs or of the Columbus Region Garden Clubs of Ohio.

Any interested gardener or arranger may enter any or of the 29 classes that have been scheduled, but only one entry in each class by any one exhibitor is permitted.

Although only one blue, red and yellow ribbon will be awarded in each class, at the discretion of the judges more than one white ribbon signifying honorable mention may be given.

Registration will open at 9 and close at 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 4. Mrs. Frank E. Smith of the Groveport Garden Club is in charge of the entries.

Shadows cast by the sun and the pattern of wind-blown snow can reveal prehistorical burial mounds and roads when an area is photographed from the air.

up this part of the CSSO program, Lower said.

The 30-odd organizations making up the council have long spearheaded the efforts that have helped the South Side bring itself up by its boot straps. With a president who has the enthusiasm that Lower evidenced this week, it seems unlikely that the members will be stalled this year in their campaign for "A Better South Side."

Groveport Puts Brakes On House Moving Plans

In language that no one can misunderstand, Groveport Council made it clear Monday night that the village is not going to be "the graveyard" of old homes moved to make way for the freeways of Franklin County.

When three business men, William Morrow, William Zimmerman and Dale England, jointly acquired six buildings from the section of S. 22nd-st that is being razed for the East Freeway they secured building permits to relocate two of them within the corporate limits of Groveport.

But then council suddenly took action.

With no legislation that could stop such a procedure and a dim view of their rigidly-zoned village being filled with 50-year-old imports, the members passed a unique ordinance as emergency legislation.

The new law makes it unlawful for any building which stood in any other location to be moved, erected, located or reconstructed within the village limits.

Furthermore, it makes violation of the ordinance a misdemeanor carrying a maximum fine of $500 and/ or six months in jail for each day the violation continues.

The house ready to be lowered on the footers on Canal-st and the second house for which a permit had been secured are not affected by the new law. However, they are still subject to building inspection rules.

Zoning regulations again occupied the time of council when Solicitor Roger Andrews gave his opinion on the legality of Jim Young's building of multiple-family dwellings in Hanstein Addition.

He had been asked by Mayor William Minor to research the question after the mayor had received complaints from nearby property owners.

Young, denied the variances necessary for the structures in 1962 as the lots fell short of the area prescribed by the zoning ordinance, had asked for a review of the ruling and received in February of 1963 the approval of the Board of Zoning Adjustments. He then began construction of the buildings which are now under roof.

Basing his opinion partly on a decision of the Supreme Court of the State of New York, Andrews stated that he believed that Young was within his legal rights, and that any attempt of the village or an individual to stop the building through injunction would lead to a decision favorable to Young in the proper courts.

Young, who is a candidate for mayor, stated Tuesday morning that such threatened action against him is "just part of the mud-slinging you can expect in any political campaign."

He stated emphatically that he would not have risked the thousands of dollars involved had there been the slightest doubt of the legality of the written variance he received.

Andrews stressed that the case is difficult to render an opinion on, as some of the facts had to be assumed because minutes of the Board of Zoning Adjustments are either lost or so sketchy as to be worthless.

Upon request of Young, who is acting as agent for a freeholder who is applying for annexation, council instructed its solicitor to appear before the county trustees Oct. 22 to express its (council's) approval of the move. If successful, the action will bring more than 900 acres into the jurisdiction of the village.

BUILDING PERMITS were secured allowing this house (still located on S. 22nd-st when the picture was taken several weeks ago) and another similar structure to be moved to lots in Groveport. But until the legislation passed Monday night is either repealed or amended, there will be no more second-hand houses moved to Groveport.

Many men, sons of prominent community leaders, find it difficult to measure up to the achievements of their sires, but such is not the case with today's Outstanding Personality, Walter Henry Richter. Walter's father, Henry, was proclaimed one of Columbus' prominent citizens in 1912, the centennial year of the city.

The activities of the senior Richter were diverse: officeholder in banks and a steel company, real estate and his original occupation as a contractor. He was the superintendent of the construction of the Southern Hotel, the Carnegie Library and the Columbus Savings and Trust Co. However, he specialized more in the building of homes for prominent men such as John Siebert, William Bobb and Conrad Born, Jr., Henry's son and today's profile, Walter, was born on Feb. 12, 1881, at 711 S. Front-st. He received his schooling at the Third St. School, Southwood and the old Columbus Latin School. He was pleasantly surprised to learn recently that one of his teachers, Amelia Beck was still alive, though ailing.

As did his father, Richter spent his working years as a contractor. He learned his trade from his father and assisted him in the construction of residences such as the Siebert home, which since has been leveled to make way for the Clarmont motel. Continuing in the tradition of his father, he supervised the construction of such buildings as the K of P Hall and the Southway Post American Legion.

As did his father before him, Walter has belonged to many organizations but has since become inactive in most of them, as he no longer drives. He particularly enjoyed the various masonic orders, in which he attained 32nd degree. In the earlier days of his 61 years of membership in this organization, he knew well such luminaries as Al G. Fields and "Doc" Karb and the Sells Brothers. He found the IOOF a very pleasurable group. He also held membership in the Exchange Club, the Columbus Riflas and the Elks.

Before voluntarily relinquishing his driver's license (he feels one his age has too slow reflexes), he loved to travel, especially to historic sites. He now limits himself to reading of such spots from his large library. Collecting firearms was another hobby and as is natural to his generous nature, he has donated his lifetime endeavor to the Ohio State Archaeological and Historical Society, of which he is a Life Member. He presently is attempting to gather together a complete set of the earlier Columbus directories. Indeed, it was his love of this subject that caused this writer to turn to him for assistance in her South Side history project.

He registered for the one war that occurred in his young manhood, the Spanish American War, but it ended before he was called. In the early days of World War I his construction know-how, was utilized in building army camps. After the camps were constructed, he became a supplies purchasing agent in the southern states.

Our "Personality" contends he was a "holy terror" in his youth, that his mother could breathe easily only when she heard him announce his approach by whistling. Obviously his bride of many years, Mae, must have thought otherwise, for the couple has lived 56 years in the same block on St. High-st, most of the time at 1492 S. High.

He is proud, and justly so, of his twin children, Mary Catherine and Henry Brand Richter. Mary Catherine is a faculty member of Barrett Junior High School, much loved by her students. She also enjoys working as an X-ray technician at Mercy Hospital. Henry is a broker with the Ohio National Bank, lives on Preston-rd, and is the father of two children, Alice and Henry. Alice, now a senior at Smith College, spent her junior college year abroad as a student at the University of Florence. On June 12 her mother and brother sailed to Europe to join her for a two months tour of Italy, France Switzerland and Germany. However, her brother decided he'd seen enough statues and castles to last him a lifetime, and that his female relatives could acquire his share of European culture, so he jetted home before them. This youngest Henry is a senior at the Columbus Academy, and is an outstanding member of the school's swimming team. He has broken some swimming records.

Still another member of the family should be mentioned, "Wee Bonnie Heather", the Richter's Shetland Sheep dog. If there were such a thing as a doggy Miss America contest, Bonnie would win in a woof. Being a sheep dog, she resembles a collie but has a wavy coat of black tinged with silver, which is striking. We didn't ask Mr. Richter "who takes whom" for a walk, but the two explore the South Side twice a day, rain or shine. As our Outstanding Personality goes about his daily way, he can take pride in the fact that he has indeed filled the shoes of the illustrious man who was his father.

The Youth Fellowship of the Hungarian United Church of Christ will hold a car wash on Saturday, Sept. 28, at Tesl's Service Station, 1572 Parsons-av, from 9 a.m. on. The young folks invite all their South Side neighbors to bring their automobiles for a good wash job.

Ailing community members include Gasper LaRue of E. Morrill-av, who became an emergency patient at Grant Hospital last week end; Mary Esselstein, convalesing from surgery in room 423, Mt. Carmel Hospital; Gus Fabrion, Mercy Hospital; Mrs. Earl Ladd 1580 S. Fourth-st, and Margaret Darst, Mercy Hospital. Other ailing residents include Martha Harch, Charlotte Hively, Hester Hulse, Marie Buschee and Wendall Wisecarver.

Little daughters now brightening the homes of their proud parents include the recent additions in the families of Harry and Rosevitha Dettloff; Harold and Carol Marcum, Irene and Jerry Fee, 1724 Kossuth-st.

The Luther League of Emmanuel will meet at the church at 6 p.m. Sunday Sept. 29, for a hayride and wiener roast at Blacklick Stables.

The current week is especially liked by these youngsters who can proudly boost of being a year older: Kathleen Moore, Kenneth Wyrick, David Smith, Edward Temple Lee Gallagher, Richard Tenaglia, Patsy Conley, Michael Moehrman, Don Seitz and Deborah Poeschal.

Young teenage friends who become a year older include: Bonnie Althen, Sharon Dreisigacher, Linda Greene, Barbara Pfeifer and Billy Johnson.

Natal day greetings to Mary DeMatteo, Frank LaRue, Darrell Itskin, Mabel Trigg, Mary Potter, Elenora Paulus Aretas Groezinger Velona Obert, Clara Dover, Jerry Dover, Kathy Winkleman, Sue Coon, Cleo Canter, Frances Naegele, Steve Miller, Viola Cordle, Marian Toth, Anna Wernicke and Marie Esselstein.

Wedding anniversaries to be celebrated within the week include those of Harry and Maureen Ruden, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stieber, Betty and Wally Dean, and Dona and Herb Hampton.

The mid-week dance of Wednesday, Oct. 2, at the YWCA, will feature the dance music of Chuck Selby. Dance time is from 8:45 to 11:45 p.m.

The Lydia Guild of Livingston Methodist Church is selling memorial plates commemorating the church that was doomed by the freeway now under construction. The church is pictured in color, with historic comment on the under side. Those interested may contact Mrs. Al Huff, 443-9566, or Mary Ellen Brocklesby.

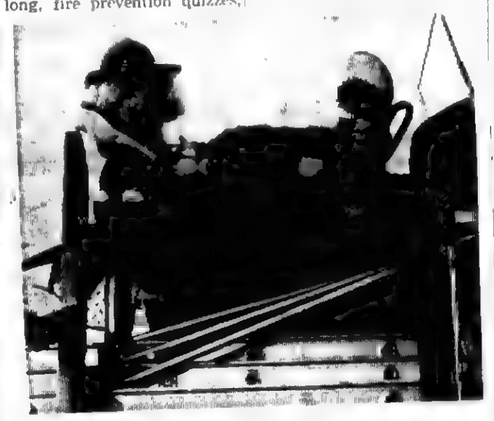
Fire Week Kick-Off

FIRE FAIR SATURDAY

Thousands of kids will catch their breath at the spectacular life net demonstraions scheduled at the Fire Prevention Fair at the Greenlawn Headquarters grounds Saturday, Oct. 5

Others will roar with laughter at the antics of Flippo the Clown, and hundreds will make their way home with prizes, two especially lucky ones will be seen sporting new bicycles.

But Lt. William A. Hennosy, chairman of the unique affair that precedes National Fire Prevention week beginning the next day, hopes that the children and their parents will gain far more than thrills and fun from the day's program.



It is no secret what causes fires. In a word, the answer is "PEOPLE."

Every year in the United States 11,000 men, women and children lose their lives in almost a million fires, a third of which occur in the home.

And in each case someone neglected to do what should be done, or did that which should not have been done.

With free movies all day long, fire prevention quizzes, fire extinguisher demonstrations, aerial ladder rescues carried out, and fire prevention exhibits on display, those attending the fair should come away a little more aware of what carelessness can bring, and a little wiser as to how each can do his share toward

FLIPPO LOOKS as if he "has it made" as he reclines on a ladder truck at the Fire Department Headquarters where he will appear at 3 p.m. Saturday at the Fire Prevention Fair. But what is more important, thousands of families will "have it made" if they heed the lessons on fire safety that will be demonstrated at the unique affair which the local department has scheduled to kick-off National Fire Prevention Week.

WANT A new bicycle? Get a ticket for the big Fire Prevention Fair at any city station, write your name on the back and leave it at the gate of the day-long fair at the Fire Department Headquarters, 200 Greenlawn-av, and maybe you'll be one of the lucky ones. Barbara Wohlfath, 151 Amsterdam-av, stenographer for the Fire Prevention Bureau, can testify to the beauty of the two bicycles which head the long list of gifts to be given away Saturday.

Seminars Result In 7-Point Digest

When Dr. Harold H. Eibling, superintendent of Columbus Schools, spoke at the Marion-Franklin PTA meeting Monday night, he presented for the first time to a public gathering the digest of the unique neighborhood seminars held last spring.

After weeks of study, the Citizens' Committee came up with seven areas that it believes require attention to enable Columbus to continue advances in education.

The first of these is class size. The committee wants a study made to learn just how small a class can be standardized for city schools, giving due consideration to classrooms, faculty and funds available.

Secondly, methods of evaluations of instruction are needed. Dr. Eibling explained that it is hoped that a relatively simple means of testing the effectiveness of teaching methods as practiced by the individual teacher can be reached.

Realizing that many students are not headed for college, the next area in the digest is that of vocational and occupational schools.

Somewhat related to this field is that of adult education. The committee pointed out that in an era of economic and social change, the need for adult education increases, but that the board can only contemplate what is reasonable.

Non-instructive duties of teachers is also on the agenda. Admitting that an easy solution to the problem would be to hire a secretary for each teacher, Dr. Eibling lamented that it is not a practical one, as it would involve "spending a fortune." However, all educators agree that some relief from clerical duties must be found for the professional teacher.

The sixth field drawn from the reports of the seminars was that of special pupil services. Involving child study, guidance and counseling, special students and related areas, it again must be approached with reasonableness, the superintendent emphasized.

The committee, made up of 10 citizens, added a seventh field of study — that of school finance. This subject has attracted attention from all those interested in education with a consensus reached that real estate taxes cannot continue to be regarded as the major source of income for the school systems.

The recommendations were sifted from 141 reports made upon the 1,737 proposals coming from 4,000 persons within the city that participated in the seminars.

The ones selected were those that had been repeatedly emphasized in the individual reports, Eibling explained.

Recalling the original "moans" from his administration staff members that such a project "could not be done," the superintendent lauded the dynamic leadership that carried it out successfully.

Stating confidently that last year will be known in educational circles as the "year of the seminars," he stated, "The people have spoken. This is the year in which the administration must keep faith with the seminars."

Blacklick Woods Becomes Home For Two Fawns

"Please don't feed the fawns."

This is a plea from Columbus Metropolitan Park naturalists who are busy bringing up "Tina and Bambi" at their new home in the Nature Center at Blacklick Woods.

The baby whitetail deer were discovered motherless in Pike County last June and eventually turned over to the local Park District by the Ohio Division of Wildlife.

Though now quartered in the Live Animal Display at Blacklick the young does will soon move to an area in the woods where they can be observed with ample room to run and play.

School Pays Tribute To Mrs. Mae Palmer

After the faculty of Marion-Franklin Junior Senior High School was introduced at the first Parent-Teachers meeting Monday night special recognition was given to a loved and respected teacher, Mrs. Mae Palmer.

Described by Michael Lower, principal, as a truly dedicated teacher who is now devoting the later years of her life to education only because of her love for the profession, Mrs. Palmer is a business instructor in the senior high

When she returned to the teaching world four years ago after devoting the middle years of her life to assisting her husband in his business, her assignment to Marion-Franklin brought her back to within a few miles of where she had grown up. Her original home had been very near the present site of Hamilton Township High School

An extremely versatile person, she has traveled extensively, been active in many civic and community affairs and numbers horseback riding, music and photography among her hobbies. She is equally at home with the piano or the accordion and has recently taken up modern ballroom dancing, with such skill that Lower claims she is "the belle of any ball."

Visibly shaken when receiving the tribute, Mrs. Palmer said that when one of her teenage students called her "dedicated" that she felt she had received the greatest compliment of her life, but that same accolade from her fellow teachers and friends meant even more.

THE FRESH handerchief in a hue to complement her costume always worn under her watch band is the trade mark of the immaculately groomed Mrs. Mae Palmer.

Peck O' Wee Ones Looks For Guild Help

In an effort to find a way to provide some of the extras needed to operate the Peck O' Wee Ones Children's Home, the staff is attempting to find women who will become charter members of a guild for the home.

Mrs. Kay Wellnitz of the staff explained that although funds for routine expenses are raised by the foundation that operates the refuge for children who are hopelessly mentally handicapped, there is never enough help to provide the little things that add so much to the comfort for the children.

"We never have enough diapers and sheets," she explained, "and we want so much to replace the wooden beds with metal ones."

Another need that could be met through the efforts of a guild is a campaign which would add to the building fund through which the foundation

Halloween Plans Include Parties

Shifting into high gear after coasting through the summer months, the executive committee of the Council of South Side Organizations took a look at its 1963-64 plans when it met last Thursday.

Determining to continue many of last year's activities members feel that many of their projects can be expanded.

On the priority list at this date is plans for the coming Halloween parties.

Co - sponsored with the schools and recreation centers of the South Side the parties are scheduled in the belief that though kids will be kids, they are much more likely to be good kids if there is wholesome recreation available.

Last year with parties at Barret Junior High, the Lincoln Park Housing development, Heimandale, Marion-Franklin, Schiller Park and the St. Stephens and South Side Community Houses, there was not a single case of disturbance that required police attention

This year it is expected that the new Buckeye Junior school will be added to the list. (Customarily the CSSO furnishes the refreshments while the school or center provides the supervision.)

Looking far ahead to its annual Fourth of July celebration the group hopes to attract more entries into the beauty contest with additional gifts offered, and entice a bigger afternoon crowd with door prizes being given throughout the daylight hours.

A slate of committees for this year was drawn up, but was not released, pending its approval by the general membership at the meeting Thursday, Oct. 10.

However, Mike Mileusnich, retiring president, was asked to continue the project of obtaining the cooperation of South Side scrap and auto parts dealers to clean up their

Spotlight Put On Rowdyism

By JANE ROBINSON

Three spectators at the South-Marion Franklin football game caused a tempest in a teapot last Friday night.

When what investigation by school authorities indicated was a matter of personal differences led to the exchange of several blows at the opposite end of the field from where the play was going on, interest shifted that way.

By the time the story was out, and pieced together with an unrelated incident occurring after the game, hearsay evidence would lead to the belief that a major riot had been narrowly averted.

Cries went up to abolish night football games, and perspective seemed thrown to the winds over the weekend.

However, when Monday morning came, the school administration undertook a slow and thorough investigation of the matter.

It was definitely ascertained that no student of any high school was involved in the field incident, and that the 10 policemen hired by South and Marion-Franklin to patrol the game kept the situation well in hand

The regrettable incident of a football player and his girl being knocked down occurred after the game off the school grounds and could not be deemed the responsibilit of the school.

It was made clear by school officials that they are not going to turn their back on any future incidents, and that rowdyism by students or by the general public will not be tolerated.

But on the other hand, it was reassuring that they were not going to be thrown into a panic by an isolated incident that any veteran sports fan will tell you is far from uncommon, daytime or night.

A half dozen better fights could have been seen that night on television.

It might be better if some public spokesmen had forgotten to push the panic button last weekend.

South High Senior Wins Singular Honor

VERSATILE IS THE WORD FOR JIM

In common with many of his classmates, Jim Lyle voices a healthy dislike of homework and interest in a number of activities outside the classroom

Yet, he must have "hit the books" occasionally during his high school career

When semi-finalists in the 1963 - 64 National Merit Scholarship competition were announced last week, the South High senior was the only student in South Side schools to achieve the honor

The test, given to high school juniors last spring throughout the nation, qualified 13,000 students to substantiate their performance and become finalists competing for the four-year scholarships at the college of their choice awarded to the winners

As 97 per cent of semi-finalists become finalists, Jim has made a big step toward his goal of entering Capital University next fall.

Son of Mrs. Lenore R. Lyle, 408 Thurman-av, and the late Charles Lyle, the young man is a "book worm" only in the sense that he is an avid reader

A delegate to Buckeye Boys' State last summer, Jim is currently vice-president of Student Council, past president of Latin Club, a member of the Boys' Ensemble and the Future Teachers Association, has helped to form the Folk Singing Club of South High and finds time to work in the guidance office.

Outside of school he sings in the St. Paul's Church choir and is active in the Bexley DeMolay.

With apparently no limit to his energies, Jim, who plays both the banjo and guitar (he was with the Renegades last year) now sings with a trio which books public performances. In step with the times, he has forsaken rock and roll for folk singing.

In discussing the typical National Merit semi-finalists, the president of the National Merit Scholarship Corporation pointed out that they are not only "intellectually able, but characteristically ambitious, energetic and resourceful."

Certainly Jim with his brilliant scholastic record and wealth of interests falls in line with this description.

CAUGHT READING for fun what many young men would avoid like poison, Jim Lyle, South Side's sole semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, discussed his plans for the future. Hoping to major in English, he has tentative ambitions to enter the teaching field, probably on a secondary level.

CLASSICAL JAPANESE DESIGNS GIVE 'ROMANCE' TO FLOWER SHOW

West shall meet East when "strollers" at the First Annual Flower Show at the Great Southern Shopping Center enter B. Goodman this weekend.

It is there that the Romance class of the section of artistic designs will be displayed, with arrangements influenced by the classical style of the Orient.

In the Columbus area the IN YO Arrangers are a registered study group devoted to the art of Japanese flower arrangement as practiced by Ikebana International, a worldwide organization binding together those interested in Oriental style.

Well known for simplicity and gracefulness, the traditional Japanese arrangements carry out a triangular symbolism of heaven, earth and man.

Mrs. Robert Smith, president of the Columbus group and who is serving as staging chairman of the flower show, explained that only after serving several years of apprenticeship is a club eligible to receive its charter from Ikebana. This is currently the goal of IN YO.

Seven other classes are open to creative arrangers of the area, including "Wee Ones," featuring very shallow designs; "Circus," made up of hanging arrangements, and "Trains and Airplanes," for abstract or free form in which painted materials are allowed.

"Soft and Cuddly," a class for children eight-years-old and younger and using a kitten or cat figurine, presents one of the several opportunities for the junior arrangers to show their skill and originality.

Among the classes for the active gardener are those for zinnias, dahlia, marigolds, fruited branches, roses, chrysanthemums and single stems of any other annual or perennial.

Other sections scheduled are African Violets, to be seen at Grant's, House Plants at Kroger, and the Invitationals, shown at nine different shops, which will each be an interpretation of Great Southern's sixth birthday.

Entries must be registered between 9 and 11 a.m. Friday, Oct. 4. The exhibits will be displayed Friday from 1:30 to 9 p.m. and on Saturday from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

WEARING AN AUTHENTIC Japanese kimona, Mrs. Robert W. Smith, 1313 Lincoln-rd, president of the IN YO Arrangers, trims the "heaven branch" of pine that is always used in a Usabata in classical Oriental flower arrangements. She is working before the low table placed in the Tokonoma or alcove of a Japanese home upon which the urn is formally displayed.

PRIDE and joy of Mrs. Henry L. Young, 757 Montrose-av, co-chairman of the Strolling Flower Show is this Usabata. The traditional Japanese flower container, sent to her by a friend from Japan, is of bronze, dark in color to suggest "the good earth."

yards in part of the general clean-up campaign.

With cooperation already noted from Ed Meltzer of Tracy Auto Parts and the partners of Reliable Trucks and Auto Parts, the council is optimistic about other dealers following suit.

Recognition was given to the South Side Leader for the publicity given to the aims of the CSSO during the past year, but members feel that other news media including radio and television are needed to further bring their accomplishments and goals to public attention.

In reviewing the other projects which the council has long been behind, that have either materialized or are near realization the Lincoln Park sub-station, the pool and parking facilities at Schiller, the development of Southview Park and the ultimate extension of Scioto Park along the river to South Frank-rd were counted.

It is with considerable relief, Henry Hudson pointed out, that the CSSO watches progress on the sewage treatment plant at Shadeville. For years the organization had fought against the threat of the plant being located further north. The council believes the South Side has been used too long as a catch all for businesses and industry whose nature make the surrounding area undesirable as residential property.

Other business included the appointment of a committee to check on the possibilities of obtaining a pool table for the Y, a motion for recommending a scroll or plaque be presented to all past presidents, and another that the organization take an ad on the church page of the South Side leader.

Carelessness Breeds Fires

The week of Oct. 6 is National Fire Prevention Week. Locally, the event will be marked by a first-time-ever "Fire Prevention Fair" at the Fire Department Headquarters, 200 Greenlawn-av.

"Fire Fair" admission will be free to all who obtain a pass from any of the fire stations in Columbus. Firefighting and rescue equipment and techniques will be demonstrated during the 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. program.

Firefighting is a job that is done well—but far too often — by our able firemen. Fire prevention is a responsibility of the general public. That there is much room for improvement is evidenced by the fact that three-fourths of all fires are caused through carelessness.

Children playing with matches, careless adult smokers, failure to remove from homes papers, magazines and other combustible materials, faulty electrical home appliances. These are a few of the areas where fire prevention should be practiced 52 weeks each year.

It is a good idea to be familiar with all safety rules to follow in event of a fire. But it is even more important to know the simple, common sense rules that can prevent 75 per cent of these emergency situations.

Time To Aid United Appeal

The 13th annual United Appeal campaign will be held Oct. 7-24. Columbus and Franklin County residents benefit each year from one campaign which provides funds for 65 essential community service agencies.

This county-wide effort is conducted by more than 15,000 volunteers who participate in the drive and assist in year-round planning and programs of U-A and its member agencies.

The wide range of health, social service, recreational-leisure time and emergency services provided through U-A touch virtually every home. Scouts, Y's and Settlement Houses reach thousands of families with every-day character building and fun activities. Family and individual counseling, day care for children of working parents, health and rehabilitation services for the handicapped and vital life-saving emergency services all are supported through your one gift to United Appeal. Why not set aside at least one hour's pay per month as a starter?

Each year 20 knowledgeable civic leaders serve on the Citizens' Screening Committee which establishes the U-A goal. This representative group from business and industry, labor and the professions studies the budgets and services of each member agency and relates to these the total needs of our people. The goal established this year for all 65 agencies is $3,998,106 and reflects an increase of $206,000 to partially accommodate the expanding requirements of the people of Franklin County.

Frederick Stecker and Dr. Harold L. Yochum, co-chairmen of the 1963 campaign, have stated, "United Appeal provides the prime voluntary means for meeting our growing human needs at the local level. By helping solve human problems, the 65 U-A agencies preserve and develop the productivity of our people. We are confident the people of Franklin County feel It's Time to Help United Appeal."

Bureau Guards Against Bum Deals

The Better Business Bureau of Central Ohio, celebrating its 42nd anniversary this week, is the object of a proclamation by Columbus Mayor W. Ralston Westlake declaring this as Better Business Bureau Week.

The BBB serves 13 mid-Ohio counties, and is a non-profit organization supported by ethical business and industry in the area served.

Ed Hughes, president and general manager of the BBB, offers sound advice when he instructs the public: "If an offer seems too good to be true, it probably is." Equally sound advice is the organization slogan "Investigate before you invest."

The Better Business Bureau is in operation as a service to the general public. If the "special deal" you are offered is really a "good deal," it will stand the test of a call to the BBB.

Principals Appreciate Homework Stories

To the Editor:

Our sincere appreciation goes to the South Side Leader for the recent front page story about Barrett's new "Homework Assignment Notebook." Such positive publicity has contributed much to the early success we're experiencing in the use of this educational aid.

Pupils frequently in the past have not written down their homework assignments. The "Assignment Notebook" will enable each pupil to write down his homework assignments in an orderly and routine way. Most important, each parent will be able to maintain interest and control over the pupil's home study program by regularly reviewing the notebook.

It is my hope that the "Homework Assignment Notebook" will become just as much a household fixture as the telephone. It has been proved in other cities that regular use of this simple device by teachers, pupils, and parents will up-grade each pupil's achievement and bring him closer to his full potential.

K. N. Olbert, principal
Barrett Junior High School

To the Editor:

I wish to thank you for the fine publicity ("Homework Notebooks") which you have Westmoor Junior High School in the Hilltop Record and West Side News. This article was well written and accurately reported. We sincerely appreciate your help and support in setting the stage for strengthening the educational program of this school.

Quite frequently, newspapers are criticized for faulty reporting or for improper emphasis in their reporting I am sure that criticisms are leveled far more frequently than the compliments. It has been my impression that your paper is not guilty of these charges.

I should also like to compliment you for your fine editorials. I am certain that your newspaper does much to strengthen the moral fiber of our community and points out those areas which need more attention.

Duane E. Reed, principal.

Boosts 'Watch Washington'

To the Editor:

The Hartley Newspapers of Sept. 5 carried an article entitled "A.A.U.N. Seeks Support for World Body."

As we approach United Nations Week propaganda will flow freely, schools will be involved, organizations such as Scouts, Grange, etc., will be urged to present plays glorifying the U.N. as the one organization that can save the world.

There is another organization in Columbus of long standing, dedicated to preserving the Constitution of the United States, knowing that only a free, independent America can hope to help the deserving.

Do you know why there hasn't been peace since the signing of U.N. charter? Do you know why other countries can nationalize American property and not pay for it? Do you know why we can't invade Cuba? Did you know American soldiers cannot cross the border of Viet Nam and destroy munition dumps but must actually protect them, making sure the enemy has plenty of bullets with which to shoot your son? Did you know you are furnishing money to teach Russians in Moscow to speak Russian?

"Watch Washington" cannot guarantee the same effect as the speakers of the A.A.U.N. but we do promise a better understanding of world affairs and why there can be no peace as long as we are members of the U.N.

Watch Washington speakers can be reached through P. O. Box 1133, Columbus, Ohio.

Don't Pursue 'Bargain-Counter Christianity'

It was lunch hour. Tom and Harry were deeply involved in a discussion about the meaning of being a Christian. Tom maintained that he was a Christian, and that this fact did not affect his business, social, or recreational life at all. "In fact," he said, "I think that I do just as well, if not better, than some of those folks who are forever going to church."

Rev. Fish

Harry disagreed. He pointed out that when a person trusts his life to the keeping of Jesus Christ by faith, this means that the Lord will have a controlling interest, not only in the business, social, and recreational life of the individual, but in every aspect of living. If the Lordship of Christ is hampered by such a facade of faith, that person has made for himself a bargain-counter Christianity, which is not Christianity at all.

It was obvious that one hour was not going to solve the difference of viewpoints. Just before they returned to work, one of them took a little booklet from his pocket and read these paragraphs:

"'This is my instruction then, which I give you from God. Do not live any longer as the Gentiles live. For they live blindfolded in a world of illusion, and are cut off from the life of God through ignorance and insensitiveness. They have stifled their consciences and then surrendered themselves to sensuality, practicing any form of impurity which lust can suggest."

But you have learned nothing like that from Christ if you have really heard His voice and understood the truth that He has taught you. No, what you have learned was to fling off the dirty clothes of the old way of living, which were rotted through and through with lust's illusions, and with yourselves mentally and spiritually re-made, to put on the clean, fresh clothes of the new life which was made by God's design for righteousness and the holiness which is no illusion.

Finish, then, with lying and tell your neighbor the truth. For we are not separate units but intimately related to each other in Christ. If you are angry, be sure that it is not out of wounded pride or bad temper. Never go to bed angry—don't give the devil that sort of foothold.

If you used to be a thief you must not only give up stealing but you must also learn to make an honest living, so that you may be able to give to those in need.

Let there be no more foul language, but good works instead — words suitable for the occasion which God can use to help other people. Never hurt the Holy Spirit. He is, remember, the personal pledge of your eventful full redemption.

Let there be no more resentment, no more anger or temper, no more violent self-assertiveness, no more slander and no more malicious remarks. Be kind to each other, be understanding. Be as ready to forgive others as God for Christ's sake has forgiven you. (Philli., Ephesians 4:17-32).

I overheard Tom and Harry, and soon became aware that Harry was basing his view on meaningful personal experience. He wanted no part of man-made bargain-counter Christianity. Who would?

BRIEF INTERLUDE

Autumn
proclaims the last of summer's sunswept days, yet has majestic beauty of its own.

So souls,
after the strife,
may briefly stand revealed on wisdom's golden shore before the night.

Reason must confirm the belief of anthropologists that a dim awareness of Nature was among the first of early man's intellectual and emotional activities. He saw and felt about him the cycle of the seasons.

Inevitably he began to notice earth's recrudescent life in spring, its surging growth and maturity in summer, its ripening and return to earth in autumn, and finally the deep sleep of winter. Somehow he felt it would all happen again and yet again.

Somewhere, sometime along in the dim centuries, man also began to see an analogy between Nature and his own existence on earth . . . perhaps beyond it. Faith began to kindle.

A man stands on a hill in autumn. He sees earth wrapping her cloak about her for a time of rest. But he knows her seeds will be reborn. He knows, too, that he also will sleep, but only for a time.

It says here . . .

Death is only life sleeping.

An Editor's Outlook By Jenkin Lloyd Jones
Dignity Won – Great Grandpa Got Out

LLANDYSSUL, Wales — I took my family to the Sunday service in the 160-year-old church at the crossroads hamlet of Pren-Gwyn.

Goronwy Evans, an earnest young college student, occupied the high pulpit for the regular pastor was "on noliday." Mr. Evans was a handsome figure and he had obviously been at great pains with his message. His voice was musical and his cadences impressive. I could bet it was a fine sermon. I'd have to bet. It was all in Welsh.

Jones

At the end of the service when Mr. Evans came forward to greet visitors I explained that this was a sentimental journey, that my grandfather had been christened in that church 120 years ago. Immediately Rev. D. Jacob Davies, a senior pastor in the valley who doubles as editor, was summoned by phone from nearby Llanybyther. Upon a hill above Rhyd-Owen we assembled in a little motorcade to hurry down a lane between the sheep-dotted hills to the ancestral homestead.

And there it was—a whitewashed cottage. Upon these hills Great Grandpa struggled to feed his wife and 10 children, and at night, because day work wasn't enough, he made hats by candlelight. Finally there came a day when the proud Stewarts in the big manor house of Alltyrodyn raised the rents again. And Great Grandpa blew his stack.

That was how in 1844 the little procession marched through the market town of Llandyssul, through Cwm Duad and Llandarog and Bolgoed to Swansea on the sea. And beyond the sea lay America.

The manor house of Alltyrodyn. The home of the lords of my peasant ancestors. Rev. Davies directed us to it—through a stone gate, down a long, twisting lane where the forest trees make a dark canopy over the ancient way. And suddenly we came upon it, a huge white mansion, its exterior paint much peeled and faded, facing a bubbling fountain and a park in which three peacocks strutted.

Mrs. Lloyd Davis, wife of the present owner, showed us proudly around the high ceilinged rooms festooned with old prints and fox hunting scenes. The Davises take in "paying guests" and the brochure tells of the trout fishing and "rough shooting" and the fact that morning tea is sixpence a cup. It doesn't mention the ghosts.

"I used to laugh as you are laughing now before I came here," said Mrs. Davis. "But that was before I heard those heavy steps in the north wings at night. And my sister-in-law swears she saw the wraith of a gray old lady on the landing."

A happy thought. Perhaps the Stewarts cannot rest because of the rents they charged Great Grandpa.

The way to America wasn't easy. There was the stinking windjammer and the effort by the captain, the mate and two crewmen to sink the ship in the dead of night off Ireland for the insurance. They'd slung the longboat over the side and opened the seacocks before the plot was discovered. There was the fight on deck and the painful days at the pumps before the waterlogged vessel put into Cork.

In New York Great Grandpa was swindled when he sought to change his money. He couldn't speak a word of English. On the way west two little sisters were buried by the roadside. And there was the Wisconsin farm he bought trustingly under a blanket of snow. When the snow melted it was a sea of sand.

But he never mourned for the Old Country. He put his mind to English and learned it quickly. He interested himself in politics, became a roaring partisan of Lincoln, and was proud when his youngest son marched off for Shiloh. His wife might grieve for the familiar lanes of Llandyssul and the friendly faces in Pren-Gwyn Church. Great Grandpa never forgot the Stewarts who used to chase foxes pell-mell through his cabbage patch. His sons would never tug their forelocks to a squire.

The Indians have no Llandyssuls. As Will Rogers used to say, "My ancestors didn't come over on the Mayflower, but they met the boat." And the Negro slaves were dragged over against their will. But the rest of us have Llandyssuls. From the villages beside the sparkling fjords, from the dark ghettoes of the central European cities, from the Rhenish vineyards and the Appenines and the olive groves of Greece we came.

A few of our immigrant ancestors were born to the purple and sought the new lands as gentlemen adventurers. A few more were second sons of the great manor-houses, cheated of their prospects by the law of primogeniture. All these were the coat-of-arms people and they have left their descendants with convictions, if not delusions, of equality. Some of our forebears were forced to flee because of their religious or political beliefs. All honor to them.

But most of them were like Great Grandpa. They had no escutcheons nor were they driven by great causes. They just got fed up with the rents and The System.

The System is much tamed now. No hot-blooded gentry ride through the cabbage patches any more. The tax-busted nobility is happy to collect four shillings to show you through the Great Hall. The squire is likely to be a very decent fellow now. He has to be or his wife will never win a blue ribbon at the chrysanthemum show.

But our immigrant ancestors did a lot to tame The System, even in absentia. Every resolute band of fed-up Europeans who marched down from the hills to the sea was watched wistfully by the peasants in the fields. And the ideas of human dignity and personal independence washed back across the Western Ocean and blew a chill wind upon the courts and castles and great estates.

Great Grandpa, God bless him, got out. And by getting out he not only made a better place of Wisconsin, but also Cardiganshire.

Frosting On The Cake

By
"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

For 60 years I have attended all kinds of sports events and enjoyed them immensely because there is always something of great emotional and inspirational worth to the observer when the "chips are down."

This is especially true when any contest has reached a "now or never" finale. I remember vividly the Dempsey-Willard fight in Toledo.

Another tremendous experience was seeing the immortal pitchers' duel between Smokey Joe Wood and Walter Johnson in Fenway Park, Boston, way back in 1911 . . . and the World Series in Detroit for two years in a row, 1934 and 1935. The Cardinals of St. Louis, with Dizzy Dean at his greatest that year, opposed by the school boy wonder, Rowe, was one for the book. The Cardinals won that year.

Then came 1935 against the Chicago Cubs. It was the last of the ninth inning in the seventh game and the contest was truly at the critical hour. Then it happened. Mickey Cockran was on second with Goose Goslin up, with no hits so far that day. The "silence could be cut in "chunks." The minute the Cubs' pitcher let go of the ball, Mickey was flying. He never looked to see what happened to Goose Goslin's dinky single. He just sailed around third and headed for home as he had never before extended himself. He slid into home plate with a split second to spare after the throw-in from centerfield and the Cubs' catcher's desperate tag. Then Detroit went completely berserk for five days and Goose Goslin packed the Fox theatre at every performance for a week at a fabulous fee. At such moments even the gods must gasp for every breath.

On a recent Thursday at Delaware's Little Brown Jug Pacing Classic I saw world records broken in almost every heat of every race. But the great thrill was the performance of Overtrick, a perfectly majestic black three-year-old colt, under the astute and breathtaking driving of Johnny Patterson. The picture of those two heats now joins the immortal museum of sporting records.

I had a fine visit for a few minutes after the race, with Mr. Leonard Buck, and he was way out on cloud 64, for hours afterward. If I never see another harness race, I have seen the greatest one Delaware ever put on in all the years of the noted Little Brown Jug. My heart was pounding all the way back to Columbus.

Hartley $1000 Football Contest To Start This Week!

Area Football Fans Given Chance At Cash Jackpot

Don't read this story unless you are sure you could use a little extra spending money each week for little or no work on your part.

The annual Hartley Newspapers football contest will give every area football fan a crack at winning up to $100 each week for the next 8 weeks. The contest is open to everyone — there is nothing to buy—and contestants place themselves under no obligations.

In the advertisements on this page you will find 16 top games to be played on the weekend of Oct. 12. Included are games in professional, collegiate and local high school ranks.

Everybody knows the Columbus area has the world-wide reputation of being the hottest football section in the universe, so picking most of the 16 game winners should not be too tough. The real fun comes when you realize that amateur pigskin predictors have as much chance of winning as the "experts" do. There's enough upsets each week to make things mighty interesting.

Tie games will be disregarded unless entrants specify same on the coupon blank.

Rules of the contest can be found elsewhere on this page. Read them carefully and don't forget to fill in all the blanks and the tie-breaker. Be doubly sure the coupon blank is sent to the Football Contest Editor of this paper, 2465 W. Broad st, Columbus 4, O., not later than Tuesday midnight the week of the contest.

Destruction Derby, Championships Highlight Sunday's CMS Program

The scheduled season-championship program for super-modifieds last Sunday afternoon at the Columbus Motor Speedway was cancelled after four events were run and has been rescheduled for Sunday Oct. 13.

This Sunday the flying-stocks will run their season-championship events, topped with a 50-lap feature.

THERE WILL also be several late-model races on the program and the afternoon will be climaxed with a "de-struction-derby," in which "junkers," driven by experienced speed-pilots will smash and crash into one another, until only one car, the winner's, is left running.

In the speedway's free game of "Total," the jackpot remains at $1100, in cash, which will go to the fan, or fans, able to correctly pick the first five finishers, in order, in this Sunday's 50-lap main-event.

Time trials will be held at 1 p.m. with the first race getting underway at 2:30.

INCIDENTIALLY, all those who had tickets for this past Sunday will be admitted with their ticket stubs on Oct. 13 for the modified season finale.

WLW-C Announces '63 Series Schedule

All the World Series games will be televised in color on WLW-C starting Oct. 2 when the Dodgers invade Yankee Stadium.

THE SCHEDULE:

Games one and two — Yankee Stadium.

Games three, four and (if necessary) five — Dodger Stadium.

Games six and seven (if neccessary) — Yankee Stadium.

Travel dates are set for Oct. 4 and Oct. 8.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "fearless one," apparently unaffected by his rapidly declining popularity, made a rare personal appearance at the office this week, dropping off his predictions and picking up his "fan" mail.

WINNING EFFORT—Raider halfback Jon Molnar lowers his head as he discovers a bit of daylight in the Rosary line for a short touchdown hop in the third period. The TD, the first of two by Molnar, gave Reynoldsburg a 6-0 lead. Too late to stop the Raider back are Rosary's John Zizek (47) and Jack Leonard (right). Quarterback Craig Shade looks on in background.

RAM STREAK ENDS BUT ...

Bulldogs Keep Pace In CL Pennant Race

By ART KIENZLE

South High School's footballers remained in a five-way first-place City League tie (2-0) Friday as the Rebs bombed Marion-Franklin, 32-12.

Elsewhere, Aquinas won its first CL game, 16-6, at Walnut Ridge, Reynoldsburg topped Rosary, 12-0, while St. Marys was upset, 6-2, by Hamilton Township.

SOUTH 32, M-F 12

THE RED DEVILS took a 6-0 first-period lead at South when guard Larry Warner grabbed Reb quarterback Jerry Robison's handoff on an attempted draw play and scampered 75 yards to the South end zone.

But Don Collins brought South a 6-6 first-period tie, capping a Bulldog drive with a short TD plunge.

Collins then put South out in front to stay with a 57-yard TD run in the second period. South led, 14-6, at intermission.

BROTHERS LLOYD and Paul Pate helped the Bulldogs break the game wide open in the third period, each scoring a TD, Lloyd on a one-yard plunge, Paul on a four-yard run.

South's second team got a chance and made good when Phil Hartway snagged a 23-yard TD pass from Charles Barton in the final period.

M-F got its last score with three minutes to play in the game on a 31-yard scoring aerial from George Bobst Larry Tilden.

HAMILTON TWP. 6, ST. MARYS 2

HAMILTON'S defense-minded Rangers applied the brakes to a three-game Ram winning streak in the County League opener for both clubs.

The Rangers' Bob Everhart scored the game's lone touchdown in the opening frame when he picked off a Ram pass and ran 40 yards to paydirt.

St. Marys struck back for its only points of the game before intermission when Roger Whaley caught Roger Stimpfle behind the Ranger goal for a safety.

THE SECOND half was highlighted by a defensive battle with neither team able to put together a sustained drive.

The game could slip into the upset category since it was the Rangers' first win of the season and the Rams' lone loss in four tries this fall.

REYNOLDSBURG 12, ROSARY 0

The Crusaders matched the Raiders through a scoreless first half and had another FCL upset brewing until Reynoldsburg struck for two post-intermission tallies.

THE RAIDERS broke the scoring ice early in the third period, taking the opening kickoff and driving 66 yards on the ground for their first tally, climaxed by Jon Molnar's two-yard plunge.

While the Reynoldsburg defense was holding Rosary's attack at bay, the Raider offensive unit got another drive brewing.

The final score ended a 60-yard drive, the last 11 yards coming on quarterback Craig Shade's flat pass to Molnar.

THE RAIDERS outgained Rosary in total yardage, 274-133. It was the Crusaders' second setback in three tries this fall.

AQUINAS 16, WALNUT RIDGE 6

The Terriers kept their City League title hopes alive with a pair of long, sustained drives that spelled defeat for the Scottie.

The Irish took an 8-0 intermission lead when halfback Jim Fritter ran over from the 15 to cap an 80-yard drive to paydirt.

THE LEAD was upped to 16-0 in the third period when Paul Reiner drove in from the five to close out a 70-yard drive to paydirt.

Fullback Dennis Day sparked a Scottie rally in the final period with a five-yard W-R touchdown but it was too little and too late to prevent an Irish victory.

Friday evening's slate finds South (4-0) visiting Linden (1-1-2). Marion - Franklin (1-3) hosting Eastmoor (1-3), Aquinas (1-2-1) traveling to Central (4-0) and Rosary (1-2) stopping off at Academy (1-1).

ST. MARYS (3-1) battles New Albany (1-3) Saturday evening at South.

Fall Season Ripe Time For Camping Junket

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

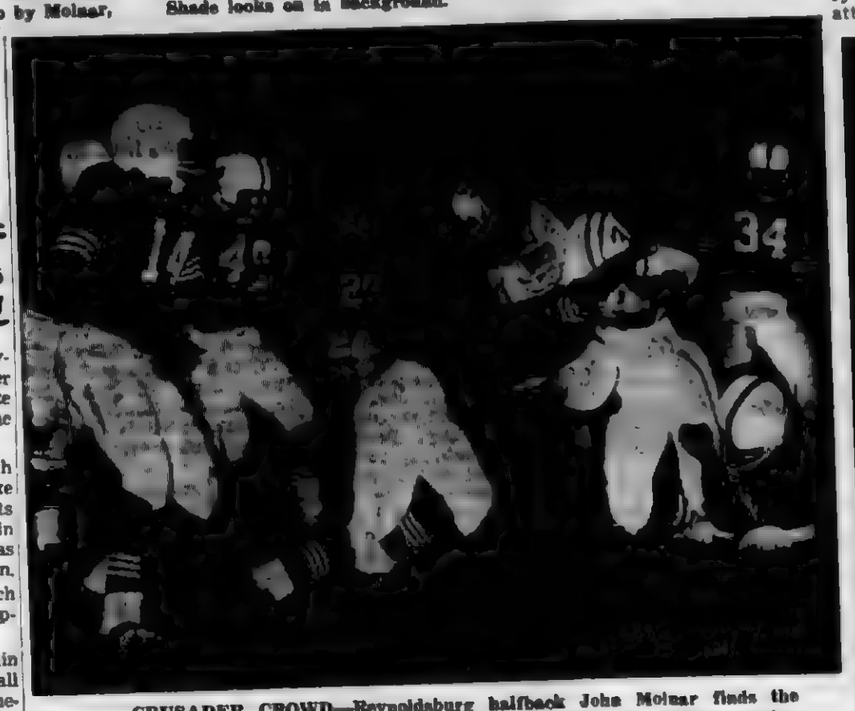
Now is the time to go camping. That is, if you're a real enthusiast. For the winey, spicy days of October are the best of all when state parks are deserted and beckoning.

If you aren't quite sold on this business of outdoor living, then you had best stay home for a snap of cool weather is a distinct possibility this time of year. But if you like solitude, and the chance to fish or hunt squirrels if the mood hits you, then this is your season.

FOR CAMPERS in this area, there are state parks with camping areas on all sides. To the south there is Pike Lake and Lake Hope, both in the midst of state forests where hunting is permitted. The Hocking parks also lie in this direction, but as the leaves change color these areas become more crowded on weekends than at any other season.

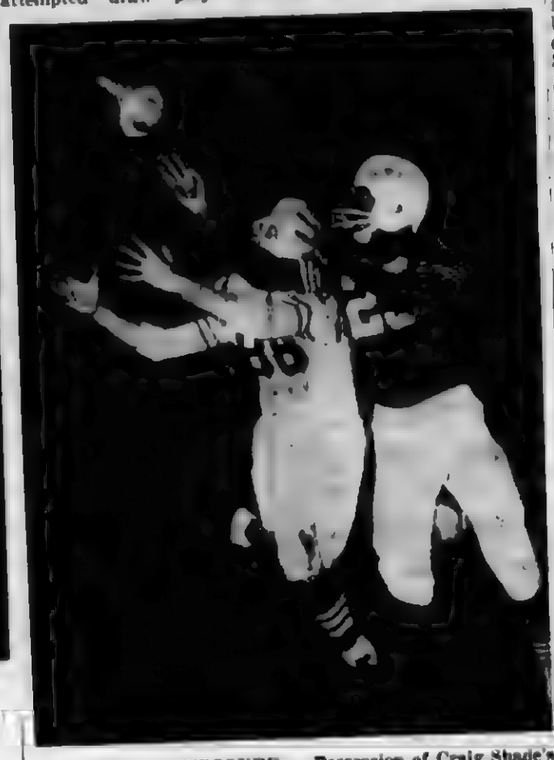
A pleasant drive up north is Clearfork State Park which is located in the Mohican-Memorial Forest, and the campgrounds is located along a scenic stream.

Near Zanesville, to the east, is Blue Rock and here again an adjoining forest affords hunting opportunities. A small lake attracts sportsmen, and yields some nice bass and bluegills on occasion.



OVER WEST is Indian Lake, probably the most congested of any of these parks mentioned during the summer season, but right now the campground is virtually deserted. No hunting here except on private land, but the fishing has been excellent this fall with large catches of catfish and crappies being made. The way to take them is to drift minnows near the bottom.

Now you can line up whichever point of the compass you desire, and head out for a couple of days of outdoor fun. For more information on these parks and other camping locations write to: Publications, Ohio Department of Natural Resources, 1500 Dublin-rd, Columbus, 43212. As for the park facility chart — it's free.



This, of course, is sleeping bag weather if you're camping out. Most campers have them and don't use the hot things all summer. Now they come in mighty handy. Other than the use of sleeping bags, and some heavier clothing including wool shirts and windbreaker jackets, fall camping isn't much different than at any other time. Your campfire will be a little more useful, and the smell of woodsmoke on the air is inviting.

AS THE TREND in camping equipment goes toward fancier and more expensive gear, the camping season stretches out. Spring and fall camping is becoming more popular, and a few hardy souls with hardtop trailers go out all winter.

I'm not ready yet to build a snowman from the snow I roll away from my campsite, but the spring and fall seasons are the ones we like best. Fall is a little better than spring, for rain is not so likely. The flies, mosquitos and people are gone, and there is left only pure enjoyment.

CRUSADER CROWD—Reynoldsburg halfback John Molnar finds the footing difficult as he tries to sweep end in third period action Friday evening versus Rosary. Crusader tacklers Joe Naley and Rick Stokes apply the brakes on Molnar while teammates Don Spurlock (14), Chuck Niece (48) and Kenny Pearrell (34) move in to make sure.

DOUBLE EXPOSURE — Possession of Craig Shade's sideline pass is the identical aim of Reynoldsburg end Doug Weber (left) and Rosary defensive back Jim Groce in this fourth period play Friday evening. Groce got there first but couldn't hold onto the ball as it fell incomplete. Reynoldsburg blanked Rosary in the FCL opener for both clubs, 12-0.

Pirates, Maryland Winners; Share Bearcat Loop Lead

The '62 Ohio Bearcat League champion Westside Pirates scored in every quarter to wallop the newest entry to the league — Lockbourne Skyhawks — 56-0. The win extended the Pirates' winning streak to 12 games over the past two seasons.

Maryland A.C. rolled up an early lead and fought off a late rally by the Westside Eagles to win its second league game, 18-6. Brilliant passing and ball handling by Maryland's Art Coleman sparked the offense to all three touchdowns.

THE EAGLES came alive in the last quarter with a series of sideline passes climaxed by a six-yard toss from quarterback Jim Armstrong to end Joe Jefferson.

In other league action, an inspired Milo-Roc team, (formerly U.A.W.), marched the ball over the goal line five times to swamp the Westgate Bears, 38-0, on the latter's field.

Next week's action finds the Westside Pirates playing Milo-Roc and Maryland A.C. hosting the Westgate Bears. Both games will be at Maryland Park beginning at 1:30 p.m.

AT SOUTHVIEW the Westside Eagles face the Lockbourne Skyhawks at 2:30 p.m.

Casey, Craft Query: 'Who's On First?'

One of the strange ironies of baseball will unfold Friday while the Los Angeles Dodgers prepare for the invasion of the New York Yankees in the third game of the World Series.

While the strategy of champions is meshing at the gears of Ralph Houk and Walt Alston, National League prexy Warren Giles will be meeting with a pair of "have-nots" who are once again having "personnel problems."

THE PROBLEM concerns the talent (or rather, lack of talent) bequeathed to the Houston Colts and the New York Mets in the late major league "expansion" draft.

Everyone is optimistic that some type of settlement will be reached. But apparently no one is overly optimistic as to how a settlement can be reached.

Everyone has his guess as to what will happen. Here is ours in the form of a post-meeting press conference between sportswriters and managers Harry Craft and Casey Stengel:

"HARRY, WILL the Colts and Mets get to draft players from the eight other National League clubs as they did in 1961?"

"Not exactly. We won't get a second draft but the other clubs have made personnel commitments to us for the '64 season."

"Personnel commitments? Well, you were weak at shortstop this season. How have you strengthened that spot?"

"YES, WE'VE GOT a one-year lease on Leo Durocher. It had something to do with the Dodgers winning the pennant. I understand we could have gotten Walt (Alston) but I'm happy it worked out this way. Leo will be our 'holler guy.'"

"Casey, how about the pitching department? Any help?"

"Well, this guy I got from Denver had a sore arm but he was a lefty, anyhow, and we really need some bench help. But of course, who else could we find to catch what's his name?"

"WHAT DID he say, Harry?"

"He'll have Warren Spahn on Tuesdays and Friday night games except when the Braves make an Eastern road trip. Memorial Day is optional."

"Harry, how about your bullpen. Any relief there?"

"I'M GLAD you asked that. The Giants are working a deal with Detroit to get us Bill Faul. The only problem is we'll have to carry his hypnotist which means I'll have to do without a utility infielder."

"Casey, how about the outfield?"

"My guy hits .300 and we're in the first division, but he hits a mid-July slump and we're looking for a guy who can go both ways. Who could have known my leadoff fellow would turn into a power hitter?"

"Huh? Harry?"

"THE CARDINALS turned over Stan Musial. His desk isn't ready yet and Mr. Busch explained even if he hits .235, he'll still be Casey's number one hitter."

"One last question, Casey. Your attendance wasn't bad last year, but do you feel any of your 'commitments' will help your team at the gate?"

"My guys always keep 'em guessing, but we'll be out there next season. My fellow at first has some fielding troubles, but after all, boys, whatever happened to Billy Martin?"

"THE PHILLIES took care of their commitment by signing Jim Piersall as a free agent. He'll be a Met again next spring."

"To strengthen his outfield, Harry?"

"No, but he does this thing with bats and umpires that can't miss at the gate."

"ANY PREDICTIONS for first division next season, Harry? Will your Colts make a run for it?"

"I can't really answer that. I'm no longer with Houston. Casey a got me in left field."

If you want to know what your wife is going to ask you to do next, try sitting down.

Hawks, Bulls, Falcons Set Pace In OBFF

Meadow Gold, Harley-Davidson and Westgate stepped out in front in the Ohio Boys Football Foundation League by winning their second straight games Sunday afternoon.

Meadow Gold scored its lone TD by Chuck Petty with 3:30 left in the game vs. the Mifflin Arrowheads.

HARLEY-DAVIDSON won, 8-0, over tht Obetz Tigers with Alvino Milmer scoring with 20 seconds left in the game.

The Westgate Hawks blanked the West Mound Rams, 28-0, with the help of Junior Dembinski who ran and threw for two TDs to lead his teammates to victory.

In other league action, Arlington and Beatty fought to a 6-6 tie; Duckworth won over LeCoumpte 20-0; and the Gahanna Rockets downed Grove City 26-0.

IN 90-LB. action, the repeats of the 110-lb. were the victors — the Westgate Falcons over the West Mound Rams, 28-0 and the Harley-Davidson Raiders deadlocked with the Beatty Cubs, 0-0.

BANDOLIERS OF .50 caliber machine gun ammunition are passed from S/Sgt. Gerald E. Wozniak, 1760 Tremont-rd, to Sgt. Donald J. Keene, 307 Linwood-av, of the 8th Tank Battalion which is headquartered in Hilliard. Machine guns of .50 calibre are among the armament of the General Patton tank in the background. The picture was taken during maneuvers at Fort Knox, Ky.

A Chicago fire that raged out of control 92 years ago on Oct. 9, 1871, is still remembered in this day and age through the annual Fire Prevention Week. The observance is held during the week that contains Oct. 9. The Chicago conflagration laid waste 2,100 acres, made 100,000 people homeless, ruined 17,500 buildings, and claimed 200 lives. Direct losses were $168,000,000.

The observance, originated in 1911, was officially proclaimed in 1922, both in this country and Canada.

This year the Columbus Fire Department plans to deliver its message by holding a Fire Prevention Fair at the headquarters, 200 Greenlawn-av, on Saturday, Oct. 5, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

A fun-filled five days in the nation's capital and environs was the recent experience of Lynn Felice, 212 E. Jenkins-av, not too long from her high school days. Also with Lynn were Regina Rodenfels and Carol Schoaf. Lynn reports that she and her friends got a 50-mile hike in daily, during the tour.

Carol enjoyed the churches and shrines, while the South Sider and Miss Rodenfels found the Naval Academy the highlight of the trip. The irrepressible Lynn declared the only statistics she remembered of the trip was that there are 4,300 men enrolled at the academy, and that a wedding occurs every 15 minutes in the chapel. The history-lovers (?) also visited Alexandria, Va., Woodlawn, the Smithsonian Institute. Congress, House of Representatives and the White House, besides doing a lot of shopping. Their first days found them eating at fancy restaurants, but their final meal in the Capital found them enjoying the American delicacy, the hot dog. The three had so much fun that they are already planning for another vacation as soon as possible, to gather more statistics, no doubt!

The first days of the year's 10th month mean birthday time to these South Side youngsters . . . Douglas Castle, Vickie Ballard, Martin Finta, Suzanne Balogh, Cheryl Bayes, Freddie Jordan, Craig McKnight, Cynthia Smith, Dave Early, Rosemary Henry, Michael Dear, Charles Blair, James Snodgrass, Junior Gallion, John Aldrige, Paul Cornett, John Law, Joy Howell, Kathy Leist, Kathleen Murnane, Brenda Obert, Gary Meszaros and Clarence Ward.

A new teen-year is the prospect that pleases this segment of the population: Judy Lenox, Dale Thomas, Susanna May and Dorothy Marte.

Birthdays in the adult and near-adult listings include: Maxine Wells, Lynn Felice, Ruth Snyder, Eileen Winkleman, Glenna Edwards, Thelma Swisher, Ann Bode, Pat Anderson, Ann Padovoni, Alda Carlisle, Vesta Brown, Don Wilson, David Colegrove, Mary Cook and Mae Fortune.

Wedding anniversaries to be celebrated within the week include those of Donald and Sybilla Murnane, Jo Ann and Richard Conrad, Randy and Pat Swisher, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Seemueller and Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Spiker.

A special congratulation to Julia and Fred Rogers, 393 E. Gates-st, who had the pleasure of having most of their family present at a family dinner for their 50th wedding anniversary. The red-letter day was an event of Sept. 18, with the celbration a few days earlier.

Wedding congratulations to Sharon Coffman and George Siebert, who were married Saturday, Sept. 21.

An area resident, Dorothy Burkland, 775 Stanley-av, has been working diligently on the Practical Nurses Association of Ohio convention which gets underway today, Oct. 3, and lasts until Saturday, Oct. 5. Officers will be nominated and elected at the convention on the business agenda.

Dr. William Pace, winner of many honors and awards, will be a featured speaker on Friday, Oct. 4.

On Saturday, Oct. 5, Gerald Aldridge, a hospital administrator and ardent advocate of practical nursing, will be the main speaker. Both men are leaders in their respective fields. Other topics include such as "Where Religion and Medicine Meet" by Rev. Harold Davidson of the Juvenile Diagnostic Center; "Space Communication - The Story of Project Telestar" by Robert Popp of the Ohio Bell Telephone Co., and "How to Write Letters" by Dr. Charles Hicks.

Viola Miller, another localite, will give a report on Civil Defense. Gov. James Rhodes has proclaimed Sept. 29 - Oct. 5 as Licensed Practical Nurse Week in Ohio.

Meetings here and there:

Trudean Guild 10 will meet at 8:30 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 9, at 1411 S. Sixth-st, the home of Mrs. Paul J. Lenox.

The annual candy sale of the Camp Fire Girl organization will be discussed at the South Leaders Association on Wednesday, Oct. 9, at Schiller Park, at 9:30 a.m. Polly Hall will demonstrate wreath-making. The association is sponsoring a skating party at Rollerland on Thursday, Oct. 10, 6 to 9 p.m. Pat Hoffman, 444-9111, is chairman of the project.

The music of Bob Motzer's band will be featured at the Wednesday, Oct. 9, dance at the YMCA, 8:45 to 11:45 p.m.

An early appeal is made by this writer for the reader's "Gifts for Giving" donations. For one thing, we will have no dolls from our beloved doll lady, Mrs. I Bier, as she is helping to nurse her son back to health, following a stroke. This leaves a tremendous hole in the items for children, particularly the little girls. This writer, also, has illness in the the family with a nursing duty to perform.

We hope to make our yearly trip to the Benjamin Franklin Hospital, but it will take a bigger effort than usual. We figure that by making an early appeal, some groups might decide to bring their "white elephants" to their November meetings, which would be a tremendous help this year.

As long-time readers know, this Christmas project is designed to bring happiness to tuberculosis patients of Ben Franklin. Readers' donations are given to the patients, who in turn give them to their families for holiday gifts or "Gifts for Giving". In this year, when it takes a big effort on our part to go through with the project, we hope our friends and neighbors will particularly heed the plea.

Kiwanis Auction Saturday Night

BY ZIP

The date is Saturday, Oct. 5, the time is 7 p.m., the place is Prairie-Norton School auditorium, New Rome, and the event is the Eighth Annual West Franklin Kiwanis Club's Auction Sale.

But if this year's pattern follows those of the past, it's anyone's guess as to what will happen after the auctioneers — Clarence Latham, Cy Ferguson and Chet and Larry Guffey — begin their chant.

Those who have attended previous Kiwanis auctions will suggest that it's more of a circus than an auction, with numerous incidents which border on the hilarious.

There was the time when a bachelor discovered he had been top bidder on three pairs of ladies' nylon hose, when his motion to bat a fly from his bald head was misunderstood by an auctioneer. And the occasion when one of the Kiwanians found himself compelled to make top bid to get back his own welcome mat—one which his fellow club members had capriciously "acquired" and put up for auction.

The "matching lamp" episode also brought plenty of laughs — when a bidder (a member of the club) thought he was bidding for a lamp to match one he had already acquired a few minutes before only to discover it was the same piece of merchandise, adroitly taken from his possession and returned to the auctioneer.

And the Hilltop business man who, unable to attend the sale, sent his secretary to the event with instruction to "buy something." He was awakened at his home at midnight following the auction by the loud quacking of disturbed ducks, which she had dutifully secured for him.

This provides the uninitiated with an idea of some of the pranks that serve to enliven the evening, but, seriously, no one ever pays for a not-wanted item. From the first Kiwanis auction eight years ago, it has been a policy of the club that anyone making top bid for any merchandise may return it to the auctioneers for resale if not satisfied.

The event is the big money-raising event of the year of the West Franklin Kiwanians and customarily hundreds of items of merchandise secured by club members from merchants and residents of the area are put up for auction.

This usually includes new and used appliances, television sets, radios, automobile accessories, farm equipment, garden tools, groceries, canned goods, clothing, products of the farm, and, believe it or not, a 1952 Ford automobile—a "late 52," if you please.

Kiwanians last Saturday picked 35 bushels of apples from which cider will be made and placed on sale.

As is usual at auction sales,

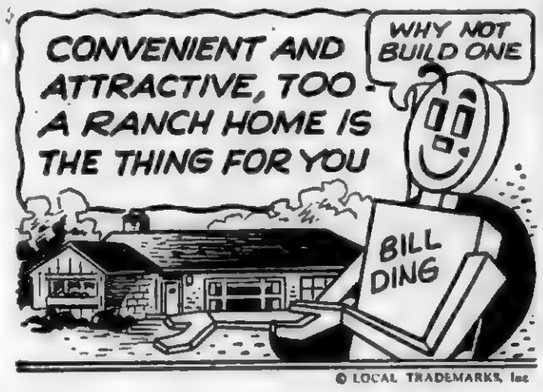
some pay as much as an item is worth — but more often the buyer walks away with a terrific bargain.

At intervals of 15 or 20 minutes throughout the auction, which usually lasts three to four hours, door prizes will be awarded. There is no charge of any kind for the numbered tickets given to visitors as they enter the auditorium.

Those having merchandise they wish to contribute to the Kiwanians for the auction are asked to phone Clark Miller, chairman of the event, at TR. 8-5008.

Refreshments and sandwiches will be sold throughout the evening by members of the Weskiwans, women's auxiliary group of the West Franklin Kiwanis Club.



AN AUCTION ITEM is presented to Kiwanis member Bill Hewson, right, by Dan Fisher of Fisher's TV and Appliance Store, 4923 W. Broad-st. This TV set will be one of hundreds of "bargains" to be placed on the block at the annual West Franklin Kiwanis Auction.

STANDARDS HELP IN NOMINATING SUBURBAN HOMEMAKER OF YEAR

It isn't difficult to find a suburban homemaker. It takes some thinking, however, to select a woman who has the qualities necessary to be selected Suburban Homemaker of the Year and win a grand prize of $5,000.

A nominee need not necessarily be a bathing beauty, for she will be evaluated on her personal attributes and abilities as a homemaker.

Local winners, to be selected by a panel of area judges, will be sent to Chicago late in November for a three-day, all expense paid trip by Hartley Newspapers. There the national judges will meet local winners and determine the Suburban Homemaker of the Year.

Nominators as well as nominees have an opportunity to reap rewards this year. The nominator of a local winner will receive an award from this newspaper. The nominator of the National Award winner will receive a $500 award from the Suburban Press Foundation.

Last year four women were sent by this newspaper to the national judging in Chicago. They were: Mrs. Mac McKinley, 835 Enfield; Mrs. Philip Wagner, 2869 Bulen-av; Mrs. Kedron Heckner, 161 Topsfield-rd, Lincoln Village, and Mrs. Oliver Tallman, 3306 Stephen-dr S.

Nominating the woman whom you believe qualifies for the tribute is easy. Appearing below are the official Judging Standards which the judges, both local and national, will use as a yardstick for the selection.

Using the standards as a guide, write a letter of no more than 500 words about your nominee. The style of writing or manner of presentation will not be factors in judging.

Send the letter and the entry blank below to Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, 43204.

Any homemaker in the Hartley Newspapers circulation area is eligible. Nominations may be made by anyone 15 years or older families, friends or organizations.

The letters will be used to determine the outstanding homemakers in your community. These, in turn, will be screened by a committee which will call upon them at home and verify statements.

Why not begin thinking now of the woman in your community you believe has made the most worthwhile contribution to your community's way of life.

The TIE that Binds...

Man and woman began their married life in church and according to God's holy word are joined together. With the Bible as the basis for the beginning of a new life together, it seems only reasonable that a continued study of God's word would strengthen and serve as a guide to any couple. The Bible can truly serve as a tie that will bind two together in accord. The church as God's agency on earth can help you in Bible study, and with the guidance of the Holy Spirit can help you to understand God's will in your life.

"And the Lord shall guide thee continually, and satisfy thy soul in drought, and make fat thy bones; and thou shalt be like a watered garden, and like a spring of water, whose waters fail not." Isaiah 58-11

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ..... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

It's 'Back To College' Time For 144 Area Youths

"Learning to do, doing to earn, earning to live, living to serve . . ."

"Good, better, best. Never let it rest. 'Til the good is better and the better, best . . ."

Old fashioned thoughts. Yes, but modern youths still look to the old adages as they continue their educations.

One hundred and forty-four replies were received from Hartley Newspaper area youths planning a college curriculum this year. Students are listed according to the high school they attended and in most cases they have included their class and major.

BOB AND PAT JONES, 2460 Rosedale-av, "rise above" the books they will study during their college years. Pat, a sophomore this year at Ohio State, has a head start on brother Bob, who will be a freshman. During a four-year curriculum, each will read an estimated 60 hardbound books and 100 paperbacks. The cost is withheld, due to the fact that it might tend to depress parents.

Great Southern Stores Furnish Model Homes

The model homes which will be erected at Southern Pines, the new community planned for the area at the northeast corner of Parsons-av and Obetz-rd, are on display at the Great Southern Shopping Center.

With 800 homes, apartments, schools, churches and neighborhood shopping facilities eventually planned, the builders, Virginia Homes, have announced that 64 homes are scheduled for completion by the end of the year.

When shoppers at any of the Great Southern stores take the keys they will receive during the three-week promotion beginning this Thursday to the treasure chests placed within the homes, they will see homes completely furnished by Great Southern tenants.

The Charleston, a three-bedroom ranch style home, has been done in a contemporary style, which the Savannah, which features a full basement is furnished in the colonial period.

Representatives of the shopping center pointed out that many shoppers do not realize that anything needed to complete the interior of a home from major appliances to decorator's items are offered by Grant's, Penney's, Woolco, Kresge and Lares TV, the five stores from which all furnishings were acquired.

WITH A MAGIC click the keys of certain fortunate shoppers will open the treasure chests located in the model homes on display at Great Southern Shopping Center. The lucky keys will be among those distributed by Great Southern merchants to their customers daily from Oct. 3 through Monday, Oct. 28. The Charleston on the left, and the Savannah are two of the ranch style homes which will make up the new community, Southern Pines on Parsons-av, south of Williams-rd. Built by Virginia Homes, Inc. the houses include as standard features life-lasting asbestos shingle, hardwood floors, and wiring bearing the Medallion seal.

The sixth McDonald's hamburger restaurant in Columbus will open at 5295 N. High-st, Tuesday, Oct. 8. The new McDonald's, under the management of Gary Hickerson, will be one of the nation-wide chain which numbers 517 hamburger restaurants in 42 states.

McDonald's offers a unique combination of self-service, speed and spotless surroundings, with a limited 10-item menu built around the 15-cent hamburger. Customers get their own order from a self-service window. This self-service policy has won popularity with families because it is fast.

Featured is a budget meal, consisting of a hamburger, french fries and milkshake for 47 cents which appeals to drive-in families with carloads of hungry children.

Besides feeding families, McDonald's turns out hamburgers in quantity for local organizations planning picnics and parties.

WHEN THE DECORATOR shopped to completely furnish the Charleston, she went no further than to the merchants located in the Great Souhern Shopping Center. Choosing to follow a contemporary style as shown in the living room above, she drew on the stock of the local stores for everything from major pieces down to the last ash tray.

'Landfill' Unwelcome Surprise To Many

It was quite a surprise to a member of the Hamilton Township Fire Department to discover a dump in operation off Rt. 665, east of Parsons-av, while investigating a grass fire in the area.

As the operation, on land owned by Lewis Eakin, is zoned for residential and agricultural uses, the new "business" was reported to Frank Bonner, chief of the Hamilton Township Police Department.

Bonner was not pleased with what his inspection of the site revealed and his complaint was made to the Franklin County Health Department.

Howard Sandusky, sanitarian with that department, immediately made an inspection of the site and informed Willard Anderson who was in charge that if burning were discontinued, it was possible that a permit might be obtained to continue the operation.

However, Sandusky stated Tuesday, that as the order had been ignored the board would now serve a written notice to the operator. Failure to comply with this notice would lead to legal action, according to the Board of Health spokesman.

A call to Eakin revealed that he holds a contract with Guy Foster who is listed in the telephone directory as being in the wrecking business. Eakin claims that the contract prohibits any "garbage or dead animals" from being used for what he states is strickly a landfill operation.

He further stated that the agreement with Foster makes it mandatory for three-feet of top soil to be used to cover the site when the former gravel pit is filled.

He explained that when gravel was taken from the site some years ago that the contract with the excavator called for a similar arrangement, but that the bankruptcy of the other party prevented the terms of the contract from being met.

At this point there seems to be a definite disagreement among the parties involved (owner, leasor, neighbors, Board of Health, fire department and police) when a landfill is not a landfill, but a dump.

Eakin also pointed out that one clause of his contract allows him to close the site without notice.

Groveport Youth Hit With Curfew

Mayor William Minor of Groveport dug down, in the village records, pulled out a 1912 ordinance, dusted it off and handed it to the juveniles of the area.

Briefly, it means "Off the streets by 8 p.m. or else."

Disgusted with what he considers an unhealthy attitude on the part of some of the youth of the area, Minor has instructed his police officers, headed by Walter Thompson, marshal, to pick up any juveniles after the curfew hour and take them to the Juvenile Detention Home. They can then be released to their parents.

Children and young teenagers who are accompanied by their parents or are on the way to or from church or school functions are not affected by enforcement of the ordinance, Minor explained.

Minor's action was triggered by the arrest on an intoxication charge of a 27-year-old man by village officers after he was found in the company of three juveniles in a private home by county, Obetz and Groveport officers.

At the time of the "raid" beer, whisky and wine were all confiscated, Minor reported.

An adult who makes liquor available to juveniles can be prosecuted under state law for contributing to the delinquency of a minor or under a similar statute, either of which carries a $1,000 fine and a one year sentence in the workhouse as the maximum penalties.

Interviews with several local citizens, few of whom would speak except "off-the cuff" at the present revealed a rather uncertain attitude as to the wisdom of the mayor's move.

Though no one in anyway condoned drinking or rowdyism by teenagers, some seemed to believe that the deeds of a very small minority were penalizing the majority of the area's young people who were not guilty of misconduct.

Minor stated that he believed teenagers were being "dumped" in Groveport to find their own means of recreation and that such a situation will not be tolerated by the law enforcement officers.

Penney Stores Celebrate 88th Birthday Of Founder

Local J. C. Penney stores are this week celebrating the birthday of the founder of the organization, James Cash Penney, who is now 88 years of age. This past week Mr. Penney pointed with pride to the company's younger staff which will carry on the organization's expansion, and he sees no limit to the Penney's growth in the next 10 years. "We have just begun to scratch the surface," he says.

The Golden Rule merchant, often referred to as "the man with over a thousand partners," says he will not retire as long as he has his health. He still believes in "watching the store."

He continues to spend two days a week in his office on W. 34th-st in New York. On the side, his hobbies are his farm and his writing. He drinks buttermilk and can eat "anything but nails."

Last year the Penney Co. did $1,300,000,000 in business and he expects an increase of about 10 per cent this year.

On a recent visit to a California Penney store, the founder noticed two customers standing idle and he turned to the store manager and said, "No one is waiting on them. I'll take one. You take the other."

Local Penney stores are offering numerous outstanding merchandise items in connection with the founder's birthday.

BIDS FOR SHADEVILLE SEWAGE PLANT LOW

Consultant engineers for the City of Columbus will meet with L. E. Rigby, superintendent of the sewage treatment plant to examine bids received Tuesday for construction of service and administration buildings for the $15 million plant near Shadeville.

Apparent low bids revealed that four individual bidders submitted proposals totaling $50,000 less than a package proposal from a single bidder.

Apparent low bidders included Harry E. Miller Co., Columbus, $833,659 or $826,669 (including alternate costs based on types of doors and windows), general contract; J. A. Guy, Inc., $12,700, plumbing; Limbach Co., Columbus, $94,000, heating, air conditioning and ventilation; and Electric Power Equipment Co., Columbus, $109,462, electrical.

The package bid of $1,099,724 was submitted by E. P. Coady Co., Columbus.

The buildings, to be constructed on a 168-acre site south of Shadeville, had been given a total construction estimate of $1,245,320.

Bids were also received Tuesday for improvement of Indianola-av and extension of W. North Broadway.

Apparent low bidder for the Indianola-av project between Morse-rd and the city's north corporation line was Decker Construction Co., Obetz, with a bid of $140,312.25. Cost estimate was $181,221.50.

Of four firms bidding on the W. North Broadway extension, Howard Phillips, Inc., Hilliard, submitted the apparent low bid of $21,081. Estimated cost was $23,594.25. The project will extend W. North Broadway for approximately 500 feet between Clearview-av and Kenny-rd.

Recommendations on the bids from Service Director Ernest H. Stork will be presented for consideration of Columbus City Council at the Oct. 14 meeting.

Local Police Say 'Flim-Flam' Cons Victimize Elderly

By FRANK RYAN

"Flim-flam" and "pigeon-drop" are not terms familiar to the general public. But Columbus police officials say their task in catching "confidence" operators would be less a burden if people were more familiar with the terminology and means of protecting themselves from becoming victims.

(For the benefit of the uninitiated, a definition of the above terms is provided. A confidence man (or woman) is one who gains the confidence of an unsuspecting victim for the purpose of illegally gaining money or other valuables. Flim-flam is a term describing various methods used to bilk the victim. Pigeon-drop is a ruse by which the con man convinces the victim that he has found some money that he will share in return for a "good faith deposit by the victim.")

The subject was broached to local police after a Friday incident in which a Hilltop widow was bilked of $720 by a pair of "flim-flam" artists who posed as bank examiners.

Mrs. Dove Mohn, 77, of 33 S. Hague-av, told police that a redheaded woman and a male companion told her that a West Side bank employe was tampering with her account. They talked the Gold Star mother into turning over to them money she had withdrawn from her account on the pretext that they would check the money for fingerprints. In this way, they said, they could identify the bank employe culprit.

The woman arranged for a cab for the trip to the bank, and picked up the money from Mrs. Mohn when she returned home. When Mrs. Mohn checked with bank officials two hours after turning the money over to the woman she discovered that she was the victim of a cruel hoax.

One of the real tragedies of such incidents, police said, is that senior citizens are the favorite (and almost exclusive) target of the flim-flam operators.

Deputy Police Chief Wayne G. Miller, in charge of the investigation division, explained that "confidence game" operators float from city to city. "By the time we get a report," he said, "they are in another city working on someone else." Miller pointed out that the smooth-talking con men bank on the almost universal nature of older people to want to believe that people are telling the truth.

An insight into the problem was provided by Detective Sgt. Harold E. Moss, in charge of the hotel and bank squad.

Moss said that police investigations are hampered by delay of reports to police, and by the reticence on the part of victims. He said that many times a victim will fail to provide police with all the facts because he is ashamed to admit how easily he was taken in.

"Sometimes it takes some wheedling and investigation to get the whole truth," Moss said. "People will wait in a particular spot for three or four hours before they decide they have been bilked. They sometimes delay reporting the incident for days," he added.

Some Don't Report

The confidence man, Moss reminded, banks on the fact that out of a given number of victims some won't report the incident, while others will delay reporting for at least several hours. This affords the con man an almost assured guarantee of a good head start to the next city and the next victim.

But if the chances of success as a flim-flam or pigeon-drop artist seem good at this point, don't bank on a long, uninterrupted run in the questionable profession. Police are not without their own devices for protecting people who fail to protect themselves.

Moss explained that the Columbus Police Department exchanges information with many other departments in such cities as Detroit, Pittsburgh, Chicago, Washington and other areas, as well as other Ohio cities.

Working in cooperation on the mutual problem, many departments have combined in establishing a file of pictures and fingerprints of known con men. As suspects are arrested in almost any major city, they are photographed and fingerprinted.

As an example of inter-department workings, Moss cited cases of suspicious persons who are checked out in the vicinity of banks in the city. If a suspect is found to have any past record in the "confidence game," or otherwise fails to check out to police satisfaction, he is charged as a suspicious person. Thus police are afford the time to photograph and fingerprint the suspect and check with other police departments to see if the man is wanted.

The exchange of pictures between police departments also affords the opportunity for showing victims photographs in the hope that they may identify the con man. The availability of pictures and fingerprints also serve to foil the operators who use aliases as they float from city to city.

In all, it seems apparent that even the most confident confidence men meet their match sooner or later.

But both Moss and Deputy Chief Miller stressed that the best deterrent to the nefarious activities of the con artist is a wary potential victim. "Do a little checking BEFORE you part with any money or valuables," they warn.

Mrs. Kedron Heckner

All Nominees Winners In This Contest

"We all came home feeling we had won," one of the 1962 local winners of the Suburban Homemaker of the Year contest; recently said.

Mrs. Kedron Heckner, 161 Topsfield-rd, Lincoln Village, also related, "Both the reception in Chicago and the attitudes of friends made all the homemakers feel that they had been winners even though they had lost in the national competition."

"The compliments and friendship that my neighbor and friend, Mrs. Richard Morgan, gave me through her nomination was every bit as thrilling as the wonderful trip to Chicago."

Her husband and youngsters also shared in her "days of glory" with their enthusiasm and best wishes. She is convinced that the marvelous experience can never be duplicated.

"The Suburban Press Foundation is doing a remarkable job to create appreciation for the unsung heroine — the homemaker — by making the contest possible," she related.

She declared that the greatest tribute you can give a wife, mother or friend is to nominate her for the contest. Also, a letter of 500 words is really very easy to write, she added. With five nominations in mind, however, the difficult decision for Mrs. Heckner is which homemaker to select.

Criticisms Won't Hypnotize Voters, Westlake Declares

Columbus Mayor W. Ralston Westlake presented an eight-point platform in his re-election bid before a Sept. 26 breakfast press conference at the Fort Hayes Hotel and told the gathering: "We have possibly been outdistanced in one respect — talk.

"It is not difficult to talk a good game," Westlake said, "but it doesn't change the result on the scoreboard."

The Republican candidate read a page of statistical data in support of his contention that "we have out-performed and out-scored the previous six years by spectacular margins in practically every important phase of city government."

Westlake, taking note of criticisms leveled at his administration by his Democratic opponent, M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, told newsmen: "Attempts to criticize the record of this administration are not likely to put the voters into such a hypnotic trance that they will forget the failures of the previous six years."

The eight-point platform listed by Westlake included the following:

1. Construction of a single office building to house all city and county offices and courts. This, he said, would save millions of dollars in construction and maintenance costs, and would give the public a one-stop facility. He said it would also provide better communications and working relations between all public offices.

2. Completion of the master plan and coordination of future programming of all agencies to carry out the plan.

3. Start work on long-range urban redevelopment planning.

4. Update periodically all codes and regulations, and continue full enforcement of such codes and regulations.

5. Continue full cooperation with Ohio State University and Battelle Memorial Institute in the solution of their problems of growth and expansion.

6. Continue expansion and improvement of the Columbus Zoo according to the zoo master plan prepared by the present administration.

7. Continue expansion of parks and recreational facilities; with immediate emphasis on a municipal golf course on the East Side, indoor swimming pool on the near North Side and beautification of the downtown river front, improving the area for boating, picnicking and possible installation of over-the-water restaurants.

8. Lay the groundwork for development of a more adequate and possibly a new system of mass transportation.

Lower Scioto Park Work Moving Along

A progress report covering the Lower Scioto Park, adjacent to the Greenlawn Dam, was released this week by J. Richard Lawwill, superintendent of parks, following presentation to the Columbus Park Commission of a master plan for development of the area. In it Lawwill said:

"This area was turned over to the Division of Parks and Forestry in 1962 when the Downtown Area Committee was stressing the development of the streams in the downtown area for recreation and beauty.

"When the area was received, the division built public restrooms on Whittier-st near the lower fishing area. These cost $6,500. It was decided to study the area for long-range development, but the construction of the innerbelt expressway moved plans along much faster than anticipated.

"In the past two months, with the cooperation of the Great Lakes Construction Co. of Cleveland, 210,000 cubic yards of earth have been placed in the park area, Lawwill continued.

"This earth was used to grade the fishing area near the dam and provide for an entrance road, parking area and boat launching ramps, grade the heliport for drainage, and to provide picnic areas.

"A mounded area was also created where it is planned to place a shelter or a restaurant which will overlook the wide expanse of water in the pool above the dam.

"Conceived as an extension of the Civic Center, this development with tree lined drives and a view of the river on one side and the city skyline on the other, will be a real asset to the city."

In addition to Lower Scioto Park, fill is being used from the expressway for developing Wheeler Park in the Goodale Slum Clearance Project and for Southview Playfield.

2 Day Open House Tops-Off Dedication At Citizen Center

A community concerned with the comforts and needs of its older folks dedicated the $2.5 million Senior Citizens Recreation Center and Sunshine Terrace here Thursday and will open them to public view Friday and Sunday.

The recreation center and separate 11-floor apartment, located in a garden complex at Sullivant-av and McDowell-st, is known nationally for its unique design.

Both units will hold open house all day Friday and again from 1 to 5 p.m. Sunday. Many of the tenants are inviting their friends Sunday. Some of the apartments will be open for inspection. The recreation center will feature displays, demonstrations and music presentations.

The Sunshine Terrace-Senior Citizens Center project is receiving national attention as an outstanding example of cooperation between city government and a housing authority.

The concept was approved March, 1958. The City of Columbus paid for 20 per cent of the land and 90 per cent of the recreation center. CMHA paid the remaining 10 per cent, as well as the total cost (about $2 million) of the high-rise apartment.

"The apartment is home to 254 persons aged 60 and over living on low income retirement," said management assistant Earl Ross. "Rents average about $38 a month in the the 180 units."

"Already we have nearly 1000 people on our waiting list," he added." About 80 per cent are widows."

The two-floor Senior Citizens Center is the bright spot in the social lives of 1200 Columbus area older people. While many participants live in Sunshine Terrace, most come considerable distance by bus, taxi or with friends. A special bus stops at the door (275 McDowell-st) on Wednesday evenings.

The program flows smoothly, having been founded seven years ago and conducted until now in the basement of Old Memorial Hall. Trained recreation specialists, staffed by the city, and a Senior Citizens Council run the center five days and two nights a week. Many other civic groups lend a helping hand.

Facilities suit a wide range of tastes. There are rooms for wood working, photography, billiards, cards, shuffleboard, a branch of the Columbus Public Library, music room, kitchen, various meeting rooms and an auditorium big enough for dramatics, lectures, games and dances. Outdoor grills, horseshoe and shuffleboard courts are available.

Many of the participants take specially arranged tours, do volunteer service work for the needy, or sell samples of their handiwork for extra money.

Mrs. Francis Fowler is director of the center.

The Spectator By C.C. Hartley

A Coming Event . . .

The long hand of winter is pushing down from the North and this past week we saw the truth of the change in seasons.

The place was the French River in Northern Ontario where the summer was the playground for the singing birds and the wild flowers.

Today the sounds are only those of a cool wind from the north and the song is that of the breezes through the pine trees and wave high waters.

Jack Frost has already visited the Northland and his artistry is displayed on every hill and valley. The blueberry bush is like a plush red carpet and every gust of wind causes the soil and rocks to pull up another blanket of pine needles and falling leaves.

On display are the unmatched yellow of the white birch, the crimson of the maple and the maroon of the scrub oak, all against a setting of tall evergreens and blue sky.

The whole scene is one of beauty and serenity, certainly proof to many that such could come only from the

FORMER STUDENTS ATTRIBUTE THEIR SUCCESS IN LIFE TO HER

"If you were ladies, I'd weep."

But it was not ladies that Miss Isabelle Wallace faced last week but the South Side Optimist Club members and their guests. And each was a man.

Miss Wallace, veteran teacher, recently was selected by the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge as one of those teachers who "beyond and above the call of duty" has instilled in her students the flame of patriotism and an awareness of both the privileges and responsibilities of freedom.

In an effort to spotlight for Miss Wallace the success of her dedication and the part she has taken in the lives of many, the club, under the chairmanship of Ken Olbert, principal of Barrett Junior High, where she has taught since 1924, brought together some of her students. And in spite of her threat of tears, the occasion was deemed by her as one of the "cherished hours of my life."

Leon Loechler, past president of the Columbus Bar Association, claiming that he had been one of her "bad boys," credited Miss Wallace, along with "Cap" Hoover, long-time Y director, who was also present, as having helped him find a "fuller life."

Mentioning that she loves kids, he pointed out the

DISMISSAL MOTION DENIED

Sunday Violation Trial Date Is Set

By FRANK RYAN

Columbus Municipal Court Judge Alan E. Schwarzwalder has denied a motion to dismiss Sunday sales violations charges against Ontario Store of Columbus, Inc., 1133 Alum Creek-dr, and two store employes. Trial date of Oct. 17 was set by the court.

Attorneys for the discount store charged discriminatory action by the Columbus Police Department in Sunday closing and sales law enforcement. They asked dismissal of the charges on the grounds that the manner of law enforcement violated the equal protection of the law guarantee contained in the 14th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution.

Three basic questions were cited by the court in the ruling: Can a defendant plead a defense of law enforcement discrimination; if so, with whom does the burden of proof lie, and was evidence presented to substantiate the charge of enforcement discrimination?

While ruling that a proved charge of enforcement discrimination would be sufficient defense in a criminal charge within the State of Ohio, Judge Schwarzwalder declared that proof of the charge rested with the defendants, rather than requiring that the proscution disprove such a charge. The court concluded that evidence presented by the Ontario attorneys failed to substantiate the charge of discriminatory enforcement.

The pre-trial court action instituted by Ontario attorneys stemmed from a Columbus police citation

Joe Ronson Thanks Many For Sale Help

Joe Ronson, as chairman of the annual auction held last month by the South Side Businessmen and Industrial Association, expressed the group's appreciation of the cooperation which made the affair a success.

"Not only are we grateful to the merchants and the individuals who donated the articles which made the sale possible, but to the general public who turned out to answer the auctioneer's calls for higher and higher bids," he said.

Two of the organizations which benefit from the proceeds of the big sale are St. Stephens Community House and the Citizenship Committee which aids aliens seeking naturalization papers and makes them welcome after they become Americans.

The SSBIA also uses the funds from the auction to help

Diverted Land May Be Grazed

The acreage which was diverted on 562 farms in the county during the 1963 feed grain and wheat stabilization program may now be used for grazing.

Effective Oct. 1, special approval became unnecessary for this use of the land, according to ASC county chairman, Owen Van Schoyck, although hay may not yet be harvested.

This relaxation of rules does not apply to land which was taken out of production under the conservation Reserve program, which must be left fallow through the whole year.

DOLLS FROM 12 FOREIGN LANDS will illustrate the theme, "Concord Among Men," at the Columbus Chapter National Secretaries Association meeting, Oct. 17. At left is Miss Catherine Murnane, 24 S. Terrace, an "honorary member," and Miss Josephine Sheskey, coordinator of the club, who spent many evenings designing and making clothes for the dolls. Mounted in pairs, the dolls portray good international relations, as a "typical" American secretary greets her friend from a foreign country with a handclasp. Three clergymen figurines, a rabbi, a priest and a minister, will decorate the speakers' table. Foregoing the affair, Miss Murnane and Miss Sheskey departed Saturday for a two week tour of Europe.

Secretaries Use Dolls To Stress International Goodwill

"Concord Among Men," will be the theme under discussion Thursday, Oct. 17, when the Columbus Chapter National Secretaries Association holds its regular monthly dinner meeting at the University Club, 40 S. Third-st.

Miss Josephine C. Sheskey, coordinator for the club said of the theme, "The Ecumenical Council, launched by the late Pope John XXIII and furthered by Pope Paul VI, has made this type of communication possible. Members of all faiths profit by working together."

The panel will be composed of Fr. James Kraus, St. Charles Borromeo College; Rabbi Jerome D. Folkman, Temple Israel, and Rev. L. W. Burnhard, First English Lutheran Church.

Moderator for the panel will be Mrs. Clare McArtor, past president of the Secretaries Association.

Since its organization in 1946, the Columbus Chapter has grown to a membership of 163. The unit is part of the international organization.

Purpose of the organization is to elevate standards of the secretarial profession, and to encourage secretaries to further their education.

An extensive two-day, 12-hour examination is conducted for secretaries by the organization each year, in various centers throughout the country.

Six areas of proficency are covered, making the test a difficult one. Secretaries passing the examination are given the title, Certified Professional Secretary.

Columbus Chapter awards an annual scholarship to an area high school graduate, to further her education in the secretarial field.

Chapter president is Mrs. Flo Andrews, 2555 Eastcleft-dr; first vice-president, Mrs. Mary Biegler, 239 S. Burgess-av, and Mrs. Mary Ankrom, 3412 Sciotangy-dr, second vice-president and program chairman.

All pastors and official representatives of member churches are invited and visitors are welcome.

Registration for dinner should be made by Oct. 18.

With the current United Appeal campaign under way, what more logical time to feature the South UA cahirman as the day's Outstanding Personality? Phyllis Donovon, nee Burton, was born on Welch-av, but moved to Fornof-rd and attend Fornof School through the eighth grade. She received her high school education at South High and is a graduate of 1948. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burton, have been residents of 240 Southwood-av for 19 years. A sister, Joyce Wallace, resides at 137 Ziegler-rd.

Following her high school graduation, Phyllis worked for the Ohio State Department of Public Welfare as a secretary in the State Service for the Blind. She became Mrs. Richard Donovan on Dec. 17, 1949, continued her working career until the near approach of her daughter Terri, in 1953. She resumed working for awhile in 1955, then retired from the business world when her little family increased to four. The youngest Donovan is Timmy, who will become eight years old on Oct. 19.

Her main activities have included those in church and school, where her executive ability has been fully used. As a member of the executive board of Southwood PTA for five years, she served her first years as chairman of the social and membership committees, before becoming president of the unit. She currently is the secretary for the group. She was magazine chairman during the 1962-63 season for the Columbus Council of the PTA organization. Because the unit magazine chairmen of the city worked so diligently, the Columbus Council was awarded an extra scholarship from the state PTA. This extra scholarship went to a South High school graduate, incidentally. Currently, she is district vice-president of the South Side, with 10 schools under her jurisdiction.

A great amount of her time is spent in her church, which is the Southwood Church of Christ. She has served as communion and social chairman; as president, secretary and treasurer at various times in her class, the Fellowship; taught Sunday School until recently, when she and her husband became sponsors of the junior Christian Endeavor. She is a charter member of the Mother's Club of the church and has held various offices. She taught in the Daily Vacation Bible School for seven years, before assuming the office of director. In 1963 the school average an attendance of 252 children a day, as an indication of the thorough job that has been done in this field. One of the popular features of the past year was the introduction of puppets, which her artistic daughter Terri had made, and were used in skits written by our Outstanding Personality. One of these puppets garnered two second prizes in Camp Fire Girl exhibits, one at the Ohio State Fair, and one at the Arts and Exhibits of the organization last April. Mrs. Donovan has also served as Dean of Girls at Camp Round Lake, in addition to teaching handicraft.

She has held an office in the Southern Way Eastern Star and is presently a sponsor for a Camp Fire group.

The afore-mentioned artistic talent of her daughter Terri comes naturally, as Phyllis finds relaxation in all things manual, such as knitting, crocheting and sewing. This last hobby is especially beneficial, as it enables her to make all of her daugher's clothes. A more recent hobby has been the one of decorating cakes in an artistic fashion. She will be demonstrating this ability to the South Side "Y" Mothers Club on Nov. 19.

She and her husband, an accountant with the Federal government, enjoy taking the youngsters on outings and holding cookouts. Mr. Donovan, equally active in his church, is currently serving as a deacon and is assistant chairman of the board.

Today's Personality is the youngest of this series, but she has accomplished much in a short ten years of community service. We venture to say if her biography were to be written again in another 10 years, that the list of accomplishments will have extended far beyond the confines of this particular area.

Serving a pastorate in an Urkanian-Russian Church in Canada caused Gene Dulin, Toronto, to become interested in the plight of the Russians in their native country. John Huk, also a minister, came by his interest even more naturally, for he was born in White Russia where his father still lives. These two men will be presented at the Southwood Church of Christ at two meetings, one on Monday, Oct. 14, for the men, with a 6:30 p.m. buffet luncheon preceding the illustrated talk, and the other at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday, for the women, with light refreshments to follow.

The men will tell of life behind the Iron Curtain as seen first-hand on a seven-week tour of the communist world. Because of their background, they were able to gain many privileges not accorded to such evangelists as Billy Graham and Oral Roberts. These privileges included visits in homes, speaking in churches and taking pictures of things not usually available. All residents of the South Side area are invited to hear the dynamic presentation of the two men, and are cordially urged to do so.

America the Beautiful . . .

From the time that Columbus discovered America . . . men have thought of this country as something special. It was here that Ponce de Leon sought the Fountain of Youth, and men have long admired America's majestic mountains and beautiful valleys. However, the real beauty lies not in the land, but in the people. The people came . . . seeking a land where they could worship God in freedom, and under God developed a kind and loving spirit. This is what makes America beautiful.

Attend church regularly . . . help keep America beautiful.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH . . . THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

Scout Council Plans Annual Round-up

The annual fall round-up of the Central Ohio Council of the Boy Scouts of America has begun, announced E. P. Hawbecker, chairman.

The purpose of the round-up is to bring back boys who have strayed during the summer, to contact boys who have reached scouting age or recently moved within the area and to increase the number of adults participating in the program.

Included in the activities planned are Uniform Day, Monday, Oct. 14; an Explorer Dance at the Ohio Union Saturday, Oct. 19 during the outdoor scouting weekend with 15 districts participating, and Parents' Night.

Anyone interested in joining the Scouting movement is invited to call headquarters, CL. 3-5513.

Senior Citizens Center

[illegible]

Most important event to occur at the center since it first opened will be the formal dedication ceremonies Oct. 10.

This is the first time in any city that a local housing authority and a local recreation department have cooperated in providing a center adjacent to an apartment building especially designed for those over 65.

Community leaders have been invited to have lunch at the recreation center auditorium and meet the people participating in the program. Guest of honor will be Russell Taylor, N. J. Barrack, Mayor Westlake, members of recreation commission, housing commission, city council and former Mayor Sensenbrenner.

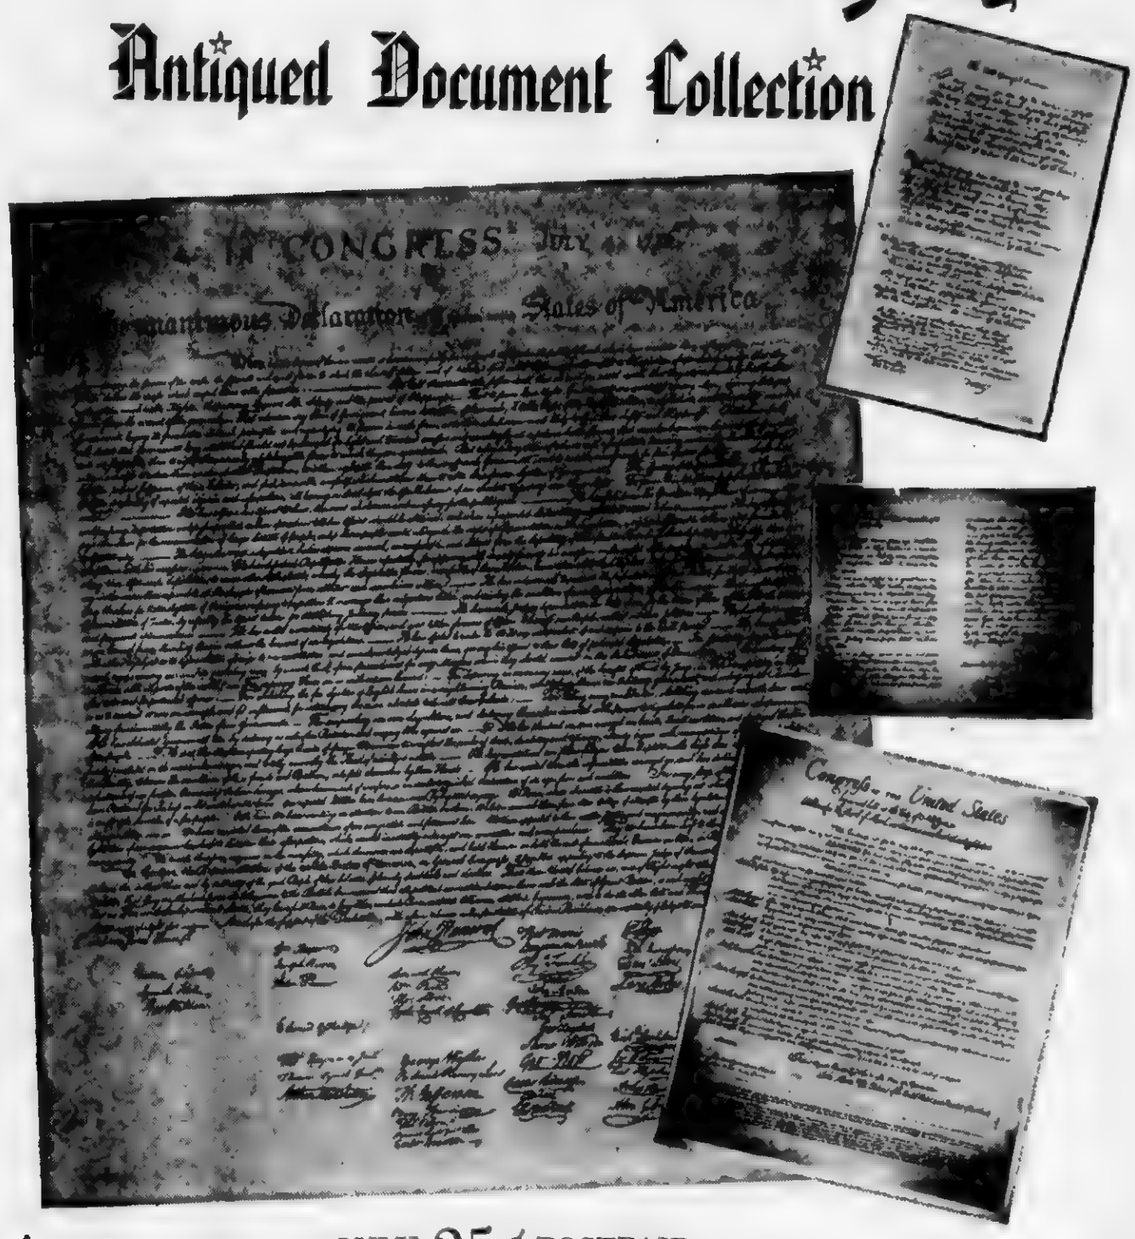
Main dedication will take place at 2 in the garden area adjoining the two buildings.

During the afternoon, the center will have class demonstration work going on for guests to see. In addition there will be articles on display that have been made in the classes.

On Sunday, Oct. 13, there will also be an open house for friends and families of the members of both centers. We hope to reach everyone who is interested in our program for the senior citizens at one of these two opportunities.

Open house on Sunday will be from 1 to 5 in the afternoon.

Many members will be on hand to act as hostesses or serve on the committees.



HAS YOUR FURNACE HAD ITS ANNUAL CHECK-UP?

DOLLS FROM 12 FOREIGN LANDS will illustrate the theme, "Concord Among Men," at the Columbus Chapter National Secretaries Association meeting, Oct. 17. At left is Miss Catherine Murnane, 24 S. Terrace, an "honorary member," and Miss Joesphine Sheskey, coordinator of the club, who spent many evenings designing and making clothes for the dolls. Mounted in pairs, the dolls portray good international relations, as a "typical" American secretary greets her friend from a foreign country with a handclasp. Three clergymen figurines, a rabbi, a priest and a minister, will decorate the speakers' table. Foregoing the affair, Miss Murnane and Miss Sheskey departed Saturday for a two week tour of Europe.

Secretaries Use Dolls To Stress International Goodwill

"Concord Among Men," will be the theme under discussion Thursday, Oct. 17, when the Columbus Chapter National Secretaries Association holds its regular monthly dinner meeting at the University Club, 40 S. Third-st.

Miss Josephine C. Sheskey, coordinator for the club said of the theme, "The Ecumenical Council, launched by the late Pope John XXIII and furthered by Pope Paul VI, has made this type of communication possible. Members of all faiths profit by working together."

The panel will be composed of Fr. James Kraus, St. Charles Borromeo College; Rabbi Jerome D. Folkman, Temple Israel, and Rev. L. W. Burnhard, First English Lutheran Church.

Moderator for the panel will be Mrs. Clare McArtor, past president of the Secretaries Association.

Since its organization in 1946, the Columbus Chapter has grown to a membership of 163. The unit is part of the international organization.

Purpose of the organization is to elevate standards of the secretarial profession, and to encourage secretaries to further their education.

An extensive two-day, 12-hour examination is conducted for secretaries by the organization each year, in various centers throughout the country.

Six areas of proficency are covered, making the test a difficult one. Secretaries passing the examination are given the title, Certified Professional Secretary.

Columbus Chapter awards an annual scholarship to an area high school graduate, to further her education in the secretarial field.

Chapter president is Mrs. Flo Andrews, 2555 Eastcleft-dr; first vice-president, Mrs. Mary Biegler, 239 S. Burgess-av, and Mrs. Mary Ankrom, 3412 Sciotangy-dr, second vice-president and program chairman.

Church Council Plans Assembly

Fall Assembly meeting of the Columbus Area Council of Churches will be held Thursday, Oct. 24, in the Bexley Methodist Church.

A 6:30 p.m. dinner will precede the business meeting with President Ruegg presiding.

Work of the Department of Christian Education will be highlighted; the 1964 budget will be adopted and officers elected.

All pastors and official representatives of member churches are invited and visitors are welcome.

Registration for dinner should be made by Oct. 18.

The Gadabout

Priscilla LaRue Lenox

HI. 4-1851

With the current United Appeal campaign under way, what more logical time to feature the South U'A cahirman as the day's Outstanding Personality? Phyllis Donovon, nee Burton, was born on Welch-av, but moved to Fornof-rd and attend Fornof School through the eighth grade. She received her high school education at South High and is a graduate of 1948. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Burton, have been residents of 240 Southwood-av for 19 years. A sister, Joyce Wallace, resides at 137 Ziegler-rd.

Following her high school graduation, Phyllis worked for the Ohio State Department of Public Welfare as a secretary in the State Service for the Blind. She became Mrs. Richard Donovan on Dec. 17, 1949, continued her working career until the near approach of her daughter Terri, in 1953. She resumed working for awhile in 1955, then retired from the business world when her little family increased to four. The youngest Donovan is Timmy, who will become eight years old on Oct. 19.

Her main activities have included those in church and school, where her executive ability has been fully used. As a member of the executive board of Southwood PTA for five years, she served her first years as chairman of the social and membership committees, before becoming president of the unit. She currently is the secretary for the group. She was magazine chairman during the 1962-63 season for the Columbus Council of the PTA organization. Because the unit magazine chairmen of the city worked so diligently, the Columbus Council was awarded an extra scholarship from the state PTA. This extra scholarship went to a South High school graduate, incidentally. Currently, she is district vice-president of the South Side, with 10 schools under her jurisdiction.

A great amount of her time is spent in her church, which is the Southwood Church of Christ. She has served as communion and social chairman; as president, secretary and treasurer at various times in her class, the Fellowship; taught Sunday School until recently, when she and her husband became sponsors of the junior Christian Endeavor. She is a charter member of the Mother's Club of the church and has held various offices. She taught in the Daily Vacation Bible School for seven years, before assuming the office of director. In 1963 the school average an attendance of 252 children a day, as an indication of the thorough job that has been done in this field. One of the popular features of the past year was the introduction of puppets, which her artistic daughter Terri had made, and were used in skits written by our Outstanding Personality. One of these puppets garnered two second prizes in Camp Fire Girl exhibits, one at the Ohio State Fair, and one at the Arts and Exhibits of the organization last April. Mrs. Donovan has also served as Dean of Girls at Camp Round Lake, in addition to teaching handicraft.

She has held an office in the Southern Way Eastern Star and is presently a sponsor for a Camp Fire group.

The afore-mentioned artistic talent of her daughter Terri comes naturally, as Phyllis finds relaxation in all things manual, such as knitting, crocheting and sewing. This last hobby is especially beneficial, as it enables her to make all of her daugher's clothes. A more recent hobby has been the one of decorating cakes in an artistic fashion. She will be demonstrating this ability to the South Side "Y" Mothers Club on Nov. 19.

She and her husband, an accountant with the Federal government, enjoy taking the youngsters on outings and holding cookouts. Mr. Donovan, equally active in his church, is currently serving as a deacon and is assistant chairman of the board.

Today's Personality is the youngest of this series, but she has accomplished much in a short ten years of community service. We venture to say if her biography were to be written again in another 10 years, that the list of accomplishments will have extended far beyond the confines of this particular area.

The Farmer's Almanac predicts variable and unsettled weather around the nation for the week, but these children will all say one day is fair for them at this time—their own individual birthday: Diana Cooper, Jackie McCallister, Jeffrey Moore, Jon Burgess, Drema Harrison, Edith McGinnis, Vickie Lind, Virginia Naugle, Terry Koon, Danny Toth, Jeff Feil, Kathy Walters, Debby Baum, Peggy Roberts, Robin Pope, Regina Pennington, Tony Alexander, Michael Seemueller, Sandra Wilson, John Waidner, Diane Kessler, Kenneth McLaughlin, Mark Wells and Mary Ann White.

Serving a pastorate in an Urkanian-Russian Church in Canada caused Gene Dulin, Toronto, to become interested in the plight of the Russians in their native country. John Huk, also a minister, came by his interest even more naturally, for he was born in White Russia where his father still lives. These two men will be presented at the Southwood Church of Christ at two meetings, one on Monday, Oct. 14, for the men, with a 6:30 p.m. buffet luncheon preceding the illustrated talk, and the other at 1:15 p.m. Tuesday, for the women, with light refreshments to follow.

The men will tell of life behind the Iron Curtain as seen first-hand on a seven-week tour of the communist world. Because of their background, they were able to gain many privileges not accorded to such evangelists as Billy Graham and Oral Roberts. These privileges included visits in homes, speaking in churches and taking pictures of things not usually available. All residents of the South Side area are invited to hear the dynamic presentation of the two men, and are cordially urged to do so.

However, the real beauty lies not in the land, but in the people. The people came . . . seeking a land where they could worship God in freedom, and under God developed a kind and loving spirit. This is what makes America beautiful.
Attend church regularly . . . help keep America beautiful.
The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.
EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH . . . THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

Scout Council Plans Annual Round-up

The annual fall round-up of the Central Ohio Council of the Boy Scouts of America has begun, announced E. P. Hawbecker, chairman.

The purpose of the round-up is to bring back boys who have strayed during the summer, to contact boys who have reached scouting age or recently moved within the area and to increase the number of adults participating in the program.

Included in the activities planned are Uniform Day, Monday, Oct. 14; an Explorer Dance at the Ohio Union Saturday, Oct. 19 during the outdoor scouting weekend with 15 districts participating, and Parents' Night.

Anyone interested in joining the Scouting movement is invited to call headquarters, CL. 3-5513.

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

Most important event to occur at the center since it first opened will be the formal dedication ceremonies Oct. 10.

This is the first time in any city that a local housing authority and a local recreation department have cooperated in providing a center adjacent to an apartment building especially designed for those over 65.

Community leaders have been invited to have lunch at the recreation center auditorium and meet the people participating in the program. Guest of honor will be Russell Taylor, N. J. Barrack, Mayor Westlake, members of recreation commission, housing commission, city council and former Mayor Sensenbrenner.

Main dedication will take place at 2 in the garden area adjoining the two buildings.

During the afternoon, the center will have class demonstration work going on for guests to see. In addition there will be articles on display that have been made in the classes.

On Sunday, Oct. 13, there will also be an open house for friends and families of the members of both centers. We hope to reach everyone who is interested in our program for the senior citizens at one of these two opportunities.

Open house on Sunday will be from 1 to 5 in the afternoon.

Many members will be on hand to act as hostesses or serve on the committees.

RAMS 'BUTT' EAGLES

Bulldogs March On Toward CL Pennant

South High's powerful Bulldogs kept their unbeaten record intact (5-0 overall, 3-0 in league) Friday as they whipped Linden, 16-6.

Other South Side teams were not as lucky, with only St. Marys coming through with a 26-8 win over New Albany.

ROSARY LOST to Academy, 24-6, while Marion-Franklin and Aquinas fell to Eastmoor and Central respectively by identical 22-6 scores.

SOUTH 16, LINDEN 6

South's double shot of TNT, Lloyd and Paul Pate, scored all except two of the Rebs' 16 points.

Linden did take a 6-0 lead with 3:58 left in the first frame, but that's the last they saw of paydirt the remainder of the evening.

THE TNT exploded just as the half ended when Lloyd bulled over the goal line from five yards out.

The third period saw no action in the way of scoring, as both teams battled to a standstill.

The Bulldogs hit hard again in the fourth quarter. Joe Cook got the ball rolling by blocking a Linden punt in the end zone for a safety and an 8-6 Reb lead.

THE SAFETY was good enough for the win but Paul Pate made another bang on a five-yard TD run and then grabbed quarterback Jerry Robison's pass for the extra points to end the Bulldog explosion.

ST. MARYS 26, NEW ALBANY 8

The Rams stayed within striking distance of the FCL lead with an easy win over the Eagles.

Things didn't exactly start out right for the Rams as they fumbled the opening kickoff and found themselves with their backs to the wall until the defense stalled an NA drive on the St. Marys 16.

THE EAGLES had two more opportunities in that same first period, driving to the Ram 18 and later, the nine before fumbling both times. After that, it was all St. Marys.

Fullback Jack Gassman put the Rams ahead to stay following the first of the Eagle bobbles when he set sail on an 82-yard sideline touchdown gallop with 7:36 remaining in the first period.

Gassman cleared the last of two Eagle defenders with a vigorous straight-arm that discouraged both tacklers with a single effort.

GASSMAN SCORED again in the second period on a similar 21-yard jaunt and halfback Bob Ruscilli ran the count to 20-0 at intermission with a six-yard score.

The final TD came with 3:11 remaining in the third frame when quarterback Jim Yates eluded onrushing Eagle tacklers and then calmly hit end Paul Stickel, who was all alone in the end zone, with an 11-yard aerial.

For the Rams, it was the third win in four tries this fall and the victory gained them a share of second place in the FCL standings.

ACADEMY 24, ROSARY 6

THE VIKINGS used a pair of long touchdown runs to chill the Crusaders.

Rosary, trailing 12-0 in the third period, got back into the game when Butch Michael capped a Green-and-White drive with a 10-yard score.

But Academy struck back with a pair of TDs in the final period to seal the Crusaders' doom. Big spoiler was John Larrimer's 67-yard run, his second score of the evening.

THE VIKINGS outgained the Crusaders in total yardage, 375-242, with the bulk of the gains coming on the ground.

The setback dropped Rosary's seasonal mark to 1-3.

EASTMOOR 22, MARION-FRANKLIN 6

Ron Bollie's pair of touchdown runs provided Eastmoor with the impetus to drop the Red Devils Friday evening.

Bollie hit paydirt on gallops of 17 and 25 yards as the Warriors handed M-F its fourth setback in five games this fall.

ERWIN ANDY brought the Devils up to a 14-6 third-period deficit with a short touchdown plunge but M-F could come no closer as Jerry Agges ran in from the three in the final period to increase the margin to 16 points.

CENTRAL 22, AQUINAS 6

Long touchdown runs by George Broadnax and Jim Alexander also set the pace for the Pirates in their fifth straight win at the expense of the Terriers.

Irish quarterback Pat Noles, who hit on seven of 12 passes, combined for Aquinas' lone score when he found end Jim Vincent on a 21-yard TD toss.

FRIDAY NIGHT play finds St. Marys (4-1) visiting Reynoldsburg (2-3), Rosary (1-3) traveling to Hamilton Township (1-4) for the Rangers' homecoming, Aquinas (1-2-2) journeying to North (0-5), Marion-Franklin (1-4) hosting Brookhaven (1-4) and South (5-0) stopping off at Walnut Ridge (1-4).

JACK THE RIPPER—St. Marys' fullback Jack Gassman (right) appears to be in a jam as three New Albany tacklers zero in on the Ram runner. Pictures can be misleading, however, as Gassman eluded one tackler (behind runner), straight-armed another (foreground) and outran everyone else to the end zone for an 82-yard first-period TD that gave the Rams an early 6-0 lead.

SCHNEIDER STOPPED — New Albany halfback Tom Schneider (21) looks desperately for running room as he tries to slip away from St. Marys' George Neugebauer (30) on a fourth-period end run try Friday evening. The Ram tackler managed to hold on until help arrived and Schneider had to settle for a ten-yard loss.

PIGSKIN BALLET — The show's quite a bit different than the one you'd see on the stage but the footwork looks about the same as St. Marys' Mike Hodge (right) leaps in the air to pilfer a New Albany pass intended for Eagle halfback Tom Schneider (21) in third-period play Saturday evening at South. Ready at left to lead Hodge's interference is Rams' George Neugebauer (30).

'Fearless' Predictions

It isn't often that the "fearless one" has an opportunity to boast but he called Monday to remind us his weekend roundup included 20 'rights' and only three 'wrongs' (best single week average in two years).

"Fearless" admitted that he had offered his Series pick (Dodgers - four in a row) to a national magazine but they had hung up on him.

CURRENT LOCAL mark is 64-27-2. The sixth week analysis follows:

ST. MARYS - REYNOLDSBURG — Raiders stay in FCL race. Reynoldsburg.

ROSARY - HAMILTON TWP. — Crusaders get second. Rosary.

HARTLEY - READY — Hawks unseat Knights. Hartley.

ACADEMY - DUBLIN — Shamrocks comin' but Vikings have Larrimer. Academy.

WEST - CENTRAL — First of City League showdowns. Could go either way but . . . Central.

AQUINAS - NORTH — Irish keep dimming title hopes alive, Aquinas.

BEXLEY - MT. VERNON — Ripe for upset but . . . Mt. Vernon.

WHITEHALL - DELAWARE — Angry Rams, Whitehall.

GROVE CITY - LONDON — Bridge falls down. G-C.

WEST JEFFERSON - NEW ALBANY — Letdown could be fatal but . . . W-J.

SOUTH - WALNUT RIDGE — Rebs keep record clean. South.

HILLIARD - MIFFLIN — Cats hang on in Mid-Eight race. Hilliard.

PLEASANT VIEW - GREENFIELD — Track of the Cat. P-V.

MARION - FRANKLIN - BROOKHAVEN — Could go either way. Brookhaven.

CANAL WINCHESTER - FRANKFORT — A "frank" prediction. Frankfort.

CARROLL - LIBERTY UNION — Too many horses. L-U.

GAHANNA - MARYSVILLE — Visitors will still be looking for first win. Gahanna.

GROVEPORT - WESTERVILLE — Cruisers best in sight but could be a squeeze. Groveport.

TEAYS VALLEY - LANCASTER FENWICK — 'Castor oil. Fenwick.

WATKINS MEMORIAL - HEATH — String along. W-M.

FRANKLIN HGTS. - MIAMI TRACE — Falcons can do but . . . Miami Trace.

Erie's Temper Trims Weekend Fishing Trip

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

Ron Carlson, his son, Bruce, and I literally got blown off of Lake Erie the other weekend when we were up to get in on some of the good perch and bass fishing. For several years the fall fishing has been excellent in the lake, and it's going strong again if you can get out on the water.

But strong winds have been plaguing anglers, for Lake Erie is no place to be when the wind is blowing. The weather is always a factor up there, but somehow seems to be worse this year.

WE WENT UP on Saturday morning, trailering Carlson's 18½-foot outboard boat. Launching the boat at West Harbor we headed north to South Bass Island. An east wind was already blowing, so we fished in the lee of the island with a cluster of boats already in position. Here we stayed all day, with a few minor shifts aimed at trying to find larger perch.

We never did hit a hot spot, where the perch grabbed our minnows steadily. But we caught enough to keep things interesting. Our perch were small ones, and this has been the report of most fishermen this year. The most excitement occurred when Bruce hauled in a nice-sized sheepshead.

That evening we cooked a shore dinner on the island, that featured our catch of the day — deep-fried perch. After talking to a couple of the local people at Put-In-Bay we learned that the larger perch and smallmouth bass were being caught on West Reef, of the west side of North Bass Island. Our sleep was aided that night by the gently rocking boat and dreams of a big catch the next day.

BUT THE weatherman had other ideas. By 7 a.m. on Sunday, gale warnings were up and the blasts from the north made the winds we fought on Saturday seem like breezes. To make a long story short, we arranged dockage for the boat and left it there, and we returned to the mainland on the ferry.

All in all it was not a first-class fishing trip. But it's always stimulating to see Lake Erie in an angry mood; to watch Mother Nature kick up her heels a little.

And really, perch are not the gamiest fish in the world. Perch fishing is an excuse to get out on the water and to collect some mighty fine eatin' fish. This we did. The main reason for doing any type of fishing is to get outdoors and relax. So we chalked the trip up as a success, even if we did come home without a boat.

CBS Kart Races Set For Winter

The CBS Speedway's improvement project will be completed this week with the large pit area and both bleachers sheltered under roof.

The blacktop has also been resurfaced for the winter months. There will also be a special heater installed at the Speedway under the roof for comfort and many other facilities to accommodate the drivers.

STARTING Sunday afternoon, Oct. 13, and for every following Sunday, the Speedway will run all winter long.

The Wednesday evening races will continue as long as the evenings are warm. At present the CBS auctions are held every other Sunday afternoon.

WINNERS of the last events were Bob Skeen, Jim Kelly, Roger Pinnix, Don Greeno, Jerry French, Neil Gerey, Dick Hamilton (all of Columbus), Cletus Kuhns Jr., Circleville; John Gaddis, Roseville, Larry Weisenstein, Reynoldsburg, and Larry Wrightsel, Harrisburg.

There were 17 million Americans aged 65 and over in the nation last year, an increase of four million from 10 years ago.

A 'Miracle' In LA And Big Luke Comes Home

The odds were staggering but it's in the record book now. The '63 LA Dodgers in four straight.

The post-series autopsy is simple to understand. It was a job of masterful Dodger pitching. The Yankees never led in any of the four games.

THE PATENTED Yankee 'big hit' was missing as was the home run. For the Dodgers, it was methodical Sandy Koufax, crafty veteran Johnny Podres and Don Drysdale, the third mound star who didn't want to be tabbed as "that guy who didn't beat the Yankees in the '63 series."

Maybe it was all over before the third game, but this, in our belief, was the turning point. With their backs to the wall, NY couldn't muster a single run off Drysdale.

Lost in the spotlight of Dodger pitching were a pair of fine performances by a couple of guys named Bouton and Ford.

A SINGLE that bounced off Richardson's knee cost Bouton the third game and Pepitone's muff in the final round spoiled Ford's two-hitter, probably the best mound showing of the series.

Still, you have to go with Koufax, who hammered two of the nails in the coffin of the '63 Yankees who had been (at least for the first 161 games of the season) the AL's own home-brewed version of the Costa Nosta.

It was certainly a week of "miracles" as comic-strip fans will agree. (Little Orphan Annie's second recent survival in a mid-air airplane explosion).

ON THE home front, local favorite Jerry Lucas made his long - awaited "homecoming" appearance Sunday evening at the Coliseum as his Royals dropped a 117-102 exhibition verdict to the New York Knicks.

Luke finished with nine points including three goals. The ex All-American had three of nine attempts on our scorecard tally when we departed with eight minutes left to play.

As far as we could determine, the biggest question mark to Luke's NBA future seems to be his stamina. The game is rough and Jerry's playing with the big boys now.

OF COURSE, it's only one game but Lucas looked plenty fatigued when he departed in the first half with 6:39 remaining.

Luke reported himself in top condition before joining the Royals and the one-year layoff hasn't affected his court ability.

But the NBA path is a grueling one to follow and not all of the top collegiates have been able to cope with the physical strain it demands.

THERE CAN be little doubt that big Luke will make the Royals an NBA contender this season, but to expect him to blossom into a leading pro-basketball star in his frosh try might be asking a little bit too much.

Actually, smiling Art Heyman stole the "rookie" spotlight. The Duke All-American presented a dazzling performance despite the fact he was defensed by Oscar Robertson.

Heyman has a quality Luke has always lacked. He will shoot the ball—often. This is what the pro game is all about.

BITS OF WITT—One of the strange oddities of football had OSU tackle Doug Van-Horn blocking passes from Indiana QB Frank Stavroff Saturday.

Doug supplied the protection for teammate Frank when both played together a Eastmoor a couple of years ago.

On the other hand, Capital U. QB Ron Paxson teamed with end Larry Gornall to set six school records and tie a seventh in the Crusaders' 41-25 loss to Baldwin-Wallace Saturday. It was quite another story in high school with Ron pitching for Whitehall and Larry catching for Eastmoor—two East Side rivals.

AREA RACING fans will be happy to hear that Gov. Rhodes' Little Hoover Commission made no "sweeping" suggestions for a change in the "modus operandi" of the State Racing Commission.

Only recommendations were minor — executive secretary should establish retention schedules on filed material and records and cross-index and combine active files relating to personnel, licensing and other commission matters.

GARY KRIGBAUM, co-owner of the South Side's Press Box Cafe, compiled one of the finest pitching records in the slo-pitch ranks this summer.

Gary, tossing for Miller's Builders, racked up 48 wins and took but nine defeats. Biggest thrill—two wins in one day against Slo-pitch champs Club 185.

Football Contest Going Full Tilt

..Gee whiz! I don't know nuthin' about football, so how can I expect to win any money in Hartley Newspapers' giant football contest?

There's a good chance that this remark has been made during the last week in your own home. The truth of the matter is that every weekend, even our so-called "experts" in pigskin predictions find they don't know nearly as much as they thought they knew.

A football takes some mighty weird bounces, and consequently the outcome of football games each week is subject to all sorts of unpredictable outcomes.

It's for this reason that the little mother in the family household is able to compete with the local sports editor in guessing who is going to win that game.

Hartley Newspapers' big weekly football contest is a "nothing to buy — no obligation" kind of contest.

In the advertisements on this page are listed 16 top games to be played on the weekend of Oct. 19. Games in the collegiate, professional and local high school ranks have been included to make the contest more interesting to everyone.

Simply fill in the official entry blank, and don't forget to print the advertiser's name on the left side of the blank along with your selections down the right side.

Games resulting in ties will be disregarded unless the contestant specifies them as such on the entry blank.

Remember the deadline! The contest today pertains to games being played on the weekend of Oct. 19. No entries will be accepted unless postmarked before midnight, Oct. 22.

Winners will be notified by telephone and their names will be printed the week following the games.

Be doubly sure your blank is sent to the Football Contest Editor of this newspaper, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus 4, Ohio.

'HE' GETS LETTERS . . .

Well, Fearless, you did it again! Way to pull through there, fella. Boy! This time you really lassed up. Picking Amanda (the best Canal Winchester) was a bad idea, wasn't it? Especially if you consider that they DIDN'T EVEN SCORE.

However, you are not a total failure — not quite. Maybe you have a thing going for us. You predict we'll lose — we win. If this keeps up, we really wish you'd continue predicting this way all season.

IT MAKES US look terrific, and makes you look . . . well, you KNOW how it makes you look.

Don't be discouraged. No one is perfect. Besides, how does that saying go? "Nothing is so dull as perfection." I guess it's better to have a catchy little column (even if it is wrong) than to have a boring one.

Something else we've been wondering: You get paid for this miserable guessing? Maybe journalism is a good career to consider.

IF I COULD write a column like yours, I wouldn't have a thing to worry about. Besides, I'd get clever letters to read from people like me. (You must have thought that the last one wasn't too bad since you printed it).

We'll be checking your column this week.

"Fearless Fan Club"

(We presume)

Dear fans,
Flattery will get you nowhere. Now I'm confused. I don't know if you love me or not (mail deliver are out of season).

BOGGONE IT! Now you know who I am — an ex-Canal Winchester-ite who wants to keep you Indians on the warpath!

I do get paid for my "miserable" guesses. How else could I afford my Joe Valachi-model bullet-proof vest?

And remember, study hard and you too can someday write a "catchy" little column like mine. That's what's so wonderful about this country.

YOUR LETTER was clever, dog-gone it. I'm afraid more people are looking forward to your letters than my predictions.

I only have one fear. What if I'm right one of these weeks. I'll probably never hear from you again!

Keep smiling.

Pirates, AC Maintain Ohio Bearcat Deadlock

The Westside Pirates won their third league victory by edging an aggressive Milo-Roc eleven, 14-0, Sunday in Ohio Bearcat League play.

After a shaky first quarter, the Pirates came alive with Ted Hopkins intercepting a Milo pass and racing to midfield.

KENNY JACKSON then broke to the outside for 45 yards before being hauled down on the five. Fullback Ralph O'Brien powered up the middle for the TD.

Late in the fourth stanza, Reginald Scott intercepted a pass for the Pirates deep in Milo-Roc territory. Several plays later, Kenny Jackson bombed over tackle for 15 yards and the TD.

Sonny Watson carried the ball over center for the extra points.

MARYLAND AC kept its record clean by downing the Westgate Bears 34-0, at Maryland Park.

Halfback Larry Davis found the goal line three times to lead the offense for Maryland. Maryland is tied with the Pirates with a 3-0 mark.

At Southview, the Southside Eagles had little trouble in defeating the Lockbourne Skyhawks, 56-6. Joe Jefferson scored a total of 24 points to lead the winners.

SUNDAY'S action finds the Lockbourne Skyhawks hosting Maryland AC at 2:30 p. m.

At Starling Field, the Southside Eagles play Milo-Roc-Mendel at 1:30 p.m. and the Westside Pirates host the Westgate Bears at 2:30 p.m.

It will be homecoming for the Pirates. The parents of the players will be honored and a queen will be picked from the cheerleaders.

Oct. 26 Nomination Deadline Set For Suburban Homemaker Contest

Hartley Newspapers announces Saturday, Oct. 26, is the deadline for Suburban Homemaker nominations. This is an opportunity for husbands, parents, children over 15 years of age, aunts, uncles and neighbors to acknowledge qualities often taken for granted.

You may give a person credit for these qualities as a homemaker by writing a letter of not more than 500 words to the Suburban Homemaker Editor, Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus.

Outline your reasons why your nominee should be a Suburban Homemaker of the year. She could be the winner of a $5,000 cash award presented in Chicago in November.

Local winners will be selected by a committee of qualified judges from the Columbus area. They will be announced later.

Mrs. Philip Wagner, Cedar Hill-rd ,Canal Winchester, was the 1962 local winner. In an interview Mrs. Wagner said "The experience I had last November was very rewarding and I will always be grateful to the Hartley Newspapers for the experience. Being acknowledged as a homemaker is a very happy experience and creates a desire to do a better job.

One of last year's letters written by a daughter nominating her mother said, "The apex of importance, however, is the attitude that prevails at home. I never avoided wrong because I would be severely punished. Rather, I strived toward what I thought was right because I wanted my mother to be proud of me. A mother who can create a love like this within her family has truly made the home what it should be. I feel that my mother is the epitome of what a homemaker should be."

Another runner-up nominated by her aunt was recognized in this way: "I would like to nominate my niece for the role of Suburban Homemaker of the year. She has been married nine years and has two children. She also is a foster parent of three children under three years of age. They attend church on Sunday as a family. She is very active in many organizations and though she is away from home many hours, anyone can see by her home that she spends many hours on hobbies that help beautify her lovely six-room home. There are many more things that could be said about this very attractive, sweet and lovely homemaker that paper does not allow, I hope that she will be considered for this honor which she so richly deserves."

These are excerpts from last year's letters of nominations, these could serve as a pattern to describe numerous homemakers in this area. There are many women who excel as homemakers. All that is necessary is that some appreciative observer nominate the homemaker of his or her choice.

Local winners will be sent to Chicago late in November for a three-day, all-expense paid trip. There they will meet all the Suburban Homemakers of America. At that time the National Suburban Homemaker will be announced and the grand prize of $5,000 will be awarded.

Nominators as well as nominees have an opportunity to reap rewards this year. If your nominee is chosen as one of the local Suburban Homemaker winners, you will receive an award from this newspaper. If your community homemaker should be selected as the National Award Winner, you, as nominator, will receive a $500 award from the Suburban Press Foundation.

If Parents Fail--What Then?

The news media are often criticized for "playing up" the errant three per cent to the alleged detriment of the 97 per cent of our juvenile population who behave themselves.

We think this a fallacious argument on two counts. First, because many incidents lumped in the "juvenile delinquency" category are really "crimes" committed by those who have not yet reached age 18, and no less offensive than crimes committed by so-called adults.

Secondly, we were taught that abiding by a high moral code and the laws of society was something that was expected of us, and deserving of no special award or testimonial. Goodness, we were told, is its own best reward. We think this a good philosophy for today's youth to learn.

Separate reports issued by FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover and Donald D. Cook, director of the Ohio Department of Liquor Control, present strong arguments for continued emphasis on the growing teenage crime rate.

In dealing with the most prevalent crimes of robbery, burglary, larceny and auto theft, Director Hoover says juveniles were responsible for 62 per cent of all auto thefts, 51 per cent of the larcenies, 49 per cent of the burglaries and 25 per cent of all robberies.

And he added the ominous note that the incidence of juveniles becoming involved in these crimes is increasing "much more rapidly than the population of this age group."

Add to this Director Cook's report that: "Teenage drinking is no longer a matter of isolated incidents, it is now a major statewide problem." The combination of these reports from reliable sources certainly does not call for less activity in the areas of public education and publicity.

Directors Hoover and Cook make a logical (if not overdue) plea for added help from the educators. "Where parents fail," Hoover says, "our schools can assist in providing a second chance . . . Any doubts in the minds of students as to the seriousness of 'joy riding' in a 'borrowed' piece of personal property valued at an average of $866 should be firmly erased . . . Both law enforcement and educators have a fundamental interest in the welfare of our nation's youth, and it would seem that by pooling their knowledge real progress could be made in preventing and deterring youth crime."

Director Cook provides another shocker associated with juvenile drinking by reporting: "Accidents that kill, maim or disfigure are no longer the sad ending to the senior dance; they are now daily news items."

These reports point up the need for society (the total community) to assume some responsibility when parents fail; not merely custodial care and punitive action, but a program of positive action as well.

If the schools can add to the curriculum an "ounce of prevention" course, it will certainly be much less expensive than the later "pound of cure" that will have to be administered.

ISSUE NO. 1

In a democracy, or rather a republic such as ours, we the people have rights and duties. They go together. Sometimes we try to enjoy the rights without assuming the obligations that are the duties. It never works. We think we are getting away with shortcuts. The laws of retribution may sometimes be slow, but they are never repealed.

We in Ohio face one of our obligations this year. It is Issue No. 1 on the November ballot, the proposed bond issue for a quarter of a billion dollars to provide desperately needed expansion of facilities for higher education.

All professions properly put their best foot forward and each has an ax to grind. School people are no exception. They live on funds provided for education. It is all a part of our system of public service. School people have a right to know where their salaries are coming from and when.

When they speak of needs in education, especially about physical equipment, the rest of us should listen. Their predictions about increased enrollments have come true for years and probably will hold good for the future.

Public debt per se is as bad as private. But it seems to us that here is a need too big to be paid for at once without rocking Ohio's financial boat too much. And it calls for no new taxes, but merely a continuation of the cigaret tax already being collected.

We suggest that you vote for Issue No. 1. Your child's college career may be decided on Nov. 5, 1963.

It says here . . .
Sometimes debt is a lesser evil.

Pharmacist Plays Vital Role In Health

A world of knowledge exists between the apothecary of old and the highly trained professional pharmacist of today. A world of knowledge devoted to safeguarding the public health through the dispensing of modern drugs and medications. Today's pharmacist is as vital to your continued good health and happiness as your physician, your dentist and the other members of the health team. Without the pharmacist, the physician's job would be extremely difficult.

By virtue of his college study and professional experience, your community pharmacist is an authority on drug composition and use and the physical and chemical properties of the more than 7,000 medicines in his inventory.

However, in today's rapidly expanding world, the pharmacist's responsibilities have grown greater than that of medication expert — he has become a vital source of family health information, a community health educator. He is in a strategic position on the health team. He can easily advise on the use of sickroom supplies. Because early detection can usually prevent or minimize the effects of a chronic disease, the community pharmacist is in a position to advise a great percentage of our population on the dangers of various ailments and urge them to seek diagnosis and treatment.

The wonders of the pharmacy never cease, and the role of the pharmacist as a family health consultant is, by far, not the least of them all. We salute him during National Pharmacy Week, Oct. 6 through 12.

Says Adults Should Follow Scouting's Example

To the Editor:

In these days of racial and religious discriminations, it is most rewarding when we hear of something to prove that the whole world has not gone completely mad. This story might prove that our youth are at least on the right track, and that the teachings of the Boy Scouts are worthwhile.

Boy Scout Troop 422, located on Rt. 33 and Noe-Bixby-rd, is sponsored by the Asbury Methodist Church, and is comprised of boys from several different religious denominations.

Recently Adam Bradley of the Jewish religion, having reached his 13th birthday, was ready for his "Bar Mitzvah." This ceremony according to the Jewish tradition is nearly 1500 years old and extremely important. And, Scoutmaster Paul Heil was very pleased to accept an invitation to attend the ceremony. Upon reaching the Temple Israel on E. Broad-st, he was more than proud to see that Adam had chosen for his ushers two of his closest and best friends, Mike Culligan, Catholic, and John Kluge, Protestant. Need I say more, than these boys have found the true meaning of the word "Friendship" and are truly practicing the fourth point of the Scout Law, "A Scout is Friendly?"

If three boys from widely different religious beliefs can be this close, then perhaps we as adults and supposed teachers of the young should in fact take a closer look into our own hearts to see if we do not lack some understanding.

I have worked in the Boy Scout organization for several years, first as a den mother, and now in the Women's Reserve. Here I work with the adults, and I firmly believe that the juvenile delinquency is not half as bad as the parental delinquency.

Director Nelson Writes

To the Editor:

In behalf of the Ohio Department of Highway Safety, I want to express our sincere thanks to the Hartley Newspapers for the very fine news story carried on the Bexley Traffic Inventory presentation (Eastern Review, Sept. 26).

It is such timely news stories, and the continued public interest of the Hartley Newspapers over a long period, that has played a major role in keeping Ohio's accident record below the national average.

'He Vacillates . . .'

To the Editor:

I cannot help but comment upon Jack Wittenmeier's "One Man's Opinion" Sept. 26—"Fear Spurs Protest Groups").

After seemingly leading up to a positive statement, Mr. One Man vacillates in his last two paragraphs.

He states that we have the right of assembly, etc., but on the other hand indicates that we shouldn't really take advantage of these rights.

Don't tell me that Mr. One Man fears controversy? Or the change that will eventually come about because of the protestors?

One final comment. In his statement, "My protest is against the protestor," he refers to the Declaration of Independence, among other historic documents, as giving us these rights. Not wanting to debate on the validity of that statement, I would instead suggest that Mr. Wittenmeier read past the flowery phrase of "When in the course of human events . . ." and get down to the meat of the paper.

Would he not note a protest or two?

School Project Aided

To the Editor:

Your recent front page article written by Mrs. Daft has certainly helped the cause of education for the Hilltop students attending Westmoor Jr. High School.

The timely article of Sept. 11, concerning the use of homework assignment booklets has informed the parents of this community what the teachers of the school are trying to accomplish this year. The parents' response has been excellent. We certainly appreciate your positive and constructive help you have given us in these past three years.

We are sure with your continuing fine support of our schools we will in turn be able to produce the fine well-informed young citizens this community so richly deserves.

"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Any civilized adult strives to use his native intelligence to orient his life in honest accommodation to his environment and personal circumstances. Every professional psychiatrist or consulting psychologist recognizes as "normal personalities" individuals who have achieved this orientation.

Mind is an adjustable tool to be sure, and will not tolerate for long having it insulted by invasions of his own honest and decent privacy. Almighty God never intended for man to be just a worm or a vegetable. No liberated mind will endure for long this invasion of his life by nosy people who have nothing to occupy their time but the minding of other people's private affairs.

True collective freedom is the sum total of all individual freedoms. Regimentation destroys all of them for everyone. One of these days a news item in year 2,000 will carry the idiocy of forcing every young couple who go to get a marriage license to put down, under oath, the following mile long row of figures: "Code 1, -2501-617. When 200-684-217-201-786-317 applied for a marriage license today, they also applied in advance for computer numbers for their 'maybe' children."

Ain't we got fun?

Sanctified Person Must Express Compassion

Christ cared!

He prayed all night because He cared. He worked endlessly and tirelessly because He cared. He healed and helped and taught and sought because He cared. He went to Gethsemane, to Calvary because He cared. His concern weighed so heavily upon Him that nothing else mattered! Christ cared!

Rev. Darity

Christians care too. Especially consecrated, spirit-filled, fire-baptized, sin-purged saints care! They are so hungry for more of His likeness that they share the same deep compassion He shared for the lost. Christians care!

A burden for souls is the norm for the sanctified. It is natural for a sanctified person to have an out-of-breath passion for his neighbor—the teenager across the aisle — the man at the next bench—the clerk at the next desk. This is, and ever shall be, the hallmark of a holy life!

This yearning for the wayward is beyond counterfeit. A man may put on the appearance of holiness, may pay his tithes, may even work in the spiritual harvest — but if he does not have a tear in his eye or a tear in his heart as he prays, he is not yet as Christlike as he ought to be. The broken heart, bleeding for others, is the ultimate expression of Christlikeness. Here is a holiness which is genuine, expressive, radiant, winsome, effective.

Let us apply the test to ourselves! If we have the kind of holiness Jesus had, we will find it easy to attend the means of grace, delightful to pray and fast much in the secret place of prayer, imperative to talk to sinners about spiritual things.

Do you really care?

An Editor's Outlook
by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

It's Age Of The Ledger In New Europe

Odense, Denmark—The history of Europe is written in the fairy tale, the horror story and the ledger book. This is the age of the ledger book.

So far, the Common Market has represented not so much idealism as the triumph of intelligent selfishness. It is first cousin to the selfishness that used to send raiding or conquering armies across the old borders. But the Common Market was born of the realization that riches-by-plunder is no longer possible now that science has produced weapons capable of total destruction.

Jones

The old wars were thought to pay solid dividends. True, you lost a few young men and maybe had a city or two burnt. But if you won you added a province or a principality or a kingdom. There were no industries to be ruined and the next year the crops came up again. You had acquired new tax wealth and new manpower to make possible even greater conquests in the future. At least, that's the way the old European figured it.

But that thing beween 1914 and 1918 was an opened vein. It left Europe drained and pallid. In the social turmoil and economic paralysis that followed it, two great tyrannies arose bent on the conquest of the world. And still the individual nations bickered with each other over their high tariff barriers and bit and clawed for crumbs of advantage. For they were still living in an age of the fairy tale.

This pretty city of Odense on the unbelievable park-like island of Funen is a good place to reflect on fairy tales. For just down the narrow street is the little yellow house where young Hans Christian Andersen dreamed of sleeping beauties and handsome princes and wicked ogres.

Europe between the wars still lived its dream. The British clanged and trumpeted the changing of the guard and refused to recognize the fatal malaise already creeping over the empire. The French mused of national glory as they lay behind their impractical Maginot Line. Most of the old kingdoms, it is true, had already fallen, but the castles continued to throw shadows on the thinking of all but the young radicals. There remained the Graustarkian glitter of Versailles and Sans Souci and Schonbrunn.

So the average European was little prepared for the horror of World War II. Not since the days of Attila and Genghis Khan had non-combattants faced such a grim struggle for survival.

Last night I sat high in a roof restaurant admiring the beauty of new Hamburg, in Germany. But on the night when the 2,500 planes came bearing incendiaries the flames rose 5,000 feet. In the vast blaze the oxygen vanished. Thousands were smothered in the deep bomb shelters, and as the air rushed along the ground to feed the holocaust people were literally swept down the streets into the inferno. Here was war of a new dimension.

But if the impersonal destruction was horrible, it couldn't match the new savagery. The guide on the Amsterdam sightseeing boat points to the hidden attic above the little house on the tree-lined canal where Anne Frank labored over her diary. A little girl, guilty of no crime, hunted like a rabbit and fed into an oven. You cannot grasp the immensity of the mounds of starved, naked bodies carted from the gas chambers and stripped of their gold-filled teeth by retching prisoners who would soon follow them.

This was not war. This was madness with the power of law.

And so, having lived its fairy tale and its horror story the new Europe has turned to the ledger book. And the ledger book says that if prosperity can no longer be found in war it must be found in cooperation.

Thirty-four years ago, when I first saw Europe, the frontier officers used to come aboard your Wagon-Lit at midnight to pore over your passports, to examine your currency and to paw through your luggage. Two days ago on the Dutch-German border the examiner strolled over to our rented station wagon, glanced at our American passports, checked the auto insurance and waved us through. The European students on their bicycles merely flashed their identification cards and kept on pedaling.

And the ledger is showing wonderful black figures. This year the Dutch will build 85,000 homes. And they can do it because cheeses from Edam and Gouda rest on the western European grocery shelves right next to those from Roquefort and Limburg. All do well because Europeans are eating more cheese than ever.

There are snarls, of course. The Italians recently have been delaying German coal trains at their border and the northern Europeans are pretty sore about it. De Gaulle's veto of Britain's Common Market membership jolted the alliance, but even French diplomats after the third cognac have been known to shrug, "He is an old warrior and will not live forever."

My friend, the newspaper editor from Amsterdam, said, "The Common Market is going to work because the new European can see cash farther than he can see a flag."

The young legal expert in Hamburg said, "It is a matter of conceit among my generation to talk familiarly of the youth hostels in Naples and Perpignan."

And the London news service chief said, "God knows what we'll do about Empire-preference, but we'll be part of Europe, old man. After all, we can't tow this bloody island into the middle of the Pacific."

The Age of the Ledger. It wasn't in Karl Marx' crystal ball. And communism, with its creaking economies and persistent tyranny, fears it like prussic acid.

ANYONE PASSING the Frank Thompson residence at 722 Mohawk-st can enjoy the beauty of the antique glassware displayed in the doorway. Photographed from the interior, the ruby, sapphire, cut glass and milk ware sparkles in the sunlight.

NO FUSS, NO BOTHER FOR MRS. THOMPSON

She Collects Antiques Easy Way

The antique collection of Mrs. Frank Thompson differs from those of many women who love old and beautiful things.

She has acquired hers the easy way.

She hasn't poked through dusty old shops, pored through catalogs or become a familiar figure at auctions.

She simply has treasured the glass ware and other antiques that have been handed down from one generation to another in her and her husband's families.

Acquiring her collection in this manner, she is anything but a specialist.

For example, some collect mustache cups. Not Mrs. Thompson — her father only owned one.

Many have been started on a life-long search for miniature lamps when coming upon one like the tiny Dutch coal oil lamp Mrs. Thompson owns. Not she. Hers, brought from Holland, was given to her as a child, she used it to find her way to bed at night as a child, and she is perfectly contented with this sole lamp.

Similarly with the bisque figurine, that was her husband's as a little boy, the tureen that her mother's mother went to housekeeping with, the spangled and clear glass basket that has survived six generations, and the lovely 89-year-old vases that were wedding presents of her mother-in-law. She is satisfied.

From the very variety of her collection which ranges from a tiny cast iron match box to marble topped tables, it is unlikely that there is a dealer in Columbus who would not have felt they had "struck gold" if they viewed this home.

But, dealers, stay away from Mrs. Thompson's door.

Her treasures represent the history of her family and she is not about to part with them.

Somewhat handicapped with arthritis she wants to sell her home and move to a one-story house.

Undoubtedly when this is done, space problems will cause her to dispose of some of her possessions. Yet, it is a good bet it won't be her antiques that go — just some of the things she can get along without, like her bed, the television set or the kitchen stove.

That may be a slight exaggeration, but it is apparent that what has been in the Thompson or Mylius (her maiden name) family is there to stay.

FROM AMBER in the rough in 1845 a craftsman in Bernstein, Germany made this necklace which Mrs. Edna Thompson displays. Originally owned by Miss Wilhemina Nagler it was truly a museum piece, being loaned by her to a museum in Saxonburg, Pa., until her death when it, by her will, was returned to the family.

THE CLASPED hands of wax and the tiny lilies of the valley which decorated Mrs. Thompson's mother's wedding cake have been carefully preserved throughout the years. Even a slice of the cake itself remains.

THIS ROUND pitcher was made years ago by Mrs. Thompson's father when he owned a pottery in Zanesville. Exceptionally difficult to find these days, this type pitcher is molded with a handle in the form of a hound drinking from the pitcher.

IT'S A REGINA. Only the fact that it has a turntable would identify this instrument as an early type of phonograph. Brought from Germany its records resemble circular IBM cards and tinkle out tunes recalling those of a Swiss music box. Although Mrs. Thompson is uncertain of the Regina's age, she has found an 1893 patent date on one of the 38 records she has for it.

History Revealed In Biographies

Holidays such as Columbus Day present an excellent opportunity to give children a lifetime understanding of history, according to Margaret Bausch, head librarian of the Parsons Branch Library. Such fascinating books as Graham Alberta's "Christopher Columbus, Discoverer" and Amy Hogeboom's "Christopher Columbus and His Brothers" are written especially to make the exciting lives of great persons real to young children.

The library has enough juvenile biographies, says Miss Bausch, to arouse the interest of any child. "Albert Einstein, Young Thinker," by Marie Hammontreet or "Martin Luther" by Harry Fosdick make a child comfortable with stories of greatness. Shannon Garst's "Custer, Fighter of the Plains" or Helen Higgins' "Juliette Low, Girl Scout" can help him see history as a wonderful venture rather than a series of boring facts.

Both parents and children will find help in selecting the right age level reading material at the Parson's library.

IT WAS A SHORT TRIP FROM PIT TO LIP

"ONE MORE HAM coming up!" Harley Lyles, 359 Toy-rd, pulled another of the 61 hams out of the pit at the annual ham and lamb roast held by the Groveport Fellowcraft F&AM last Saturday. With him from the far left are Dick Bill Zarbaugh, 626 E. Jenkins, Dick Potts 188 Meline-av, Obetz, and W. R. Evans, 141 Chandler-av, Obetz. Jim Shaeffer who worked with this crew is beyond camera shot. Russell McKee of Groveport who tended the fire all night long, also missed the picture. In the next shot, Bill VanGundy, Hamilton fireman, puts down his fire extinguisher and grabs the butcher knife to give full attention to his carving task. Mrs. Eva McCollister, left in the third picture, 335 Holton-st, Grovepert, made sandwiches with lightning speed in spite of the running chatter from her teammate, Herb Kisker, 4647 Wingate, Columbus. It all took a lot of work by a lot of good Masons and their friends but the dinner was a huge success and the ham and lamb done to a "T" as Mrs. Robert Scott, 1518 Lillian-ln, shown carrying here her tray, could tell you. After all, 16 hours in the pit should do something to the hams and 31 legs of lamb that were roasted. Proceeds of the event were slated for the building fund.

CMS Stages FinaleSunday

Flying-stock speed - pilot Don Gregory of Columbus was at his best Sunday afternoon at the Columbus Speedway as he garnered the 50-lap season championship feature, notching his 12th headline win of the year.

In winning, he had to go all out to beat Sonny Pencil, Urbana, Quentin Cullison, Newark, Whitey Dodson and Frank Long, both from Columbus, who followed in that order.

BECAUSE those five came in, in that order, Jerry Hacker, of 46 Ziegler-st, Columbus, won the jackpot in the Speedway's free game of "Total," Hacker went home richer by $1100.

In the late-model main event, Paul Parks was the winner, giving him seven feature victories for the year.

Bill Powell smashed and crashed his "junker" into every car on the track in the "destruction derby," until he was the only one still running and took home first-place money.

THIS SUNDAY, the South Side raceway will have its final program of the season, with the season championship races for super-modifieds and climaxed with a 100-lap championship feature. The late-models will also be on hand for events of their own.

Time trials will be at 1 p.m. and the first race of the afternoon will get moving at 2:30.

Preliminary underpinning and excavation work has started and a pedestrian barricade has been erected in the south traffic lane of E. Chestnut-st, between Pearl and Third-sts.

The new, nine-level structure, which will almost equal the size of Nationwide's home office building at Chestnut and High-sts, is scheduled for completion in 1965.

The first four levels in the new building will be for parking and the upper five floors for offices.

David Pilkington Now In Germany

Army Pfc. David K. Pilkington, son of Mrs. Mary C. Pilkington, 695 E. Markison-av, and Virgil Pilkington, 3119 Minera-pk, completed three weeks of field training with other members of the 92d Artillery's 2d Howitzer Battalion near Grafenworh, Germany, Sept. 25.

Pilkington is a wireman in the battalion's Battery A regularly assigned near Giessen. He entered the Army in September, 1960 and arrived overseas in February, 1961.

The 20-year-old soldier attended South High School.

TURN BACK THE CLOCK

WHO WOULD GUESS that this quiet scene was taken last Saturday morning a few blocks south of Broad on High-st? With the street empty except for the horses and coach and the turn-of-the-century homes in the background, the 1960's seemed forgotten. But the team was only an advertising gimick, and a moment later, an ambulance with police escort went screaming by and traffic resumed.

Trial—

against the Ontario Corporation and two store employes on Sunday, Mar. 10, 1963.

THREE CHARGES FAIL

In separate affidavits, the corporation and Ontario Store Manager Robert Heiser, 1443 Bennett-rd, were charged with unlawfully permitting the store to be open for the transaction of business on Sunday. Police had also charged Wilma Humphrey, an Ontario cashier, with unlawfully engaging in common labor on Sunday.

In presenting testimony at the pre-trial hearing, attorneys for the discount store had, subpoenaed representatives of 146 businesses in an effort to prove that discount stores were cited on many occasions while other types of business were not cited.

In his decision, Judge Schwarzwalder said that testimony indicated that 83 of the retail stores were open on Sunday, while 63 were not. The court upheld the right of law enforcement officials to use discretion in determining what types of business they chose for law enforcement concentration as long as dis-within a given type of business.

Many of those persons subpoenaed by the discount store attorneys represented retail stores dealing primarily in drugs and items incidental to the sale of drugs and foods considered incidental to travel. Such items are exempt from Sunday sales laws.

Assistant Columbus City Attorney Michael Colley hailed Judge Schwarzwalder's decision as support for the Sunday closing and sales law policies established by Columbus police and City Attorney John C. Young. The policy calls for enforcement to be centered on areas where a clear-cut violation seems evident, and a conviction, probable.

SECOND CASE INVOLVED

The court decision will affect a case in Municipal Court against an Ontario store employe, Alice Richards, charged on Nov. 25, 1962, with unlawfully engaging in common labor on Sunday. The case was in the process of trial when an appeal of the Mar. 10, 1963, charges were filed. Court action in this case will resume on Oct. 17, with Judge Schwarzwalder presiding over both cases.

Effect of the court's decision means that both cases against the discount store and its employes must now go to trial. Should a guilty verdict be returned, attorneys for Ontario could then renew their charge of disciminatory enforcement in an appeal to the Franklin County Common Pleas Court or the 10th District Court of Appeals.

GUESS WHO THEY'LL YELL FOR

AS THE BULLDOGS have gone on to victory this fall there have been no more ardent fans than the South High cheerleaders who claim their mascot shows in the middle, is just like the team—"fierce, but friendly." Asked about the prospects of the game this Friday night against Walnut Ridge, the girls were unanimous in predicting a "sure-fire victory-as usual." From the left are Virgene Watts, Gloria Thompson, Judy Hessenauer, Carla Jividen, Sharon Ross and Priscilla Aparis.

hand of a Loving God. Here is more to see than meets the eye!

Many of the gulls have moved south and even the black crow is conspicuously absent.

Old Mr. Squirrel hops from pine tree to pine tree knocking down the cones and then scurrying them away to burrows under the tree roots or rocks. His winter diet will be varied as is evident by his collection of dehydrated mushrooms.

All of Old Mother Duck's brood of summer ducklings are now as big as Mom and Pop and daily more of them pack up for their southward journey.

Old Man Beaver and his cousin, Aunt Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy the muskrat, are busy as beer laying in supplies for a long hard winter.

Soon the snow will fall and the lakes will freeze and nature will take a much needed rest only to waken again next spring as it has done for an eternity and will unto life everlasting!

Students—

fact that it is "other people's kids" to whom she has given her devotion.

"Thank God for this great woman," he concluded.

Another former pupil, George Cunningham, a personnel manager at Nationwide, resurrected a 25-year-old diary to make more vivid his days with Miss Wallace.

Amazed at his [illegible] he read the passage written the day after receiving his grade card in 1938, admitting, "I talked with Miss Wallace about my dramatics grade." He had gone to the school building with the intent of informing his dramatics teacher that she had under-rated his talents as an actor and justice should be rendered.

The entry was brief and to the point, "She said it was my conduct."

With obvious sincerity, Cunningham turned somber, turned to his former teacher and said simply, "Thank you for your inspiration."

Judge John Hill of Juvenile Court rued the fact that often in his role of judge he is accused of poor judgment, and of making the wrong decision.

"But 25 years ago I made one decision that I will stand by, and that is that she (Miss Wallace) is a fine one."

Still another tribute came from Dr. Ray Bethel, physician.

"It is you," he said, "who is greatly responsible for any success that I may have had."

"Your kids work just a little harder," accused Jim Lyle, another former student.

Jim differed from the others, in as much as he is not so "former."

The Optimists invited the young man, now a South High senior, to bring the youthful viewpoint. Jim's accomplishments too can be viewed with pride, as he was the only South High student to attain the status of semi-finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition.

He believes that because of the hard work which Miss Wallace demands from her students that she has been able to give to many a "real love of poetry."

Miss Wallace returned the affection and respect that was voiced for her with a verse speaking of God's blessings raining upon one.

"I've had more than my share," she said, "in the joy of meeting old students and knowing the stories of their successes."

But with typical humility she asked, "Am I worthy?"

She exemplified the spirit that led to her receiving the Freedom Award when she stated that if her accomplishments should be recognized it was that although she may have fallen short in academic teaching she had always done everything "within my power to teach the children a great loyalty to our country."

Norm Altman, chairman of the Support of Churches Committee, reported that since April when the project was undertaken almost 600 pounds of clothing has been sent to a mission in Kingtree, N. C., which needs the articles badly.

This is a continuing project of the Southern Kiwanis Club, and anyone who has usable clothing that they care to contribute is asked to call Altman who will be glad to pick up the bundle. His telephone number is BE. 1-5811.

Visiting Kiwanians traveling S. High-st won't have any difficulty finding the meeting place of the group from now on, according to Lower. Settlement House Director Gives Some Answers

WHO IS HURT WHEN CHILD WELFARE STOPS?

When voters decide for or against the funds necessary for the Franklin County Welfare Board to continue with the care and protection of children needing its service, they will be dealing with more than money.

With its present half mill levy expiring and appropriation from the general fund woefully inadequate as cases pour into its jurisdiction from the courts, the board is seeking a 1.5 mill levy.

Charts have been prepared showing that remedial and protective services have been discontinued except by court commitment, and over half of the cottages at Franklin Village closed down.

But exactly what does this mean in terms of human lives?

Bernard Wahl, who as director of the South Side Community House lives closer to such tragedies than many of the citizens of Franklin County, attempted recently to give some of the answers.

"The debris of the breakdown of a home, or of the individuals from it, costs so much more than the services that can prevent the breakdown," he stressed.

He explained that when funds were available a case worker could go into a home where there were signs of serious trouble brewing.

And often the home could be rehabilitated.

He recalled one such family, completely beaten down with poor organization and poorer management.

The children were hungry, they had no clothes, and were not attending school.

The parents eventually understood that the board was not interested in taking the children away permanently, but only in relieving the parents of their responsibility while they tried to find themselves. Thus the case worker won their consent to temporarily place the children in Franklin Village.

After a few weeks of training in budgeting, encouraging the father of the family to make the home more liveable and working with the mother in how to prepare palatable and nutritious meals with commodity foods, the children were brought back.

It was a heart-warming success, Wahl told, with a family reunited, with their feet on the ground and courage to face life regained.

But today this family could not have been helped. Even the few dollars it took to care for the children and give the advice and counsel that brought the parents around to starting anew is not available.

"Instead," Wahl added, "the tax money is going to support youth from like homes in the Boys' Industrial School and in the penal institutions awaiting them."

"Certainly," he stated, "this is the saddest type of economy."

All that can be offered now is what he termed "mop-up" care, Wahl explained, referring to the old, futile story of "too little and too late" attention to the woes of those who can't or won't help themselves.

Dispelling a commonly held notion that it is the chisler who finagles help from the Welfare Board, he quoted the statistic that less than one-half of one per cent of those receiving aid are not completely honest about their need.

"To throw out welfare because of this tiny minority would be equivalent to the theory that a police department should be abolished because one of its members took a bribe," he stressed.

Delving into a case that nags at the back of his mind, as one that is being neglected and can end tragically, he told of the child, deaf and mute, although normal in intelligence. He is allowed to go unattended, sometimes stealing, climbing high into the vicinity of high tension wires (oblivious to shouts of warning), and without the education that could help him lead a more normal life.

After agreeing to admit the child to the State School for the training he so desperately needs, the mother suddenly moved to another part of Columbus, and the child was removed from help.

There was not even enough money to trace her a few miles north.

Wahl, whose compassion for the children and adults he works with indicates his deep interest in his work, also mentioned a grandmother who in spite of a daughter and son-in-law who have contributed nothing to the welfare of their children, has made a good home for her grandchildren to the best of her ability.

This Is Our Week

Everybody and everything has a National Week.

This is our week. It is National Newspaper Week.

And on this occasion I can truthfully say I'm proud to be a newspaper man and glad to know that I have been able to weather the storms over the past thirty years in this field.

And storms there have been at times. Most all news people will say advisedly that there is seldom a dull moment in this business. And at times the going gets actually hectic.

One of the things that makes this so is the fact that little in the newspaper business can be put off til tomorrow. It is a "right now" business. And another is the fact that we are so close to people and the work of newspapering comes under criticism perhaps more than any other business because we are talking about people and the things that concern them.

While ours are the smaller papers we are proud of the fact that as such we are even closer to our people. We must of necessity therefore publish family papers and appeal to the positive and give recognition rather than condemn or tear down.

This doesn't mean that we cannot voice opinions, and we do. We like to believe that such expressed opinions are held in pretty high regard. At least we have tried above all else to be honest and like an umpire in a baseball game, "call 'em as we see 'em."

We are proud of the past in our operations, feel good about the present and extremely happy about our future. "Brighter than ever" is the prediction for the fu-

UA Gives 1st Report

At the first United Appeal campaign report meeting Monday, the South area of the suburban business division reported $190 or 2.6 per cent of its goal.

The results contributed towards the $1,287,731 total reported at the meeting presided over by Dr. Harold L. Yochum, Capital University president, the campaign co-chairman.

First reports from the residential solicitation which began Monday, will be given at the next report session today (Thursday, Oct. 17.)

This area's volunteers are reminded that with the campaign being a week shorter than usual, all contacts must be completed and turned in before the Oct. 24 closing.

AMONG THE LEADERS in this area's suburban business solicitation for United Appeal are, left to right, sitting—Robert Weidner, Ohio National Bank; Ralph Duncan, South area chairman, Swift and Company and John J. Brandt, The Wesleyan University Press. Standing are Thomas Bowers, Kroger Company; Mike Mileusnich, Protective Life Insurance Co.; Ralph Stedman, Ranco, Inc.; William Brenner, Kimball Products and Robert Falter, Kimball Products.

'Red Goods' Law Illegal Judge Says

Continued enforcement of the Columbus "Red Goods" ordinance was recommended by City Attorney John C. Young following a ruling by Municipal Court Judge William T. Gillie that the law is unconstitutional.

The ordinance prohibits the sale of goods manufactured in Communist countries unless the local merchant obtains a license and posts signs an-

RYAN PROPOSES BRANCH ELECTION BOARD OFFICES

A six-point program designed to make voter registration facilities available throughout Franklin County was outlined Wednesday by Jerry F. Ryan, chairman of the Franklin County Democratic Executive Committee. Ryan presented his plan at a noon luncheon of the Franklin County Young Democratic Club.

Under Ryan's proposal, the Board of Elections would:

- Establish branch offices for an extended period of time before each election in the various municipalities in Franklin County.
- Set up a registration office in each ward and township for a one-week period before the filing deadline for each general election, with day and evening hours of operation.
- Use a mobile registration unit in much the same manner that mobile public library and TB Society cruisers are used.
- Review present business hours of Board of Elections and establish evening hours, including Saturdays, for an extended period prior to each election.
- Re-examine the question of sick and disabled voting procedure in order to make voting more convenient for this group.
- Name elected committeemen as ex-officio Board of Elections deputy clerks, with salary, thus qualifying to handle applications for sick

Mums Growers Array Best Blooms For Show

Annual autumn showing of mums, held by the Central Ohio Chrysanthemum Society, and anticipated each fall by gardening enthusiasts from throughout the area, will be held Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 19 and 20, at Whetstone Park Shelter House, at the west entrance to the Park of Roses.

The show is free and open to the public on Saturday, 3 to 9 p.m. and Sunday, 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

"The show will feature huge blooms, larger than those grown in commercial greenhouses," according to Richard R. Huff, society president. "It just isn't commercially profitable," he explained, "to grow mums this large."

There will be 37 classes for horticulture specimens and 15

CSSO Continues Junk Yard Fight

When Mrs. John M. Smith, 1337 Molly-ln, appeared before the CSSO last week she appealed for help in urging that sidewalks be laid along Fairwood-av. Her children, as those of other families in the area, must walk the heavily traveled road to reach Marion-Franklin Junior High School.

Realizing that Lockbourne and Frebis present the identical problem, Mike Lower as president, turned the joint problem over to Mike Mileusnich of the service, safety and welfare committee to be taken to City Hall.

Before press time, Mileusnich had not been able to contact Ernest Stork, safety director, but had not wasted his time while in the city building.

Continuing his vigilant fight against unauthorized junk yards and failure to comply with zoning regulations that are too frequently ignored on the South Side, Mileusnich reported four trouble spots to Albert Giles, safety director.

The first three are junk yards which are allegedly not conforming to regulations. He located them at 2389 Groveport-pk, between an alley between Morrill and Welch west of High-st, and near Frebis and Parsons on the back of a lot at the site of an old Albers store.

His fourth complaint concerned a garage on Heyl between Mithoff and Thurman-av which is supposedly being operated as a lawn mower repair business. The area is zoned for residences alone.

According to Mileusnich, Giles promised his department's immediate attention to the matters.

Another guest at the meeting was John Greathouse of Barrett Junior High School who spoke in favor of the renewal of the 15-mill levy which provides city schools with 57 per cent of their operating funds.

Actually, the staff member pointed out, loss of this levy would mean the additional loss of the 15 per cent of the system's operating budget that the state makes available only to those schools meeting certain standards.

"Failure to renew this levy would mean the same to the public schools as a cut in salary to a man who had previously earned $100 a week who was reduced to $28," Greathouse stated.

Mrs. Joseph Horchow who appeared in behalf of the child welfare levy was assured of the support of the CSSO which is also behind the school levy.

Approving the recommendation of the board for the purchase of a church ad in the South Side Leader, the members decided to delay the purchase of a pool table for the South Branch of the YMCA.

Plans were made for the annual Halloween parties which will be held at Barrett, Schiller, Lincoln Park, Heinmandale, at Marion-Franklin in the Beery Building, at St. Stephens, the South Side Settlement House and at Buckeye.

Last year over 4,000 children attended these parties and a greater attendance is expected this year.

Committees for the year just begun were announced as follows:

Social committee, Peter Mock, as chairman, and Joe

MARION-FRANKLIN BEGINS CANDY SALE

"We did it last year and we'll do it again," confidently claimed E. C. Schlick, vocal instructor at Marion-Franklin High School, predicting that the annual candy sale would net the Boosters Club $3,000.

The sale which opens this Thursday, Oct. 17 and will continue through Nov. 7 is held annually to raise money for the club which supports the athletic and music departments of the Junior-Senior High School.

With students undertaking the actual door-to-door sales, enthusiasm was high as the room captains contemplated the high cash prize of $75 for top salesman.

Schlick pointed out that during the past 11 years the club has contributed $22,000 to the music and athletic departments of Marion-Franklin.

"IT WILL BE A MAN to man fight," said Robert Ewing, room captain, speaking of the contest among salesman for the camera, watch, radio and big cash prizes during the Marion-Franklin Booster Club's annual candy sale which begins today. Standing around E. C. Schick who is seated are from the left, Ewing; Charles Goodey, instrumental music instructor, Richard Mileff of the athletic deparment and Linda Jones, who is also a room captain.

5 Minutes Can Save Your Life

A few minutes' visit to the Benson Hough Post No. 3424 can save the life of South Side youngsters, according to Paul S. Plunkett, commander of the VFW post, 2299 S. High-st.

Any child visiting the home from 2 until 6 p.m. on Saturday afternoons will have his bicycle equipped with a specially prepared and treated reflector tape that can serve as a protection to the rider against traffic.

C. B. (Buck) Yeager, 820 S. High-st, has been appointed chairman of the youth activities of the post and will be on hand on Saturdays to carry out this phase of the program.

Teachers are asked to call to the attention of youngsters in South Side schools that they only have to stop a few minutes to have the safety tape installed without charge on their bicycles.

FOOD MARKET

New Produce Terminal Will Open In Month

Meat and Poultry—pork roasts (loin, Boston butt) whole pork loins, beef "specials," fryers, roasting chickens
Vegetables—potatoes (all-purpose), carrots, yams, acorn squash, salad vegetables, cabbage
Fruits—apples, grapefruit, grapes, pears
Other—Cheese, tuna, canned food "specials."

All food shoppers have a stake in the new million-dollar wholesale produce terminal that will soon open its doors at E. Fifth-av, near Hamilton-rd.

Nov. 5 has been set as the target opening date when a proud group of wholesalers will move from the Old Central Market into the new market facility—modern and sanitary in every respect. It's ideally located in the fastest growing area of Columbus and adjacent to rail and air facilities and the proposed outerbelt expressway.

The new market is the realization of a dream of a small group of wholesalers who, for years, have wanted facilities suitable to provide retail stores in the Columbus area with high quality fresh vegetables and fruits from all parts of the country, as well as from local farms. So they pooled their resources and formed the Produce Terminal Association with a board of directors responsible for seeing the building to completion.

At present, the building contains 20 units, each 25 by 80 feet. All will be occupied on the opening date and requests are coming for additional units. Each tenant will install his own refrigeration and other needed equipment. By next spring, the association expects to provide a Farmer's Market—a place where farmers can display and sell their produce to retail outlets.

For all consumers this new market place can mean fresher, higher quality produce as well as a wider variety. The use of modern equipment and improved efficiency can also mean they will get their vegetables and fruits at a lower cost. When you take your family for a drive on a beautiful October weekend, drive by and get a preview of the new Columbus Produce Terminal, of which we can all be mighty proud.

The terminal is not presently equipped for retailing small packages. However, large families interested in purchasing in larger units may do so at a saving.

IT'S SEASON TO ENJOY APPLES

Have you discovered that apples this year have unusually delicious flavor? Orchardists say it's the sunny weather and cool nights that have given the apples such high color and flavor.

In best supply now for general use are Jonathans, Grimes Golden and Golden Delicious. The Red Delicious, a favorite eating apple, gets really good at this time though they have been in markets for weeks.

Watch for good buys on "apples-by-the-bag" and by the bushel during National Apple Week—Oct. 10 to 19. We'd also like to suggest cool fresh apple cider as a thirst quencher during cool, crisp, autumn days.

Drivers Safety Club South High Sets Up

A Drivers Safety Club has been organized at South High School. It will aid students now taking drivers education. Students who have their licenses are also invited to join.

Activities for this year include visiting the Highway Patrol offices, participating in city safety programs and fund-raising projects. Movies on driving safety and guest speakers will be on the agenda for meetings.

Co-ordinator is Diane Cary, senior, and William Manierre, drivers education teacher, will serve as advisor. The Drivers Safety Club is affiliated with the National Student Traffic Safety Program.

"Roots of Freedom" is the title chosen for a project of the Latin classes of South High School.

"I have set before my Latin classes the task of looking carefully into the lives of the Romans, in an effort to prove that the bulwark of our freedom stems from Roman civilization and culture," explained Miss Lucile Cornetet, Latin instructor.

A committee has been set up for each phase of Roman civilization. They will cover literature, architecture, government, customs, home and family life, art, music, medicine, pharmacy, nursing, law, science, ministry, mathematics, astronomy, astrology, languages and words.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR . . .

Booster Club Traces History Of Stadium

January 11, 1962, James Wilson, president of the Hamilton Boosters, asked for a motion that the organization take on the project of building a stadium and concession stand at the high school.

With J. Bell as general chairman, the steering committee was appointed and Al Lipfert named chairman. After several weeks of study the committee presented plans for a stadium seating 1,000 persons at an approximate cost of $16,000. A concession stand was planned under the stadium. A personnel committee was appointed with Mrs. Mae Carpenter as chairman.

Calvin Borden was appointed chairman of the finance committee which ultimately decided to first contact all business places and organizations in the township for donations of cash or pledges. This week-long drive began May 20.

Team captains were next selected for a door-to-door canvass. At 7:30 a.m., June 23, 90 workers met in the cafeteria of the high school for a "Kick-Off" breakfast. The successful drive was over by 5 p.m. and construction of the stadium began.

We now have a section of the stadium seating 600 completed, costing $9,000. We built on a pay-as-you-go basis until time was running out and we then used our credit for $3,500 with our faith in YOU.

The Hamilton Township School Boosters is your organization. Its purpose is to encourage and promote any activities in the school and to support any school activity that the school board is not permitted to.

We need your support, not just financially, but we need to get behind our boys and girls in school and show them that somebody cares. We need to show them that we are with them 100 per cent in their studies, in sports, in band, or any activity that will make them the American citizens of tomorrow that our country needs.

Again we thank each of you who have helped us along the way in our project. Now we believe our goals can be reached with many joining hands and working together.

The Boosters Officers.
Calvin A. Borden, president.
Ralph Mouser, vice president.
Alice Szuk, secretary.
Ruth E. Borden, treasurer.
James Wilson, president executive board.

Deadline Nears For Nominating Homemakers

Mrs. Myron Gifford First Contest Nominee

"This is a pleasant surprise, it sounds too good to be true, I don't know what to say."

This was Mrs. Myron Gifford's reaction when informed that she had been the Columbus area's first nominee in Hartley Newspapers' search for a "Surburban Homemaker of The Year."

WHEN informed of her nomination, Mrs. Myron Gifford was pleasantly surprised.

Mrs. Gifford, better known as Marianna, was nominated in a letter by Mrs. Francis Smith, 66 Norton-rd.

Marianna lives with her husband, Myron, their son, J. Van, and daughter, Debra, at 66 Daugherty-rd, Galloway. Myron and his brother-in-law operate the El Rancho Motel and he is also associated with the Wee Bonnie Golf Course.

Marianna is publicity chairman of the Alton Hall Road PTA, secretary of youth of the WSCS, Columbia Heights Methodist Church, a member of Prairie Gardeners garden club and Pioneers CCL. She is den mother of Boy Scout Troop No. 6, Pack 33, New Rome, teaches Sunday School and is active in many community affairs.

"Although her interests are varied, her first love is the family and home. She encourages sports and creative activities for her entire family," Mrs. Smith said.

Marianna sees that the entire family participates in such sports as skiing, golfing and swimming. She and her husband enjoy bridge, dancing and belong to a gun club. She directs her children in various areas of interest such as YM and YWCA, Girl Scouts, Boy Scouts and 4-H. As for church, "We attend and worship as a family," said Marianna.

In addition to her family, community and church activities, Marianna has time for her own interests such as flower arranging, sewing and knitting.

The days of judging a homemaker by the jars of preserves on the cellar shelf and hand-stitched quilts in the storage chest has been by-passed by the modern homemaker, that is a wife, mother, nutritionalist, psychologist, member and leader of many organizations in the church and community. Modern trends makes the role of homemaker complex but very fulfilling in creativity. Although she is busy with many things, the homemaker lifts up the idealist aspects of motherhood which is the foundation of the modern homemaker.

Mrs. Smith recognized Marianna as an extraordinary homemaker and took the time to nominate her for the Suburban Homemaker Contest.

MARIANNA GIFFORD, a suburban homemaker nominee for 1963, puts the final touches on a coat she knitted for 11-year-old daughter, Debra.

Waiter Training Program Set

The Columbus - Franklin County Area Worker Training Committee has approved a course of training for Waiters, formal, according to W. F. Ballard, committee chairman. Training will be sponsored by the commitee in cooperation with the Columbus Public Schools, and classes are to begin Monday, Oct. 28.

The 10-day, 38-hour course is offered free to trainees and is intended to qualify men to fill the rapidly increasing job opportunities for first-class trained waiters in dining room and room service departments of the many new Motel-Hotel establishments.

Minimum age for trainees is 21, and applications for class enrollments are being handled by the Ohio State Employment Service office, 309 S. Fourth-st.

Public Is Invited To Open Meet

Dr. John L. Peters, national president of World Neighbors, Inc., will speak at an open meeting Friday, Nov. 1, at 7:30 p.m., at the Broad Street Christian Church, E Broad and 21st-sts. A social hour in the Fellowship Hall will follow Dr. Peter's message, "Let's Fight the War We Can Win."

I am sure that being nominated for an Oscar in the Academy Awards couldn't be any more gratifying. Being nominated and the trip to Chicago for the National Awards is an experience I will never forget."

THE BROTHERS PATE—South coach Bob Jackson would have to admit that the two fellows pictured above were a couple of good guys to have around Friday evening as the Bulldogs nabbed their sixth straight win of the season, and retained a share of the City League lead with a 26-16 win over Walnut Ridge. The Rebs offensive punch revolved around brothers Lloyd (39) and Paul Pate (48). Above, at left, halfback Paul heads for the sidelines on a 35-yard pickup on the first play from scrimmage after Walnut Ridge took a 16-12 fourth-period lead. The Scotties Don McKray (70) drove Pate out of bounds on the W-R 26. Paul finds stiffer opposition in center photo as he returns the opening second-half kickoff to the W-R 48 before being spilled by a host of Scottie tacklers. At right, fullback Lloyd (39) sidesteps W-R's Bill Masch after taking a flip from quarterback Jerry Robison in first-period play for a short gain. Each Pate collected one South TD for the evening with Lloyd finishing his evening's work with 205 yards gained of South's total 360 total offense. (Photos by Jack Wittenmeier).

Hare To The Tortoise: Dig Those Crazy Races

Well, the pennant races were, for the most part, cut and dried; the World Series only lasted four games and the old proverbial turtle was still beating the hare the last time we heard.

But how about this crazy football season? The Browns are looking like the winners of old, the Bucks might just be a Big Ten contender and as the tortoise might be saying to the hare these days: "Dig those crazy high school grid races!"

YOU NEEDN'T go much farther than the City League scramble this fall to find the reason more and more fans are turning out at the neighborhood ball yards.

Sure the weather's been great, but we doubt if plunging temperatures could dampen the fan enthusiasm evident around the area this season.

In that City League race Central has proven it can beat the front runners as well as the also-rans. That came to light last weekend with a convincing win over previously unbeaten West.

BUT HOLD on now. How about South (3-0) and Whetstone (4-0)? They're both right up there on top too and who could write a more suspenseful climax than the schedule maker who has the Pirates playing both the Bulldogs and Braves in the final two Fridays of play.

On the other hand, South must contend with Aquinas (2-1-1) and West (3-1) before the Central finale match while Whetstone has West and North (0-4) sandwiched around its date with the Pirates.

Central's other remaining test is with Marion-Franklin (0-4).

WITH THE wild finish already written for the three CL unbeatens you must consider once-beaten West and East (3-1) still very much in the running.

The Cowboys will have to do it themselves with Whetstone, South and East remaining on the West schedule. East has a slightly easier task with Brookhaven (1-3), Aquinas and West yet to play.

Anyone willing to put his money down on the finish to this race is certainly skating on thin ice.

IF YOU think the situation in the City League is unique, try the Central Buckeye League merry-go-round on for size.

Mt. Vernon (4-0) has the inside track but the Jackets still have Arlington (2-1-1) and Worthington (2-1-1) to cope with in the final two weeks after Delaware (0-4) this Friday.

Whitehall (3-1) is still in the running but has some pretty serious hurdles of its own to clear in Arlington, Worthington and Urbana (1-1-2) in that order.

DARK HORSES Arlington and Worthington could slip in for at least a share in the CBL dogfight with Delaware and Grandview (1-3) respectively filling out their schedules.

Things are a little more sane in five other loop races. Groveport's position (3-0-1) in the Mid-Eight was weakened by a tie with Westerville (2-1-1) last weekend but the Cruisers seem to have the slate advantage.

Glenn Johnston's crew finished up with Gahanna (2-2), Mifflin (1-3) and London (1-3) while contenders Hilliard (3-1) and Westerville must finish up with improving Grove City (2-2) and Marysville (1-3) besides facing each other a week from Friday night.

FOUR OPPONENTS, (Dublin, Rosary, St. Marys and Hamilton Township) stand in West Jefferson's path to the Franklin County crown but none has better than a .500 log jamark.

If peful contenders Reynoldsburg and Academy, both 2-1 and victims of the Rough Riders, play common opponents Hamilton Township and New Albany but the Raiders also have to deal with Dublin (2-2) and the Vikings St. Marys (2-2.)

To West Jefferson's delight both clubs play each other in a season finale.

IT WOULD appear that St. Charles has the horses to go the distance in the Central Catholic circuit with the Mid-State pennant going to the winner of the Liberty Union (3-0) — Millersport (2-0) game.

Wilmington's tight win over Circleville probably decided the South-Central League race. The Hurricanes (3-0) finish up with Greenfield (0-3), Franklin Heights (1-2), Washington C. House (2-1) and Hillsboro (1-2)— the Tigers closing likewise except for Miami Trace (2-1) replacing (3) on the Circleville sked.

It would seem that Central, Mt. Vernon, West Jefferson, Groveport, Wilmington, St. Charles and Liberty Union might be flying loop pennants this time next month.

BUT IF you're willing to put your cash straight on the barrel that way at this stage then you're in the wrong business. The big glittering welcome mat laid out in neon in Las Vegas was meant for you.

Rebs Slip Past W-R; Rosary Wins Second

By ART KIENZLE

The '63 edition of South High's football team has turned from a City League sleeper into a pile-driving threat to Central and Whetstone as the Rebs won their sixth game in a row, 20-16, at Walnut Ridge Friday.

These three clubs lead the league (4-0) after East and West were eliminated by Lindent (28-20) and Central (34-14) respectively to drop out of a first-place tie.

Meanwhile, Rosary was winning at Hamilton Township, 28-12. Aquinas won at

Loop Flag Details In Wit 'An Wisdom

North 24-15, Marion-Franklin lost to Brookhaven, 12-6, and St. Marys fell under Reynoldsburg 18-6.

SOUTH 20, W-R 16

SOUTH TOOK an early 6-0 lead when rambling Lloyd Pate streaked 56 yards through the Scottie defense for a first-period TD.

But the Bulldogs were forced to spot W-R a 8-6 halftime lead before going ahead again, 12-8, in the third frame on Paul Pate's three-yard run.

The Scots, refusing to bow to South's front-running position, took the lead again with 10:54 left in the game on a three-yard pass from quarterback Dave Feyh to fullback Dennis Day.

BUT SOUTH made its margin of victory just two minutes and 26 seconds later when Reb quarterback Jerry Robinson ran for a two-yard score and Lloyd Pate ran for the extra points.

For the night, Lloyd gained a few yards also -196 running in 18 trips plus a nine-yard pass for a total of 205, exactly 57 per cent of his team's total 360 yards gained.

Lloyd's performance against Walnut Ridge more than underscored the Bulldogs' peril with three CL key matches remaining. The bad news came Monday morning when it was learned that the Reb runner suffered a broken arm in the fourth period against the Scotties.

THE INJURY will sideline Pate for the remainder of the season.

ROSARY 28, HAMILTON TWP. 12

THE CRUSADERS jammed their most potent scoring display of the season into the final period Friday evening to down the Rangers.

Hamilton pulled out in front, 6-0, with a second-period TD and the lead stood up until the fourth quarter when Rosary put all of its 28 points on the scoreboard.

Halfback Don Spurlock was the biggest noise as the Crusader speedster dashed for TDs of 43 and 27 yards. Butch Michael supplied the long score with an 82-yard gallop to paydirt.

THE FOURTH Rosary score was credited to end Ed Roehrenbeck who pulled in an 18-yard touchdown strike from quarterback Randy Butler.

The Crusader defense kept the store until the Rosary offense tuned up—halting Hamilton scoring drives on the 15, two and five-yard lines.

REYNOLDSBURG 18, ST. MARYS 6

Raider halfback Jon Molnar pulled the rug out from under Ram's FCL title hopes Friday evening with three long scoring dashes.

MOLNAR GOT the defending loop co-champs off to a fast start, streaking for 47 and 36 yard touchdown runs that provided Reynoldsburg with a 12-0 first-period nad.

St. Marys cut the Raider margin in half by intermission on fullback Jack Gassman's one-yard plunge following a Ram drive.

But Molnar stepped off a 90-yard dash to paydirt in the third period to regain Reynoldsburg's two touchdown lead while the Raider defense blanked St. Marys' offense the rest of the way.

THE SETBACK dropped the Rams' seasonal mark to 4-2.

AQUINAS 24, NORTH 15

The Irish hung onto fading title hopes with a big second period, converting a pair of Polar Bear bobbles into a 24-point frame.

North hopped off to a 7-0 first-period lead but couldn't keep pace with the Terriers who got TD runs from Jim Fritter (four yards) and Dan Cenci (12 yards) plus an eight-yard aerial six-pointer from quarterback Pat Noles to Jim Verne.

THE NORTH defense was in command the rest of the way but the damage was done by intermission as Aquinas held the Bears to a single TD in the second half.

The Irish mark in league play now stands at 2-1-1.

BROOKHAVEN 12 M-F 6

A late Red Devil rally fell six points short Friday as the Bearcats broke up a tight, defensive battle with a pair of fourth-period TDs.

Neither club could dent the other's goal line for three periods but Brookhaven got moving early in the final stanza and cashed in on Paul Whitehead's seven-yard run.

WHITEHEAD haunted the Devils again later in the period, running in from the 14 as the Bearcats grabbed a 12-0 lead.

M-F MADE A last-ditch bid for victory, pulling within six points in the final 20 seconds when quarterback George Bobst flipped a 25-yard TD strike to John Jackson.

WEKEND play shapes up like this: Rosary (2-3) plays New Albany (1-5) at Academy, Marion-Franklin (1-5) hosts Central (6-0) and Aquinas (2-2-2) tries for a spoiler role with a visit to South (6-0). All are Friday games.

St. Marys (4-2) completes the area schedule by hosting Academy (3-1) at South Saturday evening.

Smallmouth State Fish; Scribes 'Aye' Issue One

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

The Outdoors Writers of Ohio met last weekend and for the first time in my experience they voted unanimously on a proposal — to support State Issue No. 1, which will be voted on at the polls on November 5.

When this group of individualists gets together on anything it's an historic moment.

THE PROPOSAL is to continue a one-cent-a-pack tax on cigarettes to pay for bonds to be issued by the state in the amount of $250 million for public education, water impoundments, conservation, parks, recreation and state facilities. Conservation and outdoor recreation would receive $25 million, and this is why the outdoor writers are especially interested in the amendment.

Gov. Rhodes, who spoke to the writers, said that the administration expected to get up to $20 million in matching funds from the federal government, so that a total of $45 million may come to conservation and outdoor recreation in Ohio if the amendment passes.

An important point, I think, and one that speaks of progress, is that in 1955, when this cent-a-pack tax was originally levied, conservation did not receive a single dime. While education would still get the bulk of the money, the sportsman and park-goer is definitely in the picture and these interests would be helped materially.

THE WRITERS were told that a vote yes for the amendment would be a vote for more beaches, boating, fishing, hunting, picnicking, camping and lakes. It would also mean more water for present industry and for industrial expansion. The proposal makes a mighty attractive package, and with no increase in taxes.

Other happenings at the writers' meeting were attendance at the fishing tackle exhibition and an announcement that Ohio would soon have a state fish —the smallmouth bass. The Ohio fishing tackle products were displayed all last week in the Statehouse Rotunda, and made an impressive exhibit.

The fact that the smallmouth is to be honored in Ohio is good news to fishermen in this area for it's our prime sport species in streams here. A gamey and sporty fish, the smallmouth bass is near to the hearts of all anglers. The limestone streams of central Ohio are the center of the smallmouth's range on this continent, so it is appropriate that this fish take its place with the cardinal, buckeye and red carnation.

PIRATES VS. MARYLAND

Battle For Lead Set Sunday For Bearcats

Starling Field will be the scene Sunday for the first meeting of two for the Ohio Bearcat League co-leaders—the Westside Pirates and Maryland AC.

Maryland (4-0) will be seeking revenge for the three defeats the Pirates handed them last year while the Pirates (4-0) will be shooting for their fifteenth consecutive win over the past two seasons.

BOTH TEAMS have aggressive offenses — averaging better than 30 points per game in four previous loop tests.

The Pirates' defensive unit has yet to yield a single point in four outings. Maryland's defense has allowed only 16 points.

Game time is set for 2:30 p.m. with the Westgate Bears-Southside Eagles game preceeding the showdown at 1:30 p.m. In other league action, the Lockbourne Skyhawks will host the Milo-Roc-Mendel eleven at 2:30.

LAST WEEK at Starling Field, a homecoming crowd of 800 watched the Southside Eagles upset Milo-Roc, 14-6, in the opener before the Pirates crushed the Bears, 38-0, in the nightcap.

The Eagles capitalized on two Milo fumbles to go ahead early in the game, 14-0. After a scoreless third quarter, Milo struck paydirt in the last stanza but the early fumbles proved too costly.

Halfback Kenny Jackson led the Pirate offense, scoring three touchdowns on runs of 10, 20 and 48 yards.

PIRATE defensive standouts were Henry Woods and Frank Hanson.

Maryland scored in every quarter to down the Lockbourne Skyhawks, 42-0, on the losers field.

Duck (!) Season Opens Monday

Buckeye waterfowl hunters will usher in another duck and goose hunting season Monday. Dale E. Whitesell, chief, Ohio Division of Wildlife, says that hunting prospects appear to be favorable.

This year there will be a 35-day split season for ducks and coots. The first segment will run through Nov. 15; the second extends from noon, Dec. 23 through Dec. 28, with shooting hours from sunrise to sunset except on opening days.

Goose hunting is for 70 days beginning with the duck season and extending through Dec. 28.

Bag limits are four ducks daily with eight in possession after the first day of each segment. All hunting is by Eastern Standard Time.

'Fearless' Predictions

We don't believe it either but the "fearless one" continued his fantastic pace into a second straight week, correctly picking the winners in 20 of 24 area football games.

We could make mention of the odds but that would probably sound like sour grapes so we'll leave it go at his seasonal total 84-30-3.

THE OLD BOY is stepping off the deep end with this week's list of picks, however, with a hatful of games that could go either way.

The seventh week analysis follows:

NEW ALBANY - ROSARY— Closer than last time but . . . Rosary.

WHETSTONE - WEST — Cowboys angry but Braves have impetus. Whetstone.

AQUINAS - SOUTH — Pate lost . . . Aquinas.

CENTRAL - MARION-FRANKLIN — Without letdown. Pirates all the way. Central.

BEXLEY - URBANA — Anybody's guess. Urbana.

ARLINGTON - WHITEHALL — Potent offense vs. tight defense. Whitehall.

GROVE CITY - HILLIARD— Could go either way. Coin says Hilliard.

HAMILTON TWP. WEST JEFFERSON — Riders roll on. W. J.

PLEASANT VIEW - FRANKLIN HGTS. — Rivalries always tough but . . . Pleasant View.

FAIRFIELD UNION-CANAL WINCHESTER — Fair(field) to(o) good. F-U.

CARROLL - BERNE UNION — Should be tight. Carroll.

REYNOLDSBURG - DUBLIN — Spot for an upset but . . . Reynoldsburg.

GROVEPORT - GAHANNA — Cruisers bounce back. Groveport.

TEAYS VALLEY - LAKEWOOD — Wait till next year. Lakewood.

WATKINS MEMORIAL - GRANVILLE — Warriors in the 'big one.' W-M.

LINDEN - WALNUT RIDGE — Panthers too big. Linden.

NORTH - EASTMOOR — Warriors turn again. Eastmoor.

EAST - BROOKHAVEN — Tigers comeback. East.

ACADEMY - ST. MARYS— Rams can upset but . . . Academy.

NEWARK CATHOLIC - HARTLEY — Irish strong. Newark.

WATTERSON - READY — Eagle flight. Watterson.

ST. CHARLES - SPRINGFIELD C. C. — O(h) Leary. St. Charles.

May 24, 1844, Samuel F. B. Morse made history when he transmitted a message by wire between Washington and Baltimore. From the Supreme Court Room in Baltimore, Morse tapped out those historic words: "What hath God wrought!"

Tighten Those Bows — 1963 Deer Season Open

The longbow (archery) season for deer opened in Ohio Tuesday.

The season closes Dec. 31, and hunting hours are daylight to dark, except during the deer gun season (Dec. 12 - 13) when hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The season limit is one deer, and temporary tag must be placed on deer before carcass is moved, and then it must be delivered to a state game protector or an official checking station for inspection and permanent tagging within 24 hours.

Cruisers Top Mifflin, 14-6, In Jr. High Tilt

Groveport's Junior High Cruisers downed Mifflin last week, 14-6, as Ron Miller and Rod McKinster scored TDs for the winners.

Larry White's interception set up McKinster's tally and ensuing conversion run in the final two minutes of play.

The Groveport Reserves and Junior High teams are both scheduled against Reynoldsburg Saturday. First game starts at 5:45 p.m.

'HE' GETS LETTERS

Dear (?) Fearless,

I simply cannot let that last answer go unanswered. First, please forgive me for not making one thing clear: If doubles were in season, they wouldn't help you, anyway. Get the point?

Now that we have that straightened out, let's get down to business. Okay, so you were right once—check that — twice about two of your predictions.

Even I will admit that 29-3 is not bad, but it still doesn't make up for all the other weeks when your averages were pretty sick.

HOWEVER, consider this: Maybe we lost just to put a little cheer into your dismal job. Did you ever think of that? No, I don't suppose you did. We're really a good bunch down here, Fearless We don't want to make a liar out of you EVERY week.

Well, I think it's about time we win another one, so take a hint, buddy. We'll be checking your column.

PS — I noticed that my last letter was under the writeup of the me.

CW-Millersport game. Of course, that was just a coincidence.

PPS — Your Velechi-9 (as bullet-proof vest is a neat idea. You might even need it!

The Gang at C-W

Dear gang:

Not to appear boastful, of course, but let me correct you. I've been right more than twice. In fact, 84 times this season.

I don't quite follow or understand your logic but somehow I feel I should say "thanks."

YOU'RE RIGHT, of course, that you're a good bunch down there in Canal Winchester. I passed through your town Saturday evening at approximately 10:35 p.m. without a single incident.

"Cheerfully" yours,
Fearless

PS — I think some day when this whole thing blows over, we'll have to meet face-to-face. My friends (I really do have a few) insist that I write myself these letters you send me.

Senior Citizens Center

275 McDowell-st

Senior Citizen Recreation Center members proved how much their center at 275 McDowell-st, has meant to them by turning out in full force to make the dedication ceremonies a program that operated very smoothly.

It was a day of hard work for many, but rewarding to those who have followed the progress of this unusual facility.

We felt a warm glow to have the members show, so graphically, how important the center is in their lives.

The program for next week includes a special luncheon for members who appeared in the cast of "Broadway Memories," the play given by our center at the Ohio State Fair and the Hobby Show.

The Harvest Table lunch served at the Worthington Inn will be on Thursday, Oct. 17, at noon for this group to get together once again.

Group Forsakes Nature, Sports For Fallout Shelter Life

WRY HUMOR was represented by the sign that greeted the shelter visitors who entered just prior to the end of the test.

By FRANK RYAN

This past weekend Mother Nature trotted out her finest golds and greenish-browns in a fall fashion show that beckoned all to ride to the countryside; the OSU Buckeyes racked up an impressive win, as did the Cleveland Browns; the Columbus Fire Prevention Fair was well worth seeing; and the "Beloved Bums" (no matter their location) of Los Angeles wrote a new chapter in World Series baseball history.

But, 20 area residents voluntarily gave up all this. They chose instead to spend the time in total separation from the "outside" world. They took part in a 48-hour fallout shelter survival test sponsored by the Columbus and Franklin County Civil Defense unit.

Nineteen of the group were there to earn certification as fallout shelter managers. The other member was Assistant Columbus Service Director Croft S. Merritt, who "earned his rating" in a previous drill and acted as shelter manager.

This reporter was the 21st member. I went to observe, but became a participant. I was after a story, but also ended up with a strong (if not entirely coherent) conviction. My personal reaction to the experiences will be dealt with in a later editorial. But for now, I would like you to come into the shelter with me, share our experiences.

It was a pleasant and somewhat "lazy" afternoon on Friday as I stopped for a sandwich and cup of coffee prior to keeping my 5:30 p.m. rendezvous at the Chapel-st entrance of old Grant Hospital. I thought of buying extra cigarettes to tide me over the two days of "indoor camping." But this would not be true to my avowed intention of going into the shelter unprepared and uninformed as to what was to take place. (Fortunately, I had a full pack — one third my normal supply for a two-day period.)

We entered the fallout shelter just a few minutes behind schedule, with the delay adding a bit to our anticipation. We were forewarned to the extent that we were properly dressed for the occasion. The men wore light sportswear and the women, slacks with blouses and/or sweaters. We had been told we would not need sweaters or coats, but this later proved untrue.

We entered the fifth floor shelter with something like 10 separate conversations going all at once. But we were soon jarred to silence by the first of many ominous broadcasts. The report said:

"You are listening to the Emergency Broadcast Service station serving the Columbus area. This is not a test. I repeat — this is not a test. The President has declared an emergency."

The broadcaster went on to announce confirmation of a nuclear attack, and instructed all listeners outside the Columbus area to tune in their own stations for further instructions.

It was no problem for Shelter Manager Merritt to hold our attention for the first official order of business — the filling out of an information sheet. In addition to the usual name, address, age, sex, and occupation, the questionaire called for pertinent medical data, and listing of special talents and hobbies.

The information was used to pick a "staff" to work with the shelter manager. People were assigned as security guards, medical, sanitation, communications and radiation detection teams, food servers, etc.

Thus we learned a primary requirement for shelter operation — selection of a capable and willing staff to serve the survival needs of the group. We were told that under actual conditions the approximately 1,500 square feet of space we 21 occupied would house 147 persons, an average of only 10 square feet per person.

Crackers, Water Diet

My first personal disappointment was in learning that our total daily diet for the stay would consist of 24 high-caloric crackers and 30 ounces of water. (I had seen boxes of the crackers at Columbus City Hall. But I had a vague idea that this fare was used only after the beer and pretzels had been exhausted.) The 24 crackers contain the minimum daily requirement of 720 calories. We were impressed with the importance of eating the full allotment. (I ate most of mine, but have not since asked my wife to get the recipe.)

We were fed shortly after our arrival. We were then summoned to the shelter manager's office in twos and threes to be assigned specific tasks. Because of my news reporting experience, I was put on the communications team.

Those on the security force were charged with keeping order, guarding the food and water supply and enforcement of shelter regulations. One rule required "residents" to remain in their cots between midnight and 7 a.m., except for toilet privileges.

(We "testers" were fortunate on two counts. We had the "luxuries" of a fairly comfortable cot for sleep and a flush toilet. Neither of these would have been available under actual attack conditions.)

Next, we paired off into two groups and elected group leaders. My group engineered a quick "railroad" election for Lawrence J. (Larry) McGovern, 3969 Beechbank-rd, chief of office service for the Bureau of Unemployment Compensation. Heading the other group was Clyde D. Everett, 1327 Genesse-av, a sixth grade teacher at Linden McKinley School.

Everett, at 23, was the youngest member of the team, while the "elder statesman" of the group was Walter M. Donaugh, 61, 3880 Fairmoor-dr.

Group activities included a balance of work, instruction and recreation. In addition to general instructions by Shelter Manger Merritt, courses were given in first aid and the use of equipment for detecting radioactive material. Nurse Mary Garrity, 1415 Briarwood, emergency room supervisor at Mt. Carmel Hospital, handled the former class, while F. Louis Gillespie, 122 E. Park-st, Westerville, conducted the latter. Gillespie is an employe of the BUC.

Gives Sobering Advice

Merritt's instruction dealt with some of the awesome responsibilities to be faced by a shelter manager under actual attack conditions. Medical supplies, he reminded, would be all but non-existent. Treatment of any injured person admitted to the shelter would have to be given on the basis of preference to those who could be saved rather than those in the most dire need.

A person may insist on leaving the shelter before it is safe, he said. If he does not respond to reason and persuasion, he must be turned out to the certain death of radiation rather than risk the spread of panic to other shelter inhabitants.

Gillespie dealt at length with the deadly gamma ray emitted from radioactive material. He explained that decay of radioactive material over a two-week period should be enough to allow at least emergency travel outside the shelter. First trips out — such as for food — should be alternated, he said, to guard against over-exposure to any individual.

People and foods exposed to radiation do not become radioactive, he said. Radiation sickness, with progressive symptoms of headache, nausea and vomiting, is not contagious once the person has been decontaminated.

Radio Keeps In Touch

Broadcasts from EBS through the shelter stay did much to highlight for me the instructions presented by Gillespie. Announcements told of radiation reaching a peak; declining but still deadly dangerous; lower but still unsafe for travel from the shelter. There were reports of people who had left shelters without permission, only to return mortally afflicted with radiation sickness.

Interspersed with the fallout reports were announcements that most of our state and national officials had survived the initial blasts; that many cities had been hit hard, but that we had retaliated. As the simulated battle progressed, we learned through EBS that our water supply had become contaminated — necessitating the immediate shutting off of all taps in use.

Later we were told of the strength of retaliation; that we had destroyed the enemy capital, and two of the enemy satellite countries had surrendered. But — though the tide of battle had turned our way — we were constantly cautioned against leaving the shelter without authorization from the shelter manager. And, even with the word that we had won the battle, came the foreboding information that we could still lose the war.

"Life as we have known it no longer exists," the announcer intoned, as he reminded us of the boundless courage and energy that would be required to rebuild our communities.

This last mentioned announcement, I think, brought me to the peak of frustration. There would be no victory parade; no dancing in the streets; only the bleak prospect of hardships, trials and more hardships in the brutal task of rebuilding. I wanted to close my ears and my mind, but I couldn't — and I can't.

Devise Recreation

But shelter life — even under the most adverse outside conditions — must include recreation as an integral part of survival. Most of our entertainment was on a group participation basis.

Friday night's bill-of-fare centered on the swapping of jokes and stories—almost any of which could have been repeated in the most polite adult company. On Saturday night we "lived it up" with a game of charades and a community sing. A good, hot drum solo was provided by William T. (Tom) Brown, 320 S. Ashburton-rd. Brown, a State Automobile Insurance Co. accountant, is a drummer by avocation.

Then there were card games, with hearts and euchre predominating. We concluded Saturday night "show" with a short bunny hop session — an attempt to generate a little heat in the hallway prior to bed time. Despite a thermometer at one end of the hall that didn't dip below 75 degrees, many of us were chilled Friday night.

A Saturday night move to the "warm" end of the hall still didn't satisfy all of us. It was explained that our group, being relatively small, failed to generate the amount of body temperature heat as that from a larger group a similar test two months ago. The big problem with a full complement of shelter dwellers would be too much heat rather than not enough.

'Screen' New Arrivals

There were other things we learned prior to our encounter with daylight again Sunday afternoon. But not before we were put through our paces for admitting new shelter dwellers.

The new arrivals were thoroughly screened; "frisked" for possible concealed weapons and checked for traces of radioactive material. Thanks to our alert security force, (distaff side) a piece of radioactive material was discovered.

The newcomers (six girls from the Capital University School of Nursing) played their parts well. They professed to know nothing of the baseball and football scores that assumed new importance as we prepared to leave the shelter. But we forgave their cruelty when they entertained with some lovely harmony. They included Fay Shealy, Sharon McClellan, Ruth Oberhommert, Ingrid Weihl, Roberta Cattran and Candace Carver.

Only upon the arrival of Civil Defense Director Russell E. Pennell and Assistant Director Ray Jacobs did the girls give out with the news bulletins.

Only upon the arrival of Civil Defense Director Russell E. Pennell and Assistant Director Ray Jacobs did the girls give out with the news bulletins.

Of the eight women who participated, five are nurses. In addition to Mary Garrity, they included: Grant Hospital nurses Dorothy A. Workman, 913 Timberman-rd; Helen L. Guiter, 580 Park-dr, and Jane Overdorff, 205 N. State-st, Westerville, and Gerrie Case, 6498 Penick-dr, Reynoldsburg, a nurse at Columbus State Hospital.

The other women included Miss Janet E. Sheets, 3413 Medina-av, a varitypist for Western Electric; Mrs. Audrey Mechlin, 1213 Francespl, Kroger Co. bakery floor supervisor, and Mrs. Sally Nuber, 242 Letchworth-av, a housewife and mother of six children.

Among the men participants were:

Richard G. Au, 1790 Eastern-st, a State Automobile Insurance Co. IBM operator; Robert L. Art, 130 W. Longview-av, an Ohio Department of Highways employe in the Division of Right-of-Way; Arthur Thompson, Fenchurch-rd, Gahanna, a Linden McKinley school teacher; Raymond A. Cole, 677 Josephine-av, a die setter at General Motors Corp. Ternstedt Division; Wesley Sawyer, 1919 Denbridge-wy, manager of Poindexter Village; and Richard M. Reynolds, 4073 Mayflower-blvd, superintendent of maintenance at the Nell House Hotel.

Each of the participants claimed the experience was one not to be forgotten.

There is much to be known about nuclear attack survival that could not be covered in a single story. The Civil Defense office at 1045 S. High-st (Hi. 3-9444) stands ready to answer all requests for information.

Are you interested — or have we told you too much already?

TRAINING SESSIONS were a highly important part of the "indoor camping" test. The potential shelter managers give their undivided attention to instructor Lou Gillespie (standing at right) as he details the dangers of radiation.

THE SUN was bright and warm Sunday. Shelter dwellers Mary Garrity and Janet Sheets discovered that they could utilize a blacked-out window in the shelter manager's office as a back-warmer.

INSTRUCTION classes were followed by "dry runs" by trainees. William T. (Tom) Brown tries his skill with a Geiger counter in a search for radioactive material.

THE FALLOUT SHELTER security team goes into action on new arrivals. Each was checked for concealed weapons and radioactive material. The team found a radioactive "pill" that one of the girls tried to smuggle into the group.

GROUP "LETDOWN" was in evidence for a couple of hours Saturday. The shelter manager scheduled a training class to perk things up, and the "gloom" period was over for the rest of the shelter stay.

Sewer Plant Work Gains Council Nod

Columbus City Council, meeting in regular session Monday night, authorized expenditure of $1,080,200 to execute contracts for construction of service and administration buildings for the $15 million Shadeville sewage treatment plant.

Project bids were opened on Oct. 1. Four low bids were accepted in preference to a "package" bid that was approximately $50,000 above the total of the four separate bids.

Contracts for the work are being prepared, and construction is expected to begin in about two weeks. The project is scheduled for completion late in 1964.

In other action, Council:

Appropriated $1,060 to permit the urban renewal director to enter into contract for construction, erection and maintenance of a sign for the Children's Hospital project.

Declared intent of appropriating easements for the Hamilton-Marion Township storm sewer improvement.

During a previous council session, councilmen confirmed the action of the director of public service and chief engineer in ordering $4,500 in emergency work on the High-st viaduct.

Cafeteria Program Reported

In recognition of National School Lunch Week, Oct. 13 to 19, Mrs. Mary Klamfoth, director of the school lunch program in the Madison district, recently reviewed the program.

Last year the 16 employes under her supervision served 196,413 lunches to the children in a $58,000 business.

Her records show that her shopping list included almost 5,000 pounds of sugar and nearly 1,000 No. 10 cans of green beans.

With each lunch served came at least one half-pint of milk purchased from local dairymen which makes the program an important part of the local economy.

The low-cost lunches, superior nutritionally to what can be packed at home, are made possible by reimbursement of four cents a meal from the federal government, and federally donated foods amounting to about eight cents of the cost of each lunch.

Mrs. Klamfoth pointed out that in Ohio almost 24 million pounds of food were distributed to the cafeterias of the schools last year including ground beef, turkey and a wide variety of canned fruits and vegetables.

Each meal is prepared, she added, according to government specifications which are designed to provide one-third of a child's daily food requirements.

This week's menus are printed elsewhere in the Rural-Urban News.

IN HER OFFICE, Mrs. Mary Klamfoth, director of the School lunch program at the Madison Local Schools, proudly reported that in spite of serving menus that include such items as cube and salisbury steak that she is "in the lack." This is the fifth year that Mrs. Klamfoth who lives on Richardson-rd has directed the program.

Let's 'Expose' Good People

"The evil that men do lives long after them; the good is oft interred with their bones." So said Mark Anthony in his eulogy of Julius Caesar, and so it remains, generally, in today's world.

Therefore, it is the more satisfying to promote the positive side of living by sponsoring again the Suburban Homemaker of the Year search. Last year four homemakers from areas covered by Hartley Newspapers traveled to Chicago as our local representatives. None strolled off with the $5,000 American Dairy Association grand award, but we were not less proud of our representatives.

Although it would be nice to be able to claim the National Suburban Homemaker as a localite, we are particularly interested in the opportunity to spotlight the many "hidden" qualities of the suburban homemaker. This is the era of the image, and all too often we are faced with a distorted image of suburban living and suburbanites.

The best way to bring the image into sharp focus is to counteract the negative with the positive. This is best accomplished at the neighborhood level by those who have daily contact with some wonderful but unheralded people. The good qualities are more apt to escape public attention because these women are usually modest.

It is a good social exercise to encourage people to "expose" the goodness of another person — that such goodness may serve as a living example rather than a monument to the deceased.

Child Welfare Levy Needed

Passage of the 1.5 mill Franklin County Child Welfare Levy is a community responsibility that should be clearly understood and met on Nov. 5.

Despite the almost total agreement that the need for the children involved is both serious and urgent, two general misconceptions threaten this vital issue.

One involves the word "welfare." The other deals with ballot wording which says that the levy is for the purpose of "supplementing the general fund for the support of child welfare services and the care and placement of children."

It should be clearly understood that child "welfare" procedures do not call for any type of "dole" to any family members, relatives or friends of the children involved. Any monies expended are controlled ENTIRELY by the Child Welfare Board and used EXCLUSIVELY for the benefit of the CHILDREN placed in the care of CWB.

It should also be understood that the proposed levy is for the sole use of the CWB for protection services and care of the children. The fact that the levy monies would be disbursed from general funds does not permit use of the levy money for other purposes.

Certainly we have not become so hardened as a community that we will not protect the children who cannot protect themselves. We strongly urge that you vote FOR the Child Welfare Levy.

Theater Group Merits Public Support

Saturday will mark the opening of an organization that will provide training for potential acting and production talent. The Columbus Junior Theatre of the Arts will provide professionals in every field of theatre to instruct children from eight to 18.

Incorporated as a non-profit organization, the group will occupy quarters at 2370 W. Broad-st.

With the possibility that road shows may no longer come to Columbus' Hartman Theater, it may be necessary for Columbus to develop its own theatrical artists.

The Junior Theatre could fill the vacuum with students trained in acting, stagecraft, lighting, design, costuming and make-up. Their experience and training could substantially enhance the prestige of Columbus' many community theater groups.

The Junior Theatre has already received support and guidance from Ohio State University personnel, and the project has been sanctioned by Columbus Public Schools. The support of these organizations and the promise of this enterprise, however, will be null without the support and encouragement of the public.

Seeks Support Putting Pension Bill Through

To the Editor:

Many of your readers have read the small item that appeared recently in the papers announcing that Congressman W. K. Denton from Indiana had filed a recall petition, but it failed to say what petition it is. Permit me, as a legislative officer of this district for the Veterans of W.W. I USA, Inc., to fill in the gaps.

For several years past, Olin Teague, chairman of the House Veterans Affairs Committee, had bottled up all pension legislation presented by our organization and its friends in Congress and a recall petition is a last resort effort to take such bills out of that committee and place them before the full Congress.

This petition is known as Discharge Petition No. 4 to consider Bill HR 2332 via resolution No. 496; and we urge all our friends to write their congressmen and urge them to sign this petition.

Congressman Denton in his speech of presentation noted that in 1933 45 cents purchased $1 worth of goods; in 1963 it takes $1.07 to purchase the same amount.

W. Heller, presidential advisor on economic affairs, stated recently that any income below $3000 is poverty status and the Department of Commerce estimates that an average standard of living now is $3600 for a single person and $4000 for a married couple.

HR 2332 proposes that the income limitation be $2400 for a single person and $3600 for a married couple, with an allowance of an additional $1200 income from pensions, etc., other than a service pension.

Congress has been using scare tactics in estimating the cost of this bill.

The present estimated death rate of W.W. I veterans is 329 per day and it is estimated that by the year 1970 841,000 will have died, so the billion dollar first year cost of this bill will decline steadily.

Here are more iron-clad reasons why the W.W. I veteran is entitled to a service pension NOW. Congress has granted such pension to the following wars' veterans and dependents: Revolutionary War, 35 years after war's end; Mexican War, 39 years; Indian Wars (some 25 in all) from 25 to 53 years; Civil War, 24; Spanish-American, 19 years.

Now it's been 45 years since the end of W.W. I, the average age is 70 years, so write your congressman and ask him to sign NOW.

Jesus Transmitted Healing Power To Others

Mark 6:56 ". . . and as many as touched him were made whole."

If statistics could be gathered of the number of people today who are unwhole we would be startled.

Un-whole physically: those who are born incomplete; those who have met with accident; those whom illness cripples; others who must sacrifice an organ or member of the body in order to live. How many millions of such are there? "X" millions plus one — Jesus — who by some mysterious direction that we can never fully comprehend, allowed his body to be broken on a Cross. What complete indentification with the unfortunates of the world in all time was this sacrifice of his life!

Rev. Kellar

Un-whole mentally: add the number who are born complete physically but whose minds are deficient; those who crack under the strain of the pace of modern living; the thousand whose ideas warp and twist under the barrage of conflicting doctrines, be they political, social or economic.

Un-whole spiritually: There are many folks born complete physically and mentally but who spiritually become unhealthy, un-whole. The parents who, when death takes away a beloved child, blame God and allow bitterness to fill their souls; those who cannot face disease and pain with composure; those who lose faith when overcome by economic loss; those overwhelmed by riches and for whom life loses its zest to the extent that they prefer to end it all by suicide; those who become anti-social, who turn to crime, to self-indulgence.

Paul gives us a formidable list of spiritual diseases: "fornication, uncleanliness, lasciviousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties, envyings, drunkenness, revelings, and such like." At the worst, those who, like the one thief on the cross, under condemnation still scorn and defy God.

This would be a dark, discouraging picture to paint of life if Jesus had not come into it. He did come. He came with light to brighten all the dark corners. Song accompanied his last supper. He brought compassion with the love of a Heavenly Father—as he said "to preach good tidings to the poor . . . to proclaim release to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty to them that are bruised . . ."

Jesus came with power and authority. Thousands thronged him, touched him, and were healed. One of the glorious facts of life is that Jesus transmitted this healing power to others. We are entitled to think that every leprosarium and hospital, every eye and blood bank, every severed member sewn back upon the body, every transplanted organ of the body, witnesses to the presence of Jesus at work, through others, in the world today. Every school where minds are quickened or restored to new life is evidence of his power and love.

Every heart that rejoices when it finds peace and joy by yielding and responding to the love of God preached sincerely in our churches likewise is proof that Jesus is at work in our midst. ". . . and as many as touched him were made whole."

WEE, SMALL TIME

When I'm right, no one remembers.
When I'm wrong, no one forgets.
Too many make it vocal,
for gossip flies on vultures' wings seeking for things
the better left unsaid.
All geniuses are lonely,
and I'm not of the breed.
But please, my friends and foes, let me be lonely and nurse my own mistakes for just a wee, small time.

When you know you're right and make an effort to prove it, you wonder why your friends don't remember. But make one mistake, and a whole, noisy flock of I-told-you-so's seem never to let you rest. So what do you do?

You admit you're not one of the lonely tribe of geniuses. You're just another ordinary Joe trying to do a job. And you don't see why the gossip mongers have to hound you when all you want is to be left with your own mistakes and let others make peace as best they can with theirs.

Then you remember that a wise one once said that if you're right 51 times out of a hundred, you've got it made. That is, if you don't worry too much about the other 49.

It says here . . .

The greatest mistake is letting the first one happen. Remember the chain reaction?

An Editor's Outlook
Berlin Wall: Russian 'Democracy' In Action

BERLIN — The wall is about 18 miles long. It coils through the city like a serpent, leaving a poisonous slime on either side.

As you approach the wall from the West the business buildings and the stores fade out and the apartments grow more dilapidated and worse repaired. No one on the West seems to want to live near the wall for in the event of a sudden attack there would be no warning and little defense.

Jones

Before there was a wall people on the East were happy to live right up to the line. But after the 13th of August, 1961, when the Communists sealed the border and started reinforcing the temporary barbed wire with brick these dwellings-on-the-line became a danger and an embarrassment.

People kept jumping out of the windows into freedom. Escape tunnels were easily dug. So after 40 days the East German government ordered all its citizens living within 300 yards of the wall to get out of their homes. Where the wall went, therefore, human life retreated.

As a human barrier the wall is impressive, not as impressive, of course, as a penitentiary wall, but undoubtedly the world's finest stockade for non-criminals. On the east side looking west you stand behind the new six-foot fence. Beyond the fence there is an endless hurdle of concrete blocks four feet high and three feet thick. This will effectively stop a bulldozer. Beyond that there is 100 meters of open space affording a clear field of fire from the blockhouses. Beyond that is the wall, itself, six feet high, topped with three feet of barbed wire.

The 2 p.m. sightseeing bus for East Berlin threads through the concrete slabs that guard the Soviet side of Checkpoint Charlie. It is a double barrier and the openings are not in line. The volkspolizei pass down the aisle, examining our passports and currency declarations. Our driver goes around the bus, opening the baggage compartments for inspection. Then the young man comes aboard.

The young man is an employe of the East German tourist office. He is also our guide. In precise English he welcomes us to the German People's Republic "where we are building democratic socialism."

The more-than-slightly-nervous passengers listen solemnly to the young man and stare out the windows. We pass through the belt of abandoned buildings, through streets flanked by partially demolished apartment blocks. There is little automobile traffic. The tram cars need paint. The shops are drab. Only the great red signs stretched across the buildings, proclaiming the invincibility of socialism and urging greater sacrifices for its glory, lend color to the scene.

All this time the young man is talking happily. He points to the magnificent old ruins, built, he says, by "the militarists and imperialists." He shows the spot where the Nazis burned the books. A moment later he points proudly to the new national library, where there are, of course, no books of the burnable kind. He tells of the youth organizations and he rhapsodizes about how women, under socialism, "have equal opportunities for development." I remember the old crones sweeping the streets of Moscow and Odessa with brush brooms, exercising their splendid opportunities.

We stop, of course, at the magnificent Soviet war memorial. We are taken past the new apartment buildings and the young man speaks of the very cheap rents. He doesn't mention that the purchasing power of the East German mark is about one-quarter that of the West mark, or that butter and meat are festival foods, or that sugar and tea are still rationed.

The best is saved for the last — the glittering Stalinallee. But it isn't the Stalinallee any more. Lucifer has fallen. It is the Karl Marx Allee and into its marble facades the Reds poured much of the money which they have saved by underpaying and overcharged their happy subjects. It was to be the big front, the store window, the dazzling showpiece of the "New Wave of the Future." Like the "Old Wave of the Future," memorialized chiefly by Goering's Air Ministry, it needs depth.

At last we approach Checkpoint Charlie once more. The young man flashes a disarming smile. Some people, he says, have asked about the wall. He will be glad to show us the wall. It was made necessary by the infiltration of fascist spies and saboteurs. The Democratic Socialist People's Republic must protect their people. He will show us the exact spot where a 20-year-old People's policeman was shot by a fascist bandit who was apprehended trying to sneak into East Berlin.

I was on the point of asking about the fascist bandits disguised as men, women and children who have been shot trying to get across the wall in the other direction. But a youth with a burp gun was surveying us from a blockhouse. It didn't seem the best place to start an argument.

Checkpoint Charlie. The young man bids us good-day. The passports again. The examination of the bus. The lifting of the gates and the threading of the barriers. Suddenly everybody on the bus — the Americans, the Indonesian students, the Japanese family — starts chattering.

Nikita Khrushchev has described West Berlin as a "bone in the throat." It's a good description of a deadly embarrassment. You cannot stand to have your people in contact with this embarrassment, so you build a wall. But then you have to explain the wall.

I was sorry for the poor young man.

Frosting On The Cake

By
"UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

At least 50 years ago, I remember reading the statement of some home grown, garden variety economist, to the effect that "a rolling dollar is the only dollar that puts wheels on the wagon of business." And he ended his statement with the wise old adage that "Little Miss Profit is the gal who furnishes the axle grease." How true, how true.

Only the voluntary velocity of money creates genuine business activity and increased economic stability in any body-politic.

When people are allowed to make some money in the hustle and bustle of private enterprise, regulated by honest competition, ambitious people get ahead and lay up some reserves to be available when good sense and good intentions indicate the need for added expansion through creative investment.

But, so long as profit is a "dirty" word and men and women who have adequate abilities and energy are penalized by the Populist theology that only a few sets of brains have what it takes to manage the entire lives of millions of the rest of us, the whole farce breaks down and "secure stagnation" results.

For too long the professional minders of other people's business have had this country hog-tied in the longhair theory that profit is dying on the vine of business. The wildeyed "spenders" now appear to be encountering their come-uppance.

One Woman's Opinion . . .
Political Pot Boils Corn For The Ears

Do you have any ribbons to cut or any cornerstones that need to be laid?

If so strike now while the iron is hot.

Franklin County is chock-full of dignitaries, who with an eye on a certain November date, are delighted to perform such tasks — especially if there is reasonable assurance that there will be a Speed - Graphic around.

Mrs. Robinson

After all, it is election year and the always - simmering political pot is boiling!

There are more sure signs of candidates warming up for the race than there are woolly caterpillars prophesying a hard winter.

Even to the politically naive they are as strong as an incumbent's handshake.

Just in case you are "from Missouri," here is a check list of what to look for.

1. Ghost writers are taking on a new look—that which comes from eating quite well.

2. Unpleasant legislation like increased water rates is shelved and enforcement of unpopular laws is at a low ebb.

3. There's a marked decrease in "hoof-in-mouth" disease as fence-straddling becomes a popular sport.

4. Skeletons in various closets that have been allowed a couple years' rest are being given a good rattle.

5. Joints can be heard creaking as grandfathers pose for publicity shots playing on the floor with any available grandchildren, sometimes borrowed.

6. Newspaper reporters, generally regarded as necessary nuisances take on a "It's wonderful while it lasts" attitude as they are suddenly treated like Class A citizens.

7. The heavens are rent with anguished cries for "equal space" which translated means, "I want more than he gets."

8. Sales of indigestion wafers soar as politicians manfully wade through endless menus of chicken a la king, frozen peas, perfection salad and apple pie and cheese.

9. Candidates are walking straight and tall. They must, to keep their halos from tipping.

And last, but not least, the political observer will see that as November comes closer and the frost forms on the pumpkin, all the corn isn't confined to the shock!"—JANE ROBINSON.

Hamilton has added a new sport to its activities, a girls' hockey team. The advisors are Mrs. Barns and Mrs. Rupert. The advisors set up the games and teach the fundamentals. Officers were elected on Wednesday, with Elvia Sasser, captain, and Verleen Eldsmoe, secretary. The team meets Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday, and practice lasts one and a half to two hours. Their first game was with Grandview on Tuesday. The visiting team proved victorious. The girls on the Hamilton team plan to raise money to buy grass seed for their field. Their next game will be with Bishop Hartley, Oct. 21 at Bishop Hartley.

ESSENTIAL TOO!

The boys on the field are carrying the bulk of the game, but all the boys on the bench are eagerly awaiting their opportunity to get in the game. Some will get to play, others won't, yet each is essential to the team. During practice each week their efforts help build a better team.

To function properly, a church must work as a team. The Pastor and his associates carry most of the load. Many others are needed to help train and teach, or do many other tasks. However whether or not you can serve the Lord in some capacity, your presence in the worship services does help you and others too. ATTEND CHURCH THIS SUNDAY... YOU WILL BE GLAD THAT YOU DID.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH ... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

NO SLAVES IN THIS KITCHEN

THE HARDY PIONEER WOMEN who settled Franklin County probably wouldn't have known where to begin in a kitchen with every modern convenience as this one of the model houses put up at the Great Southern Shopping Center by Virginia Homes. But the 20th century housewife will find it a delight with its careful planning which takes the drudgery out of cooking. The hooded range is only one of the "extras" provided. Again this weekend shoppers at Great Southern will be given keys to treasure chests placed within the homes, and those with the keys which prove as magical as "Open, Sesame" will receive valuable gifts.

LOCAL GROUPS HOST MEET

Barber Shop Quartets, Choruses To Compete In District Contest

Welfare—

But she needs help and guidance, and the opportunity for employment. She is elderly and cannot always protect the children from the beatings of a drunken father.

But where is this little money and counsel she needs to come from?

The director regards each of the children released prematurely when Franklin Village began to close down as a blight on the responsibility of the community.

Already, many of these boys have been caught shoplifting and pilfering. Already their chance for a decent life has been halved.

No, voters aren't being asked merely to vote for the 1.5 mills, they are, according to Wahl, being asked to vote for human dignity.

"Too often," he concluded, "the voice of the small child is not heard."

Board—

and disabled ballots.

Ryan, a member of the Board of Elections, told the luncheon group that his plan would be presented at the regular meeting of the board on Monday, Oct. 21, and would have the backing of the two Democratic members.

Charging a lack of voter registration facilities in Franklin County, Ryan said:

"This capital city of ours, second largest in the state, ranks far behind other metropolitan Ohio areas in providing registration facilities."

In reporting that parts of the plan he proposed are already being effectively used in other areas of the state, Ryan cited inadequacies of only one location for voter registration. He said that time, traffic and distance pose the main problems to registration. Board of Elections business hours, he said, coincide with the hours most people must be at their jobs.

Ryan said the branch office plan could be accomplished by "utilizing existing public facilities and the present staff of the Board of Elections," and with "little additional expense."

Ohio election laws are far from meeting the needs of modern communities in many respects, Ryan said. He said that proposals for updating election laws would be presented to the 106th Ohio General Assembly which meets in 1965, but that his present plan was intended to meet the interim needs at the local level.

Ryan also urged that Columbus City Council act to correct charter election laws to prevent a recurrence of a write-in vote. Voting machines, he said; were neither designed nor intended to be used for a write-in city election.

Law—

nouncing the sale of such items.

Young said that his office cannot appeal Judge Gillie's decision. He said a higher court test of the constitutionality of the ordinance could result if a subsequent guilty verdict on another case resulted in an appeal of the conviction. In a previous court case the ordinance was declared constitutional. The defendant, however, was found not guilty when the court ruled that he made a reasonable effort to comply with the law.

Judge Gillie's 15-page opinion ruled that the Columbus ordinance "circumvents a commerce clause in the U. S. Constitution by imposing restrictions and burdens on commerce with a foreign nation."

As a result of the ruling, charges were dismissed against Hugh Maxwell McGuire, manager of Allied Surplus, 363 S. Central-av, and Thomas Nadar and David Schwartz, employes of Arlan's Department Store, 2361 Morse-rd, and against the store.

Use Of Fire 'Verboten' At Local Parks

If you happen to be planning a picnic at Blacklick Woods, Darby Creek, or Blendon Woods don't forget to bring everything except matches.

The Columbus Metropolitan Park Board feels that the current dry spell would make outdoor cooking a danger to both picknickers and park property.

This ban will be lifted after the first rain or upon a notice from the park board.

'HE SAILED THE OCEAN BLUE'

THE TALENTS OF SOUTH high School artists, Mike Kinney, Phillip Dunbar and Ray Long, were on display last week at the Kroger Store, 1211 Parsons-av. In observation of Columbus Day they painted a mural on the windows depicting the Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria. Showing off the handiwork are the store manager, Tom Bowers, 6303 Rygate-rd, and David Gribble, co-manager, 1501 Streibel-rd. The art director at South, Mrs. Orma Anderson, supervised the boys in their project.

WITH THE SEEDS that they plan to start farming with in case of atomic attack, Randal, son of Mr. and Mrs. James McDowell of Sunvali and Fred, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Woodworth, 3429 Hamilton-rd, discuss with their teacher, William Grubb who has supervised the novel class project of building a new world after an atomic war. Randal stated that he thought Mr. Grubb was a good teacher, "but he really pours it on if you don't do your homework."

SIXTH GRADE TACKLES PROBLEMS OF SURVIVAL AFTER ATOMIC WAR

William Grubb, sixth grade teacher at Brice Elementary, has devised an interesting and original way to challenge the imaginations of his students.

During October his social study classes are stocking a bomb shelter, not only with what they would need for survival in case of atomic attack, but with the articles they are learning would be necessary to preserve civilization.

During class discussion, Grubb guided the children to selection of 19 articles which they must take within the shelter with them.

But to each child he left a free choice for a 20th item.

To his surprise and pleasure, each child chose the same thing — the Holy Bible.

Grubb explained that he was attempting to correlate for the children how all the knowledge taught in school would help them in survival in a desolate world.

In their studies he has brought out the importance of hygiene, quoting to the children that if they chose to live like animals they would come to act like animals.

Bringing in science, he has taught each child of the class to operate a two-way radio so that contact might be established with other people in the world.

With a basic knowledge of tools and horticulture, upon emerging from the shelter, the children would be able to establish the shelter and the gardens and fields that would keep them alive.

The history of primitive people has been emphasized to allow the students an insight to life without the wonders of modern science that they accept for granted today.

Not all the problems that they must face have been solved by the class but Grubb is delighted with the determination which they have tackled the problems that would prove baffling to high school students.

Currently they are trying to work out the questions of air filtering and adequate restroom facilities.

With their unbounded enthusiasm, they'll undoubtedly come up with an acceptable answer before "Aw" day (atomic war day) which Grubb has scheduled as a climax for the month's activities.

ESPECIALLY FACINATED by the two-way radio was Diane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dorian Dildine of Edgewater Park. Seated, Linda daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bullock of Sun Vall claims she has learned more in this class than in any other.

Imagine this dilemma if you can: You rent a car, which turns out to be a stick gear shift, a type you've not handled for 15 years, and after a few brief instructions you're practically pushed out on a super-highway to "sink or swim", mixing metaphors slightly. But that's not all, for an additional fact is that the situation occurs, not in America, but in a European nation.

Thus began the overseas holiday for Lena Maas, well-known accordionist in Central Ohio. With Lena on the trip was Edna Walz, a Granville High School teacher who formerly lived at 898 Bruck-st. The two residents of 1185 Kingslea-rd began their vacation in June and returned late in August. They enjoyed their six-hour lay-over at Idlewild Airport, watching the global-style commuters arrive and depart on the one-every-minute planes. Their own destination, Frankfort-on-Main, was reached in 6½ hours. The car rental episode occurred on Lena's first day in Germany and we are happy to report that she mastered the situation quickly and was soon zipping up and down mountains and over the Autobahn like an old pro.

The two women first stopped at Wiesental to visit some of Lena's relatives. Lena was surprised to discover she had so many kinfolk, enjoyed the many get-togethers. The next destination was Eningen, near Stuttgart, which is located in a beautiful valley surrounded by majestic mountains. Their hosts in Eningen were friends of the Granville teacher.

The duo then proceeded to Munich, where they joined forces with Mr. and Mrs. William Kielblock, 201 Frebis-av, and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Metzgar, who formerly resided on Deshler-av before moving to 1554 Selkirk.

The six enjoyed visiting such spots as the Hofbrau House, known for its food, and the Platza noted for its entertainment. Still in a group, the sextet took a bus tour through Austria and over the beautiful Grossglockner Pass to Triest, where they spent two days. A bus trip took them on to Venice, Italy, and naturally we asked Lena if she rode one of the famed gondolas. We learned that she'd missed this experience, but that she had taken a boat "street car" to Marcus Square.

The return trip to Munich was made by way of the Brenner Pass. The Metzgers left the party in Munich, as they were visiting relatives they had not seen for many years.

By now our "stick" gear-shifted was driving like the automatic variety was still a thing of the future, so the stay in Salzburg, Austria, was spent in a through touring around the area. During this portion of the summer holiday, the localites visited spot in Germany and Austria, such as Salzkammergut, the Berchtesgaden, Innsbruck, Garmisch-partenkirchen and Oberammergau, site of the Passion Play.

They were not able to view the play, but were able to take a tour to see the "behind-the scenes" preparations that must go on before the crucifixion play can be produced.

More motoring found them in the Alps of Tyroland, Austria, followed by a visit to Kiissnach, Switzerland, which is near Zurich. Their week's stay found them touring all the nearby attractions, and enjoying the sport of boating which is a feature of the village.

Wanting to view as much as possible of this section of Europe, the return trip to Eninger was made by way of the Black Forest region. Needless to say, the duo visited castles and cathedrals everywhere on their trip, enough to make a travelogue of that phase alone!

Lena mentioned that while in Wiesbaden, she and Edna had driven up the Rhine to Essen to visit a former Columbusite, Lisette Burgel, who has returned to the land of her birth, and thought Lisette's South Side neighbors might be interested to learn of the fact. The Mannhein, the birthplace of Lena's parents, was also visited by the Americans.

Lena, an accomplished accordionist as her fellow members of the Maennerchor well known, was prevailed upon to play quite often during her trip abroad, but had to do so on borrowed instruments since her own was left behind in Ohio.

We asked Mrs. Maas what some of her outstanding memories were, naturally. One such recollection was the hundreds of bicycles, especially in the villages. She reports that even those attending funerals, did so on the two-wheeled conveyances, clad in black from head to toe. If it were raining, they simply added an umbrella to their equipment. Another novelty to her were the chimney sweeps who visited each home about four times a year, carrying their sooty ladder and cleaning gear, which resembled a plumber's snake with an attached brush. Most of them wore a sort of beret on their heads, but one, whose picture she HAD to take, appeared on the scene with a high silk hat, if you please!

Hot running water is unheard of in the villages, even though each has a hot water heater in the bathroom, and the fire underneath must be kindled each time a bath is planned. The water pipe goes directly to the tub. One person, after bathing, puts hot brick in the fire of the hot water tank so a second person may also bathe in warm water.

Lena and Edna soon learned to forget the daily bath routine and to appreciate the art of sponge bathing. As the Columbusite puts it, however, it is only by living under the same conditions as the natives of a country that one can absorb the true "flavor" of that country. Maybe she should share her wisdom with some of our globe-trotting government officials, yes?

'Ott' Mansfield Recalls Groveport 'When...'

OLD-TIMER LOOKS BACK

"Ott" Mansfield has watched a lot of changes come to pass in Groveport since he was born in the house at the corner of College and Canal-sts, where he still lives 86 years later.

Amazingly progressive in thought for an "old-timer" Ott thoroughly approves of most of the changes he's seen and has no nostalgia for the days of coal oil street lights, roads four inches thick with dust, and refrigeration so poor that pork never appeared on the table in summertime.

But he has a couple of complaints about the changing times.

The first is that "I used to know everyone for five miles around, and now I don't know anyone."

Obviously missing his old friends, many of whom he has outlived, the old gentleman remarked, "It isn't right to make a hermit out of a man just because he's old."

He also feels very strongly that many parents today are not giving their children the discipline which they need in order to grow up knowing the difference between right and wrong.

He recalled the time 75 years ago when he took his first — and last — venture in crime. He stole 50 cents.

"My father stopped to get a buggy whip, took me to the wood shed, and nearly cut my back in strips. But it put an end to my stealing for once and for all," he said without rancor.

His voice broke as he remembered years later when he was a grown man his father confessed that after giving the whipping he himself went behind the shed and wept.

"But if parents would do as my dad did, you wouldn't hear about juvenile delinquency," he added.

Still blessed with reasonably good eyesight, Ott keeps up with the world through reading and television, admitting to an addiction for "Westerns."

"And I still read my Bible, although not as much as I should at my age," he said with a wry smile.

Calling himself a jack of all trades he recalled cooking for the gang at his father's sawmill when only 15, his years of barbering, a long career as an inside and outside painter, and his life-long love of horses in which he dealt.

Reviewing the Mansfield family history, he told of his grandfather's migrating to Groveport from England with a brother who stopped off in Athens County to make his home.

It was his grandfather who built as a grocery store and home the building that now houses the Cruzer Inn.

Ninety-two years ago Ott's father tore down the log cabin from a site where the power plant stands and reassembled

AMONG THE PAPERS found after "Ott" Mansfield's mother died in 1926 was the parchment copy he holds of a reprint of the Ulster County Gazette published in New York at the time of George Washington's death. The copy itself apparently was distributed nearly 100 years ago. With news of Napoleon, a eulogy of Washington by John Adams who was then president and 1799 dispatches from Downing-st in London, the publication brings the 18th century to life.

Sessions Scheduled For Scout Leaders

Believing that the training of its leaders is essential to the success of the Boy Scout movement, Rev. Lyle Brown has announced training sessions for adults interested in scouting to be held Thursday, Oct. 17, Thursday, Oct. 24 and Wednesday, Oct. 30.

The three classes which will give an introduction to scouting on the levels of cubbing, scouting and exploring are all scheduled from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Club House of the Owens-Illinois Glass Co., 740 E. Jenkins-av.

Brown, who heads the training committee of the Mohawk District, has especially urged unit leaders and all den mothers of the district to attend, though all others are welcome. He pointed out that each of these classes are required for the Scouting Award and the Scouting Key.

Mrs. Margaret Hauck will direct the cubbing classes while Ed Hueckel, Jr., and Jim Bell will be in charge of the scouting and explorers sections respectively.

Donald Mack will be the chief instructor.

To defray expenses of materials and printing, a charge of 35 cents a session or $1 for the series will be charged.

TWO AND TWO

Add two and two and you get fifty. How? Mrs. Ralph E. Fleming of 3273 Race, recently used a two-line Hartley Newspapers Want Ad to advertise twin beds. She sold them within an hour after receiving her paper and received a total of 50 calls. It'll just take you one call to BR. 4-1155 to get results like this.

WE OFFER A PRIZE

Our newspapers are joining some others across the country in offering a suitable prize to some reader who sends in the nearest correct answer to the following question:

"What national crisis will the United States be confronted with on the eve of the presidential election next November?"

It was Oct. 22, 1962, just two weeks before election day, that President Kennedy reported to the people on his discovery of the Russian conversion of Cuba into a Soviet missile base, and issued the ultimatum to which Khrushchev so obligingly surrendered (it seemed) before the polls opened.

Next year the president himself will be running for re-election. Will we have an appropriate crisis at the right time?

If you have observations send them along in a brief letter to the editor of our newspapers. It will be sealed and the postmark retained so that we will have an accurate way to determine who submits the correct answer first.

The prize? We haven't selected it yet, but if enough contests are conducted we may prevent a repetition of such an event.

Fall Smells

A good friend reminds me that what with the warm and dry weather we are missing a few of the so familiar fall smells.

But if you are out in the open where you get the heady aroma of burning leaves, or if you plant some fall bulbs, or put your garden to bed for the winter, you'll know it is fall.

Already you are looking forward to the first snow fall. Then come pleasant thoughts of the first crocus. Where but here do we have a

THERE'LL BE A LION AT YOUR DOOR

Lions Open Sales For 15th 'Roar'

The Southeast Lions have again gone into the publishing business with a "Roar."

With an advertising goal of $7,000 the 15th annual edition of the Southeast Lions Roar newspaper represents the club's biggest venture. The paper, which will be sold door-to-door on the evening of Friday, Dec. 6, will be a 20 to 24 page edition and 25,000 copies will be printed.

Every Lion in the club has become a space salesman, with Dave Wood and John Marshall acting as co-chairmen of the ad committee.

Last year 559 ads were sold at a total price of $6,245, according to Oscar P. Wiechers, general chairman of the drive.

"It's been wonderful support we have received in the past, and we appreciate this support deeply," Wiechers said. He asks that if anyone has been missed in solicitation that he call him at 228-5809 and a Lion will soon be there.

Other committeemen appointed by President Max Borst are Chuck Hammond and Bill Cook, Jr., routing and circulation; Tom Quick and Dick Krebs, editorials; Doc Lensenmayer and Wilbur Martin, collection and protection, and Richard Poenisch and Dwight Rife, public relations and publicity.

TURKEY SHOOTS SLATED

Shotgun fire will be heard at the South Side Y Park on Rohr-rd from 1 p.m. until dusk Sunday, Nov. 17, when the first of the annual South Side YMCA turkey shoots is held. A second shoot is scheduled for the following Sunday.

Sponsored by the Right Angle Club, a men's service group in the Y program, the events will help finance furnishings for the South Side Y building.

Dave Wilson, who will again be chairman of the shoots, stated that again a supervised event for young people is included on the schedule.

With turkeys, sporting goods and small appliances being offered as prizes, some lines, according to Wilson, would earn as many as three prizes.

Those ertering the competition must bring their own guns, but the entry fee includes ammunition, and refreshments will be served.

DECORATING?

We suggest that interior decorators, for Early American and other interiors, use a framed copy of Portraits of the Presidents . . . this week's feature in our Americana Historical Document Collection. This and other documents, on antique parchment, are now being offered as a public service by Hartley Newspapers, See the advertisement inside this paper for details.

AN EDITORIAL

A Stitch In Time . . .

The Columbus School Board members acted wisely in placing the 15-mill renewal levy on the Nov. 5 ballot 13 months before the current operating levy expires. They have allowed sufficient time for re-submission should it fail. But, more important, they present a sound case for its passage now.

School officials have labeled the levy the "Fourth R": RENEWAL. Its endorsement by the voters will assure for Columbus children an uninterrupted program of learning the important "Three R's."

Columbus schools do not want for lack of dedication, leadership and action. School officials consistently have fought to surmount the ever-present problems brought on by increased enrollment, coupled with decreasing revenues from basic support sources. They have not been timid about exposing to public view the "weak" areas of education in continuing efforts to improve their total product.

New programs have been tried and have succeeded. But success has led only to harder work in search of continuing progress. Accomplishments are the more surprising when it is realized that Columbus ranks 37th in per-pupil expenditure of the 40 Ohio school districts of more than 30,000 population.

While the current 15-mill operating levy is not the sole source of operating revenue for the Columbus Public School System, it does represent 57 per cent. This same 15-mill levy has a direct effect on an additional 15 per cent in the form of School Foundation Program funds provided by the State of Ohio.

But in order to qualify for this state financial aid, a school district must show a minimum 10-mill voted tax levy. This means, simply, that if the renewal of the current levy fails, Columbus schools will lose 72 per cent of the total operating income.

If you want to imagine what this would mean in terms of educational quality and quantity, ask what would happen to a family whose $100 weekly pay check was suddenly decreased to a total of $28.

The need for continuing the school levy is apparent. The time to act is now, by voting for the renewal.

Schools Host Parents With Open Houses

Thousands of parents will visit their children's schools this week and next during annual "open houses" to see progress, acquaint themselves with the teachers, and learn of new methods and materials.

Most of the 113 elementary schools scheduled open house Wednesday evening, Oct. 23, and almost all of the 31 secondary schools will have citizens visiting Tuesday evening, Oct. 29.

The events will serve as the Columbus Public Schools' observance of American Education Week, according to superintendent, Dr. Harold Eibling.

Theme of the national observance, scheduled Nov. 10 through 16, is "Education Strengthens the Nation."

PROBLEMS OF WELFARE CLIENTS TO BE STUDIED

"Ohio needs ADCU."

This was the conclusion when more than 50 persons signed in as members when the Citizens Committee for Public Welfare met Monday night at the South Side Settlement House.

Aid to Dependent Children of the Unemployed is the federal program now under study by the Ohio legislature.

The new committee was formed to bring to public attention the sub-standard aid to welfare clients in Central Ohio, how these people live and to work for a more effective rehabilitation program.

The group also plans to put "hard questions" to Columbus City Council candidates and distribute their answers to 1,000 interested individuals and organizations.

The executive committee includes Nancy Adams, Dr. Stanley Bernstein, Father Thomas Duffy, Florence Erwin, Prof. David Kettler, Joseph Wall, Joyce Weiss, Prof. Mary Young and Constance Ziegler.

The next meeting is scheduled Monday, Nov. 11, 8 p.m. at the Settlement House.

Hopes Bright For Aid In Getting Sidewalks

With the combined efforts of Mike Mileusnich, representing the CSSO the PTA groups of the schools of the area and the City of Columbus, there appears hope for sidewalks along Fairwood-av and Lockbourne, Moler and Smih-rds.

When a South Side mother, Mrs. John M. Smith, 1337 Molly-ln, appeared before CSSO recently to ask for sidewalks in the area which would stop the practice of elementary school children walking heavily traveled streets on their way to school the matter was turned over to Mileusnice as chairman of the service, safety and welfare committee.

City engineer Bob Warner told him that the city was willing to improve the streets and install sidewalks upon the petitioning by 50 percent of the residents of any given area.

Warner also said that petitions had already been filed for these improvements on NOMINEE for the Suburban Homemaker Contest, Agnes Moeller, fits four-year-old daughter, Maryann with a Halloween costume, just as many mothers will be doing in preparation for the night of witches and goblins.

GroundBreaking Ceremony Held

Mayor Westlake broke ground for the initiation of construction on the new South Sewage Treatment Plant at Shadeville. The $15 million plant will serve half of the land now drained by Alum and other area creeks.

The Harry E. Miller and Co., Inc., 883 N. Nelson-rd, will commence construction by beginning the work on the service and administrative buildings.

Sincerity Counts In Homemaker Contest

To nominate a friend or relative—your next door neighbor, your wife, your mother — as a candidate for Suburban Homemaker of the Year requires not a talent for putting words on paper, but only sincerity. It can be neatly typed or be written in pencil on school notebook as were many of the entries received from teenagers last year. Here are a few sentences from various letters nominating 1962 Suburban Homemakers of the Year.

"Her first concern is for her family. Many of her activities center around her children's and husband's interests which are her interests as well. She teaches Sunday school, is active in her church, works for Little League, PTA and other community affairs. Examples of how she demonstrates her abilities as a successful homemaker could be endless. Neighbors' birthdays are always celebrated with her surprise cakes, her home is brimming over every holiday or family birthday with many relatives and friends."

"She is a skilled, imaginative cook and has taught this skill as well as sewing and knitting to her daughters. She gives her seven children love, understanding and respect. As a trained nurse she often donates her services to friends and relatives who are ill."

"Has played an active part

S-S HALLOWEEN PARTIES LISTED

Hobgoblins Due For Top Billing

With Halloween parties scheduled at eight sites on the South Side for next Thursday, there are activities for every age group.

With the CSSO furnishing cider and donuts for all the parties and the PTA's also a co-sponsor of most parties, several thousand children and teenagers are expected to turn out.

No more elaborate plans have been made than for the party for children twelve-years old or younger at Schiller Park with the Advistory Council of the Columbus Recreation Department acting as a co-sponsor.

The doors will open at 6:15 and each half hour from 7 to 9:30 a new activity will be scheduled. The children will be divided into groups according to age, and the programs will rotate for each group.

Though costumes need not be elaborate, according to Tom Crawshaw, Schiller director, all youngsters must be in some kind of masquerade, and the parents of pre-school age tots are urged to accompany their children.

Prizes will be awarded to the boys and girls judged to be wearing the prettiest, funniest, weirdest, and most unusual costumes. Other features of the party are a cartoon movie, a puppet show for the youngest children, refreshments and a spooky visit to the "Witches' Den" where a magic brew will be stirred to create a monster which cannot be controlled.

A custom established during recent years will be followed which asks each child to register. After the party is over, the registration cards will be drawn, and a telephone call made to the homes of children whose names are drawn. If the child is home and can answer the telephone, he or she will be promptly delivered a silver dollar. With six names to be drawn from each of the three age groups, $18 will be given away.

'Sparks' Fired By Wee Ones

Naming themselves the "Sparks" a small group of women have formed the nucleus of a guild devoted to the fund-raising activities for the Peck O' Wee Ones Foundation, the shelter for severely retarded children located at 4216 E. Main-st.

Mrs. Paul Day, president of the newly-formed organization, explained that the money will go to the purchase of playpens and cribs, supplies such as sheets and diapers, medical equipment, and toward a building fund for the new home envisioned by the director and founder of the non-profit organization, Otto C. Heinzerling.

The first project the women have planned is a toy party to be held at the Whitehall City Hall in the basement recreation center at 8 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 7.

With no administrative expense (membership dues take care of incidental expenses) every cent raised at the party will go directly to the needs of the children.

Believing the task before the group is one requiring the help of many, the guild is anxious for additional members. Anyone who can give of his time to help the helpless is asked to contact Mrs. O'Day, 1865 Fairwood-av, telephone HI. 4-5884 or the publicity chairman, Mrs. Jack McDonald, 1857 Fairwood-av, HI. 4-9453.

FOOD MARKET THIS WEEK

Last Winter's Freeze Still Affects Citrus Crop

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits—Apples, grapefruit, pears, Tokay grapes.
Vegetables—cauliflower, potatoes, yams, cabbage, spinach, broccoli.
Meats, Poultry — fryers, pork loin and shoulder roasts, bacon, beef "specials," stewing chickens.
Other—cheese: Cheddar, cream, cottage; canned food "specials."

The first official forecast for the 1963-64 citrus crop was released by the U.S. Department of Agriculture on Oct. 10. It predicts the total citrus crop will be smaller than the freeze-damaged crop of 1962-63, with the greatest decline occurring in oranges.

Most of the decrease from last year's orange crop is in Florida, where last winter's freeze severely damaged the orange trees. Florida's early and mid-season production is estimated to fall 43% below last year and 48% below average. Oranges suitable for juice were hit the hardest. Florida Temples—used mainly for out-of-hand eating—suffered less, and a better crop is expected than was harvested last winter. And, we can look forward to a good supply of California Navel oranges—19 per cent more estimated for this year than last.

Prices of oranges on the wholesale market are higher now than a year ago and considerably above two years ago. In view of the expected crop you can expect orange prices to continue at relatively high levels.

Grapefruit prospects are brighter than for oranges, down only three per cent from last year. Grapefruit harvest is heavy in Florida with more than a million boxes packed by Oct. 1. They matured early this year, so eating quality is exceptionally good—so is the price. The forecast for Florida tangerines, tangelos and limes is also favorable.

CRANBERRY PROSPECTS GOOD

Looking ahead to a popular item on many menus through November and December, cranberry prospects are good. The crop is estimated to be the third largest on record. Quality is good and you can expect to buy them cheap about Thanksgiving time.

A BIT OF SWEET NEWS

The sugarbeet crop in the United States will probably exceed last year's record by 20 per cent.

And that's only half the story. The other major source of sugar—sugar cane—is expected to top last year's record crop by 35 per cent on the mainland. The total sugar cane crop—mainland and Hawaii—probably will be more than a sixth above the 1962 harvest, the reporters say.

Syria and Lebanon proclaimed their independence from France May 21, 1945.

KEEP YOUR SCHOOLS STRONG!---

RENEW THE 15 MILL SCHOOL LEVY!

The Columbus Public Schools depend upon this levy for much of their operating revenue.

The levy itself provides 57% of the money needed to operate our schools this year.

This levy also qualifies our schools to receive funds from the state of Ohio. Net state aid this year accounts for 15% of the income of our schools.

The Columbus Public Schools stand to lose 72% of their income unless this levy is renewed! (57% + 15% = 72%).

The Columbus Board of Education is asking you to RENEW school taxes already in effect.

This levy, which totals 15 mills, has been in effect in 1962 and 1963. However, all 15 mills will expire at the end of 1964 unless the school levy is RENEWED.

This levy WILL NOT increase the tax rate for school operation.

By voting FOR the 15-mill levy, you will not increase the tax rate for school operation.

M. E. Sensenbrenner actively served the City of Columbus as mayor from 1954 to 1959. His experience and knowledge of the basic operation of city government is outstanding. His years of devoted work with the community agencies have given him a wide view of the city's potentials and problems that require a vigorous city administration.

Sensenbrenner has devoted most of his life to working for the welfare of youth:

Over 40 years with the Boy Scouts of America
Past Vice President, Camp Fire Girls
Board member, Boys Club of America
Past President, West High Boosters
Board member YMCA and Volunteers of America

He is active with the Big Brothers, Milo-Roc-Mendel Football Athletic Club. He is Past President of the Hilltop Kiwanis, a member of the board of the Council of Churches and an elder of the Hope Memorial Presbyterian Church. His fraternal activities include the Elks, the Moose, and the Eagles.

Sensenbrenner's background, including being Chief Clerk and Investigator for the State Civil Service, and his current activities dynamically show that he is the man most able to make Columbus one of the finest cities in America by continuing to develop its many great potentials.

As mayor, he brought to the City of Columbus the outstanding All-American City Award. His aggressive annexation program, planned to keep the city from being hemmed in as other cities are, more than doubled the size of Columbus.

Sensenbrenner established a city finance department. This program has saved, and earned, over one million dollars for the city.

During his administration 251 buildings, unfit for human habitation, were condemned. One hundred and sixty-nine were either removed or improved. His administration initiated the high-rise apartments for older citizens in Poindexter Village and Sunshine Park.

Sensenbrenner's administration proposed the one and one-quarter million dollar bond issue for expanded recreation facilities which was overwhelmingly endorsed by the voters.

The municipal golf course and airport were completed and the Fifth Avenue underpass and Hudson Street railroad underpass became a reality.

Sensenbrenner's administration launched the city's new freeway system with the cooperation of the Development Commission of Greater Columbus and other planning groups.

He pioneered the first Master Control Traffic Plan for Columbus.

"A Man For All Seasons," the New York drama critics' prize Broadway play, will be presented as the opening event on the "Gray" group of Mershon Auditorium's Great Artist Series at 8 p.m. Monday, Oct. 28.

The dramatic hit is a serious play, but full of laughter and sardonic tragedy. Written by Robert Bolt, it has proved that an historical chronicle could be contemporaneous, grand and moving theatre.

FOUNDATION

Our nation is witnessing a building boom, such as has never before been seen. Every day new foundations are being dug and laid. Any builder will tell you that it takes a firm foundation to support today's skyscraper.

Our Lord, in His sermon on the mount, compared those that heed His word, to the wise man that built his house upon a rock, and those that did not heed His word to the foolish man that built his house upon sand and it was washed away.

Build your house upon a rock... Attend church regularly.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for men and of His demand for men to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

...EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH... THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

School For First Time Flag Goes Up At Moler

More than 350 students gathered early Thursday morning to watch the flag go up for the first time at their new school, Moler Elementary.

One the three new elementaries opened in Columbus this fall, Moler includes 12 classrooms, a gym, nurse's room, office area and a space for a planned library and was built at a cost of $282,782.

The children are drawn from an area bounded by Smith-rd on the south, the N. and W. Railroad on the east, Deshler-av on the north and Lockbourne-rd on the west. Youngsters in this area formerly attended Deshler, Smith-rd and Watkins Elementaries.

Dedication of the building is scheduled for the spring, though open house was celebrated Tuesday, Oct. 22 when Michael Lower, principle of Marion-Franklin Junior-Senior High School spoke to the parents.

Three states that adjustment to the new school has been successfully completed by the children, and parental cooperation excellent.

The school has a faculty of eleven, including Miss Linda Feasby, kindergarten; Mrs. Helen Ikehor, grade 1; Mrs. Judith Snyder, grade one; Mrs. Joyce Carraway, grade one; Mrs. Janet Walston, grade two; Mrs. Geraldine Nance, grade three; Mrs. Connie Klein, grades three and four; Mrs. Mary Brown, grade four; Miss Janet Morrison, grade five, Charles Trone, grade six and Mrs. Klingelsmith, enrichment teacher.

Frebis-av, but though the work was in the 1963 agenda, unforseen delays had held up the project so far.

Not only will the city furnish all necessary petitions, according to Mileushnich, but the degree to which the city will assume the burden of the cost is open to negotiation.

(Under a less friendly atmosphere, the entire cost would automatically be placed upon the property holders' tax duplicates.)

Mileusnich is visiting the local schools students from Moler, Marion Franklin and Smith-rd are particularly involved) in an effort to have the PTA's agree to circulate the petitions.

Ten Beatitudes of Leaders

1. Blessed is the leader who has not sought the high places but who has been drafted into service because of his talents, ability and willingness to work.
2. Blessed is the leader who knows where he is going, why he is going and how to get there.
3. Blessed is the leader who knows no discouragement and presents no alibis.
4. Blessed is the leader who knows how to lead without being dictatorial; who knows that true leaders are humble.
5. Blessed is the leader who works for the benefit of those he serves.
6. Blessed is the leader who leads for the good of the most concerned, and not for the personal gratification of pushing his own ideas.
7. Blessed is the leader who develops leaders while leading.
8. Blessed is the leader who manages to interpret correctly the signs of the pathway which leads to success.
9. Blessed is the leader who has his head in the clouds but his feet on the ground.
10. Blessed is the leader who considers leadership an opportunity for service to God and his fellow man.—Selected.

The Gadabout

Priscilla LaRue Lonex
ML 4-1031

A pleasing personality, evident in his public school days, has remained with Robert O. Stith and is a valuable asset to him in his career as manager of the Battelle Memorial Institute publications and public services.

Today's Outstanding Personality is a South High graduate of 1932 who joined the famed research company as a staff member in 1933. Battelle had been on the Columbus scene for four years at the time.

Stith, more readily recognized as "Bob" to former classmates, began his career at Battelle as a member of the research staff, where he undertook pioneering studies on plating from the vapor phase. His administrative ability was recognized and appreciated however, so he became a member of the personnel and public relations staff in 1938. In 1945 he was named director of public relations.

Bob is a charter member of the Public Relations Society of America and a founding member of the Central Ohio Chapter. He has served as a vice-president of the latter group, and is a one-time member of the PRSA national committee on eligibility.

He has attended Ohio State University. He is a member of Sigma Delta Chi, the professional journalism society, and the National Association of Science Writers. Stith has written articles for Scientific Monthly, Industrial Marketing and similar publications.

He has long been active in community affairs and is currently a member of the board and vice-president of the United Community Council. He is particularly interested in the health, welfare and recreation services of the community.

He founded the "Battelle News" and is a co-founder of the "Battelle Technical Review," on whose editorial advisory board he continues to serve.

In October, 1937, he married Sally Maxwell, the auburn-haired "light of his life," to quote him. Three teenagers help to keep things humming at the Stith household, 1741 Barrington-rd.

The three are Doug, 17; Betsy, 15, and Rondy, 13.

He is grateful that his formative years in the South Side included contact with persons such as Charlotte Swisher, "Cap" Hoover and Marguerite Fleming, whose "profile" appeared at an earlier date.

He gets a chuckle from the memory of falling through the ice on the Scioto River, at Markison-av, and taking hours to dry off, using the time to think up a good story to tell his parents.

The South Side "Y" holds fond memories for him, so he is proud of the new building on Southwood-av, and the successful Y Park. He was proud to be at the recognition meeting given for "Cap" Hoover, whom he admires greatly. He takes pride also in the grand job being done by the German Village group.

Bob's sisters and brother are still residents of Franklin County. The sisters are Donna Aller, 1038 Fairwood-av, and Dorothy Rueckel, 5435 Yorkin South. Paul is a resident at 4906 Calvin-dr. A cousin, Betty Poczik, 133 Hinman-av, is an active community resident in the family tradition.

A community welcome is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Tom Hinkle, who begin their wedded life at 93½ E. Moler-st. Mrs. Hinkle was Martha Raish, of 27 E. Woodrow-av, before the Oct. 18 ceremony in South Methodist Church. Mr. Hinkle was a resident of 431 Larcomb.

Congratulations are in order for Karen Fleshman, 1236 Lockbourne-rd, one of 54 students around the nation, who will have an opportunity to compete for a full college scholarship given by the American Brake Shoe Co. The scholarship is given to offspring of employes of the company, or its divisions. Karen's father, Joseph, has been with one of the division companies, Denison Engineering, for 21 years. There are nine children in the family. Karen will graduate from St. Mary's High School in June and plans to seek a degree in education in college.

Beware Of 11th-Hour Blasts

Nov. 5 — the day the jury of electors comes in with the verdict — is close at hand.

The candidates have had their "day in court," and sufficient time to lay before local electors all pertinent issues. Aside from listening to a summation of evidence already presented, the "jury" should not be required to listen to "new" evidence that could just as well have been presented at an earlier date.

Unfortunately, there still remain in the body politic those who advocate the 11th hour "blast"; the charge too late to answer; the "facts" introduced too late to disprove.

By and large in Franklin County, we have had fair "issue" campaigns. Let's keep it that way. Let the candidate be cautious, that his desire to serve is not subjugated to his ambition to be elected. And let the voter be wary of any last-minute dramatic charge or pledge aimed at his important vote.

Let's each of us cast a vote based on deliberation upon the issues — and the issues should ALL be in the open by now.

As We Live And Breathe . . .

We Americans have created the most efficient productive machine in the world's history. Every day a torrent of goods and products flood our land. They enable us to enjoy an unprecedented standard of living.

For this, we can be grateful.

But like every other blessing we enjoy, this one has its dark side, for every day we also flood the air with substances that adversely affect our health and well-being.

Air pollution is the result of our population growth, our great production machine, the massing of people into large cities, and our carelessness. We have polluted the air by daily discharging into the atmosphere harmful gases and particles which can damage crops, discolor house paint, irritate eyes, and which are linked with several diseases of the respiratory system.

That's the reason the Air Pollution Control Association is sponsoring its annual Cleaner Air Week Oct. 20-26. It wants to focus the nation's conscience on the national problem of dirty air and on the methods of controlling pollution that are now available.

The City of Columbus, through its Division of Smoke Regulation and Inspection, has made giant strides in ridding Columbus air of smoke and grime that once lay like a pall over the city.

But it is something of an individual problem, too. Every automobile with a smoking exhaust, every smoking chimney, every pile of smouldering leaves pours waste into the atmosphere. Virtually everybody can do something about it. Just remember fresh air can't be piped into cities. Nor can it be stored for future use.

Another Newspaper Is Struck Out

Another big daily newspaper, in business since 1924, folded last week. The New York Daily Mirror quit business when it could no longer exist under pressure of increased publication costs.

Such news is commonplace in recent years and this is by no means the last one to fail.

Each such casualty should provide further proof that continuing to publish a newspaper is just as much the problem of the employe as that of the publisher.

Who Will Be The Next Loser?

Don't Miss Write-Ins

Several elective offices in various parts of Franklin County will be decided by write-in balloting on Election Day, Nov. 5. Much has been written and spoken about the Columbus write-in for city attorney, primarily because it involves two sets of candidates whose last names are the same.

But other write-in elections are equally important to the areas affected, even though less publicized. In New Rome, all elective officers will be decided by write-in vote. Voters of Darbydale will elect all but the treasurer by write-in. The City of Bexley will choose its mayor by write-in balloting, and similar elections will take place in the villages of Gahanna, Groveport and New Albany; in Pleasant and Sharon Townships, and for a member of the Jefferson Local School District School Board.

Voters in areas where elections will be decided by write-in balloting should make the extra effort involved to exercise their full voting rights. There will be no "name" reminder on the voting machines. Give some thought now to the announced candidates for write-in races. Don't deny yourself the right to vote because you can't remember who is seeking office.

An Editor's Outlook by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Europeans Still Pet Their Beloved Dinosaurs

VADUZ, Liechtenstein — Here is a country containing 62 square miles. And here is its capital of 3,000 people. And clinging to a crag directly over the town is the castle of Prince Franz Joseph II, last of the ruling Hapsburgs. No one around here seems to think it's all very funny.

It is easy to understand, of course, why the citizens of Liechtenstein should be contented. They pay no taxes. Idiotic collectors all over the world gobble up every new issue of Liechtenstein postage stamps and the prince sees to it that there are plenty of new issues. By thus charging service rates without having to perform any service the prince's government is easily able to provide the modest public works necessary for the 1,000 barmaids, 2,000 waiters, 3,000 souvenir sellers, 4,000 farmers and the 1,000 children too young to milk either cows or tourists who comprise Liechtenstein's 11,000 population.

Jones

All Liechtensteiners are proud of their prince. They assure you he is "very democratic." You keep hearing this about most of the remaining royalty of Europe. The people proudly keep them in castles or palaces, which are not good places to nurture democratic attitudes. And then the people express pleasure that the royal estate hasn't ruined them.

Over on the French Riviera there is Monaco, an independent principality that makes Liechtenstein look like Texas. It consists of one-half square mile, most of it covered with green felt. Its ruling prince is from the ancient family of Grimaldi and its ruling princess is the daughter of an Irish contractor from Philadelphia.

Last year when I was through there everybody told me how marvelously democratic and modest Prince Ranier and Princess Grace are. I would think it would be easy to be modest if all you presided over was half a mile of crap tables. But apparently I don't understand the fine points of this royalty business, for every time Grace flashes her pretty smile even the bored International Set falls in a faint.

There are, of course, bigger kingdoms. The last Hohenzollern to rate a 21-gun salute is Queen Fredericka of Greece. Some years ago when Greece was desperately shaking the tambourine for U.S. foreign aid I was one of a party of American newsmen invited to the summer palace above Athens. King Paul passed the drinks himself and the queen charmed the socks off us. We were all so shaken by this display of democracy that we rushed back to our hotel to write articles in favor of even more foreign aid.

Still, I have a nagging doubt about the democratic effusions of the occupants of palaces. There is a basic contradiction. The theory of democracy is the right of every man to make his way according to his talents, opportunities and luck. The occupant of the palace claims the right to pass on to his son or daughter, however stupid or ungifted, the adulation of a nation.

In a way, the reigns of the robber barons, whose crumbling strongholds make the Rhine so charming, were more honest. These were tough, ruthless men. They had to be resolute enough to impose toll on the travelers, wring villeinage from the peasants, and stave off their noble enemies or they lost everything.

The Hapsburgs got their start as brave cavaliers on horseback who did-in the Rhine robber barons. But then they moved into the castles and imposed such tributes that they were soon able to hire mercenaries to control half of Europe. After they had it made decay set in. The power of the throne soon became great enough to overcome weakness of the man who sat thereon.

So it was with all the other eminent ruling houses. Idiots, hemophiliacs, lechers, deviates, and just plain dumb bunnies presided over fawning courtiers and groveling peasantry. The magnificence of the palaces was enough to sustain the illusion of excellence.

There were, of course, limits to misrule. The Louis ended on the guillotine, the Austrian Hapsburgs and the Italian House of Savoy at peace conferences, the House of York at Bosworth Field, and the Tudors on the block. But the rulers who gave no very great offense, even though shorn of their temporal powers, have shown an amazing capacity for survival.

Dissenters and doubters exist. There is some resentment that Queen Elizabeth is the richest person in Great Britain and some wry laughter at the vulgar display of personal wealth in Windsor Castle and the jewel chamber of London Tower.

An outspoken British naval officer said to me, "The Queen would like to be Victoria again if she thought she could get away with it." And the guide on the Amsterdam canal boat told about the billion-dollar personal fortune handed over by Wilhelmina to Juliana. "Tax-free of course," he added with a rueful grin.

But the cheerers outnumber the sneerers. My doctor friend in Copenhagen spoke in raptures of the late King Christian. "The occupying Nazis were driven wild," he said, "when the king rode his horse alone through the streets of the capital. It was something the Nazi chiefs would never do, even in Berlin."

And the American wire service head in London put it this way: "If Britain should ever go communist, the British would insist on maintaining Her Majesty Queen Elizabeth of the Royal Soviet."

Personally, the charm escapes me. But to millions it is real.

"I Think That I Shall Never See . . ."

Variety . . . by I. F. Howell

BITTERSWEET

This day I made a duty pilgrimage
Back to these hills where in our yestertime
We shared our joys and sorrows, hopes and fears.
You were not there, for you had gone away.
I mourned and wondered. I remembered still
How tender was your love, how strong, how deep,
Transcending time and space and life and death.
But I remembered yet not all the things.
I had forgotten how a glory lay
In regal splendor on this lovely land
Almost like light from Heaven's outer fields.
I think that I shall not come back again,
For this nostalgia, too bittersweet,
I cannot more endure. To things that were
And are and yet shall be, Hail and farewell.

Most of the old and some not so old think at times of their early life in the places where they were young.

They may have been raised in the country, in a village, or in a city. Details of the remembrance of each will differ, but memory is a common bond linking the past with the present, both directed to the future.

One's education and experience begin the day he is born. For better or worse, he must live with them, for they are his memory.

It says here . . .

Memory is a bridge to the past, but sometimes it's best not to cross it.

One Man's Opinion . . .

Wheat Deal Goes Against The Grain

It would now appear when the Communists try to bury us, as they have promised they will, we are going to have some of the world's best fed people for undertakers.

We are shipping a large amount of the best grown wheat in the world to a nation that is too busy threatening the free world with its industrial and technological might to take time to improve its food production techniques.

Barlow

It even looks like we are going to peddle these products, grown by our free enterprise system, at world market value or about 50 cents a bushel less than our government paid for it. Even if we save the cost of storage, the U.S. taxpayer is still out a lot of bucks.

To top the whole deal off it's pretty certain our archenemies in Cuba, East Germany and probably even China will be in for a pretty good share of our wheat . . . all through the big heart of Nikita.

So where is the real profit? Maybe a bigger and better Sputnik or a 200-megaton bomb this time?

It calls to mind a pretty big pile of scrap iron that headed toward the Land of the Rising Sun while at the same time we were at odds with the Japanese Empire over the invasion of Asia. Sure somebody made a profit . . . and you've got to admit we got the scrap iron back . . . the first installment was on Dec. 7, 1941.

So let's do the thing right this time . . . when we load the wheat let's send along some meat and potatoes . . . . Nobody likes a skinny undertaker!

—RON BARLOW.

So, You Don't Go To Church? . . .

Good for you! You've waited till just the right moment. Next Sunday will be the best day in history to start!

Chances are, it won't be the first time you've been inside a church. Weren't you there as a child?—as a young person?—probably for the wedding?—and maybe now and then all along? Your name may even be on the church membership roll some place.

But what's so special about next Sunday? Well, the churches have changed. And it isn't just new paint on the walls. There's a sense of excitement in the air—a new urgency about Christianity from members to mission field. A kind of "exploration" is taking place in the one area so long untraveled — the regions of mind and heart and spirit. Listen to the preacher. The same old message of Christ is amazingly up-to-date.

Consider the big questions in this world of 1963, the questions of survival and treaties, of racial equality, of economy and humanity, of politics, justice, and freedom. Have you noticed that these are really questions about values and truth and reality? In fact, they are all related questions, meeting at a common center-point: the purposes of God the Creator. And every church will tell you that Jesus of Nazareth most clearly reveals those purposes for which God created the world.

Let's look at it from your standpoint. Without knowing you, it is one of the truths of the Gospel that I can know your life to be incomplete, if it is without the companionship of Christ. This lack of fulfillment is visible not only in the suffering and despair around the world, not only in the broken homes, lives and children of our own community, but also in the way we rush headlong toward a conformity of superficial sophistication. Underneath, we are not sophisticated. We are not complete persons. Our lives are not filled with lasting meaningfulness. Oh, it's subtle all right.

But who has not felt this God-given urge to be part of something greater than oneself, to be rid of the aloneness we feel even in a crowd? Who has not experienced this great human hunger to love and be loved as a person? Isn't that the reason we are so willing to do almost anything to be accepted? If we have guilt or fear, isn't it caused by our inability to understand one another and to be known as the person we really are? The image of God in men is this basic desire to go beyond ourselves, the yearning to get hold on something eternal. And every church will tell you that Jesus Christ is so real that He can be your personal companion in the search for these things, in the struggle for authentic living with the eternal purposes of God. St. Francis of Assisi expressed all this in the most beautiful prayer I know:

"Lord, make me an instrument of Thy peace. Where there is hatred, let me sow love. Where there is injury — pardon. Where there is doubt — faith. Where there is despair — hope. Where there is darkness — light. Where there is sadness — joy. O divine Master, grant that I may not so much seek to be consoled, as to console; to be understood, as to understand; to be loved, as to love. For it is in giving, that we receive. It is in pardoning, that we are pardoned. It is in dying, that we are born to eternal life."

Remember three things about this prayer. First, it is a prayer. That's the place to start. Second, it is only when we are giving out of ourselves that we can receive the always-present grace of God. And third, only Christ the Lord can "make me an instrument" of His peace. May each one of us know His presence in worship next Sunday.

Every man who aspires to get along and ahead in life carries his own insurance on a whole lot of things. Protection of goods and chattels and even his bank account is insured in these modern days. It's routine.

But some real hazards can unhorse any man if he is not "covered" in many ways that no policy yet devised can give. First, he doesn't eat things that don't agree with him.

Secondly, he is temperate and his self-discipline gives Old Mother Nature every chance to preserve him in health and vigor.

Third, he learns how priceless a "good name" is in all of his doings. Many gifted men, who started off big, wind up in tatters because they failed to keep on the beam of their prime purpose in life.

Fourth, a man also has to pay attention to the little things which, put together, make him a "personality" as well as just a person.

Summary: In these days of hot water and good soap and "concealed plumbing" there is no excuse for anyone not to do a good job of housekeeping about his person and his "manners."

So, with all one's gifts and education and opportunity, he'd better get some "success insurance" too.

It can't be bought in any printed policy; it has to be cultivated and grown over the years from the "inside out."

'63 TEENS' YEAR?

Denny Parker Wins Second Round, $50

For the second straight week, an area teenager proved that you don't have to have been an "old timer" to win cash in Hartley Newspapers' Football Contest.

Richer by $50, is the second week winner, 14-year-old Denny Parker, 855 Stanley-av, who correctly picked 13 of 16 winners in pro- college and high school grid games.

DENNY, A freshman at Bishop Hartley High School, pocketed $25. in cash for topping 123 other contestants and received an additional $25. for being a paid subscriber to the South Side Leader, one of the seven area Hartley Newspapers.

For Denny it was a case of "if at first you don't succeed etc.," since the youth had competed last year, tying in the right-wrong category once but losing out in the tie-breaker.

Close behind young Mr. Parker's winning entry were three contestants who had one more pick wrong.

RUNNERUPS with four incorrect selections were: Mrs. Edith Skinner, 531 Basswood-rd, Jerry Allen Gloyd, Route 2, Ashville and Robert E. Moon, 49 Demorest-rd. (Mr. Gloyd's tiebreaker score was particularly interesting — Ohio State 74, Southern Cal 69).

Winner Denny Parker's father, a Columbus police officer, had an interesting suggestion as to how his son might spend his winnings.

"He can buy some postage stamps so he won't have to keep borrowing them to enter the contest," said the elder Parker.

EVEN IF you have to buy your own stamps, that's the only cost you'll have in entering the Hartley Newspapers Football Contest.

Nothing to buy. Just fill out the entry blank you see below, printing your selection next to the name of the advertiser in whose block you find the game.

Games this week are for the weekend of Nov. 1-3. No entries will be accepted unless postmarked by midnight, Tuesday, Oct. 29.

WINNERS will be notified by phone and their names will appear in the paper the following week. Send your blank to: Football Contest Editor, Name of this paper, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus 4, Ohio. (Do not send them to the Sports Editor.)

Please read the contest rules carefully. Enter today. Give us a chance to make you up to $100 richer ths week.

A-C Edges Pirates, Takes Bearcat Lead

Maryland A. C. won sole leadership of the Ohio Bearcat Football Association lead last Sunday by defeating the previously - unbeaten Westside Pirates, 6-0.

THE WINNER!

MEET Joe McGrath, 138 Concord-pl, winner of $50, in the first week of the Hartley Newspapers Football Contest. Joe, a senior at St. Marys High School, collected $25 for missing only three grid picks and an extra $25 for being a paid subscriber to one of seven Hartley Newspapers. McGrath's parting remark, "Hope I see you again!"

The fatal score came early in the second quarter as Maryland halfback Gary Davis fielded a Pirate punt on his own 42 yard line and streaked down the right sideline for the TD.

Maryland's inspired defense turned back every Pirate drive. In the last seconds of the game, the Pirates gained control of the ball on Marvland's 40 yard line. In a despiration play, Pirate halfback Kenny Jackson tossed a long pass complete to halfback Sonny Watson, but he was downed on the four yard line as the game ended.

In the first game at Starling Field, the Southside Eagles stunned the Westgate Bears, 30-0. Eagle halfback Joe Jefferson struck pay dirt three times on runs of 18, 10, and eight yards.

It was the fourth loss in succession for the Bears after winning their opener against Lockbourne, 30-8.

IN OTHER league action, the Milo-Roc-Mendel eleven broke its losing streak by downing the Lockbourne Skyhawks, 20-0. Art Thomas, Clarence Counts, and Jim Ninchelsor each scored for the winners.

ROSARY BLANKS EAGLES

South Wins Seventh; West Invades Friday

By ART KIENZLE

Playing one of their best games of the year, South High's hard-hitting Bulldogs remained undefeated Friday as Aquinas became victims number seven, 26-12.

The win left South and Central all alone on top of the City League pile as Central got by Marion-Franklin, 28-12, while Whetstone lost its first game, 23-20, to West (tomorrow night's foe).

THE SOUTH Side's only other winner was Rosary in a 32-0 romp over New Albany while St. Marys was outclassed by Academy, 36-6, Saturday evening at South.

SOUTH 26, AQUINAS 12

The Bulldogs gave the enemy a lead (6-0) as in past games when Aquinas' Paul Reiner ran for a 16-yard first-period TD.

But South came back fast with Paul Pate's 27-yard sprint, capping a 10-play 65-yard drive.

DON COLLINS grabbed the Rebs' second six-pointer on a three-yard run that gave South a 12-6 halftime edge.

The Bulldogs pulled away in the third frame when two Aquinas fumbles were turned into touchdowns, a three-yarder by Mickey Simmons and a 15-yard pass: quarterback Jerry Robison to Pate. The latter added the conversion.

Aquinas ended the scoring against the Reb second team as Jim Fritter ran 19 yards to paydirt.

QUICK KICKS — The Bulldogs' 7-0 record is its best in 42 years.

The City League title comes closer each week and South sudents say their school deserves a championship—the last one coming in 1923 on a 5-2 record. In '61 the Rebs were 5-1, good enough for second place.

Simmons and Mike Fair were standouts in Friday's game. The first "did a fine job for Lloyd Pate" and the latter was a sub for Rich Howard.

PAUL PATE gained 129 yards rushing, plus a 15-yard pass for 144 total (a usual Lloyd Pate performance).

South dominated statistics Friday: first downs, 15-10; rushing yardage, 220-160; total yardage, 244-218.

This year the Bulldogs have become noted as a second-half team. Spirit gets stronger as the contest goes on, a proud point for coach Bob Jackson's team.

STUDENT attendance is at an all-time high. Coaches have worked longer hours than ever. Is this the year?

ROSARY 32, NEW ALBANY 0

Bud Trapp's Crusaders pulled their '63 grid mark up even at 3-3 with a solid knockout blow on the Eagles.

All-County halfback Butch Micheal didn't waste any time getting the Green-and-White in the lead, taking the opening kickoff and stopping for a rest in the NA end zone, 75 yards away.

KENNY PEARRELL (two yard run) and Don Spurlock (38 yard interception runback) chimed in with two more tallies and Rosary left the field at halftime sporting a 24-0 lead.

Micheal closed out the Crusader scoring in the third period, going in from the five to cap a 60-yard drive.

Rosary outgained its visitors, 265-67.

ACADEMY 36, ST. MARYS 6

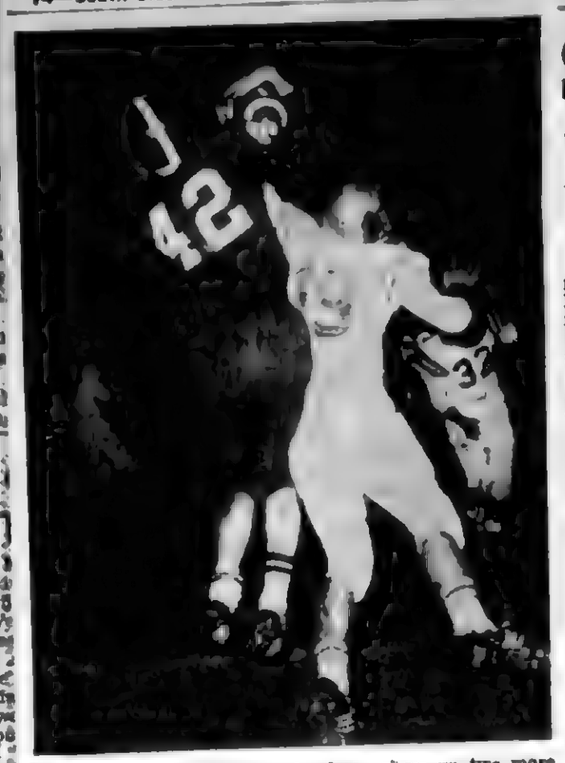
THE RAMS got a taste of the Vikings' TD machine—John Larrimer — and had to swallow a lopsided defeat Saturday evening.

Larrimer, the loop's leading scorer, crossed the St. Mary goal three times on romps of nine, 44 and 76 yards as Academy zipped off to a 22-0 first-period lead.

Things were pretty tight after that but the damage had been done. The Rams, suffering their third defeat in the last four outings, couldn't cope with Larrimer's drive and speed.

THE VIKING defense was stingy also, permitting only one score — that one coming in the second frame when fullback Jack Gassman bulled over a couple of Academy tacklers and then outran the secondary 39 yards to paydirt.

The setback dropped St. Marys seasonal mark to 4-3.



CENTRAL 28, M-F 12

Touchdowns by Oliver Winfield and Larry Gaffin were not enough to offset a powerful Pirate attack, paced by halfback George Broadnax's two scores.

CENTRAL led 20-0 at intermission but the Red Devils watched the Bucs' scoring in the third frame when Winfield bulled over from the one.

Guard Gaffin gave M-F fans their biggest thrill of the evening with two minutes left to play when he blocked a Central punt, scooped up the bouncing pigskin and sprinted 41 yards to paydirt.

Friday night's lineup finds three of four area clubs on the road. Rosary (3-3) visits Dublin (2-4-1). St. Marys (4-3) invades West Jefferson (6-1) and Aquinas (2-3-2) journeys to East (6-1) while South (7-0) stays home, entertaining West (6-1) at the Bulldogs' homecoming.

LARRIMER LEAP — Academy rings up two more points against the Rams as halfback John Larrimer (42) leaps in the end zone to snare a toss from quarterback Henry Richter following the Vikings' second touchdown against St. Marys. Defending for Rams is Jim Yates (19).

GASSMAN GRABBED—St. Marys fullback Jack Gassman (with ball) finds the footing difficult Saturday evening at South as he runs into a pair of Academy tacklers in Pete Bigelow (94) and Bob Schoene (66). Gassman found more running room later, digging for a 39 yard TD, the Rams' lone score.

OUCH!!—might be the most appropriate word to describe this head-on collision between St. Marys' halfback Bob Ruscilli and Academy's John Larrimer (42) as the Ram runner ran for a first down in second half of play Saturday evening The Vikings downed St. Marys 36-6.

'Scientific' Approach Makes Hunter 'Hunted'

We're not ashamed to admit that our only real contacts with the great outdoors revolve around a few Boy Scout outings where we discovered frostbite first-hand.

That's why we usually leave the fishing and hunting outlooks to brother (Rod) Cochran.

BUT LAST week we met a man and machine that collectively are geared to this division of the sporting world and honestly, infringement or not, the opportunity was just too good to pass up.

The man is Ray Weaver and his machine is "The Call of the Wild."

Ray's job is one of promoting his product and his product's duty is one of scientific enticement or, more simply, helping the hunter present a more impressive trophy room.

THE "CALL of the Wild" is actually a small waterproof record player with a high-volume amplifier and a set of records which, as Ray says, "takes the guesswork out of hunting."

The recordings are actual phonographic reproductions of animal sounds in situations geared to bring fox, deer, crows, coon, bobcats (you name it) right up within shooting range.

For example, a recording of a red fox pup in distress so arouses the maternal instinct of mama fox that she just can't stay away.

IN FACT, the actual recordings are so effective that their use to attract some birds has been ruled illegal, other than for such purposes as photography.

If you're a "do-it-yourself" hunter who's screaming "foul" at this point, remember that the machine can be used to establish the track of the animal with dogs and hunter continuing on their own initiative thereafter.

"Actually, the machine makes you the hunted instead of the hunter," Weaver said as we talked with him at the Field and Stream Shop on N. Westerville-rd last week.

RAY'S VISIT here is one of many he intends to make all over the country, conducting what he refers to as "blitzes" while demonstrating his machine to local hunting groups.

Recently Ray divided a group of 182 sportsmen into several parties which called in 116 foxes before they were finished.

Weaver admitted that the standard first impression of the "Call of the Wild" is one of disbelief, thus the demonstrations. Ray's record time for calling in a fox is 18 seconds and closest distance was marked at 66 inches — in broad daylight!

ON ONE occasion, a flock of geese, stationed near a river over five miles away, were attracted by the recording.

Of course, as in any hunting circumstance, the unexpected can happen. One night Ray and a group set up the apparatus in a field below a rise.

But instead of the intended game being attracted to the recording, the response came in the form of pounding hooves and a herd of black angus, grazing on the other side of the rise.

"WE'VE HAD horses, dogs and sheep attracted by the pitch of the recording. Deer seem to be fascinated by the sound," Ray said.

A "rabbit scream," transmitted on the transistorized machine, seems to be irresistable to the ever-hungry fox. Actually, the machine, manufactured by Wrightman Electronics in Easton, Md., has been on the market for 10 years now. Its cost is $125.

Probably the funniest thing that happened to Ray in his eight years of working with "Call of the Wild" came on a night blitz several years ago.

"THE GROUP was a little nervous and I had cautioned them to be very quiet. Before we went out in the field I gave my introduction and demonstrated the machine, leading off with a recording of the Colonel Bogey March.

"When we got in the field and everyone had quieted down, I turned up the volume and put the needle to our first record—the rabbit scream. Instead, we got the Colonel Bogey March. If nothing else, it took the pressure off the hunt."

Since seeing is believing, we closed out our conversation with Ray conducting a demonstration behind the Field and Stream Shop.

..HE PLACED the record player and amplifier on top of a car hood, selected a "crow riot" record and turned up the volume. (The recording, taped in the field, relived an attack by the flock of crows on their natural enemy—the owl.)

Before Ray put on the record we had checked the area, assured that there wasn't a crow in sight.

Inside two minutes, seven crows were circling the field behind the shop, all within shooting range. When Ray turned off the volume, the birds took up the attack cry and finally settled on some nearby branches.

CONVINCED and hopeful that Ray had no recording to attract an angered rhino, we parted company, with Ray admitting that he hoped to head west soon with a camouflaged vehicle (the Traveling Brushpile) to conduct more blitzes.

"I guess they'll be glad to see me leave," Ray said, laughing and pointing to the volume knob on the record player.

Speaking for untold flocks of confused crows and other frustrated animals, we had to agree.

'Fearless' Predictions

The "fearless one," riding on cloud nine for a couple of weeks, came down to terra firma Monday, slipping off to a 15-5-2 mark.

Things shouldn't be much easier for the old boy this week with quite a few 'coin-flip' games on tap again.

DON'T LET "fearless" get wind of it, but his percentage is actually improved over a comparable date last year. He stands 99-35-5 and presents this eighth week analysis:

WEST JEFFERSON - ST.

Persistence Pays Off For Angler Ken Ogilvie

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROD COCHRAN

Best in the west. At least that's what the people in West Jefferson are saying about Kenny Ogilvie, until some other super fisherman steps forward. Chances are, he'll retain this title, for he amassed an eviable record fishing the two Darby Creeks this season.

Here's the total: smallmouth bass 210, catfish 19, carp 104, and turtles (both snappers and soft shells) 23.

Many a chagrined angler has traveled to Canada and other distant spots for a lot poorer fishing than Ogilvie enjoyed at home this summer.

His biggest fish was a carp weighing 26 pounds. The largest bass went two and a half pounds, and the biggest catfish weighed in at eight pounds. In the turtle department, the winner was a 15-pounder.

HOW DID HE DO IT? By going fishing. "Kenny is about the most persistent fisherman I know," says Rollie Recob, of Recob Supplies. "Some days he doesn't do any good, but then other days he makes a haul. The important thing is to be there when the fish decide to hit."

Recob knows most of the regular fishermen in western Franklin County and Madison County, and he said that Ogilvie's record was by far the best he knew of this year.

What interests me are the 210 smallmouth bass that he caught. You hear a lot about stream deterioration these days and how fishing isn't any good. There is no doubt that pollution is growing — all kinds, siltation, industrial wastes and sewage. But there are plenty of anglers who haven't caught 210 keeper smallmouths in their lifetimes, let alone in a single year. This catch represents plenty of first-class sport. And the fact that the two Darbys produce this kind of fishing ought to be recognized.

QUITE A FEW of us can learn something from Kenneth Ogilvie — quit complaining about the fishing and go fishing. We might be surprised.

All of the bass were caught on soft craws, and about half of the carp fell for this bait. The rest of the carp took dough balls prepared by Mrs. Ogilvie. The catfish and turtles were also caught on these two baits.

While we're dealing with happenings way out west, here is another one. Jim Carmean, of Route 2, Mechanicsburg, shot a coyote-dog cross the other morning. The 35-pound male was identified by a biologist at Ohio State University, and Al Ward, Madison County game protector, reported that it was a particularly fine specimen.

"The Carmeans have been missing pigs all summer," said Ward, "and we believe this animal was the culprit." Young Carmean shot the coy-dog in the barnyard early in the morning.

Wildlife populations are constantly changing and shifting. One of the most noticeable examples is the eastward extension of coyotes. The specimens found in Ohio to date have nearly all been crossed with dogs, but once in a while a real coyote is discovered. It is a distinct possibility that our corn, wheat and soy bean "prairies" will someday hear the haunting cry of the coyote.

'HE' GETS LETTERS

Dear Fearless,

What kind of nuts do they have in Canal Winchester anyway? I thought those letters were pretty silly.

If that is all they can find to argue about then they are the ones who don't have the intestinal fortitude (and you know what that means) to fight for something more worthwhile fighting for.

I DON'T know about you but to me this proves that they only pick on little things. This only shows how really immature they are.

Think They're Silly

Dear "Think,"

Before I make comment, let me admit my puzzlement at your letter's postmark. It's Canal Winchester!

Either I've finally found a fan or (1) you don't understand the game (I'm the bad guy) and (2) you've picked one heck of a way to commit suicide.

YOU SHOULD have signed it "real fearless" if you actually live in C-W.

'Fearless'

EDITOR'S NOTE: In case there is some doubt as to the validity of this letter, it is being preserved in our archives (postmark et al) under file — "To that chicken in your Sports Department."

South High News Notes

The South High School marching band presented a special halftime show based on the Broadway musical "The King and I", Friday, Oct. 18.

Assisting Howard Cozart in directing and staging this show were Mrs. Karyl Meyers, dramatics teacher; Edward Gilkey, a student from Capital University, and Robert Stegmiller Productions Co., designer of special effects.

Featured as the King of Siam was assistant drum major Dave Welchers. Wives from "The King and I" were majorettes Karen Fiaone, Nancy Fortier, Donna Jenkins, Dorothy Marte, Diane Rausch, Theresa Szekely and Susan Westlake.

Special music used was "The March of the Siamese Children."

Philomathean, girls' honorary club of South High School, initiated 39 new members Oct. 16. Thirty-two of the girls were juniors and seven were seniors.

A 3.0 average with no failures in any subject is a requisite for membership.

Initiation day is the highlight of joining the club. All day pledges must obey orders of senior Philo members and address them as "Miss." The pledges are not allowed to wear make-up or jewelry or speak to any one except teachers and senior Philo members. The pledges also must carry a book of poetry and smile at no one.

This year's Philo is headed by Lynn Chambers, president, and Miss Mary Gaal, faculty advisor.

New junior members are Janice Alexander, Mary Hughes, Jetta Cochran, Dolores Surber, Linda Bingham, Sharon Dunkle, Rosemary Barnhart, Karen Nothstine, Sharon Whatley, Carolyn Knight, Sue Koontz, Barbara McLaughlin.

Theresa Siebert, Ruby Short, Patty Coon, Barbara Buchanan, Linda Luckey, Sally Krauss, Judy West, Barbara Reynolds, Karen Watterson, Ilona Deri, Mary Lou Ellinger.

Judy Laufear, Barbara Johnson, Natasha Toer Bijns, Valarie Brown, Carolyn Howard, Mareanne Depassio, Donna Smales, Pat Scott and Lanette Sparks.

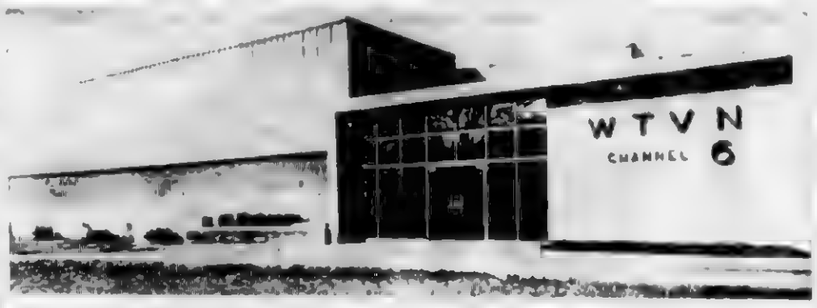
New senior members are Claire Harsanyi, Nyoka Kirk, Janice Russell, Linda Ietty, Conni Roser, Sandra Blakeman and Donna Gordon.

Vera Crayton, a junior at South High School, received second prize of $15 for the amount of money she collected in the Disabled Veterans of America Forget-Me-Not sale.

Students from high schools in the Greater Columbus area participated in this activity.

Vera is a member of Y-Teens and Masquers at South. Her parents are John and Mildred Crayton, 609 S. 22nd-st.

The annual South High School dance will be held Friday night following the homecoming game with West.



Playing for the dance will be the M-K Combo. This band has played for dances at Ohio State University and several of its members are South alumni.

"Homecoming Down South" is the theme of this year's dance. It will be held from 10:30 p.m. till midnight in the school cafeteria. Tickets are 50 cents and may be purchased at the door.

IT'S A SORRY MESS

WITHOUT RESPECT for zoning, sanitation or other people's property, someone is using land off Rte 665, between Parsons-av and Lockbourne-rd closed even as a landfill, for wholesale dumping of garbage. When Hamilton Police Chief Frank Bonner, above, became aware of the nuisance the zoning board, the health department and the county trustees were informed of the situation. The owner of the property, Lewis Eakin, agreed to close the "landfill" before his departure for Europe, but "No Trespassing" signs, a locked gate, a blockade of logs and even a barbed wire fence have not been totally effective. Bonner states that if the garbage is not bulldozed under immediately arrests will follow. Before closing the area upon the request of the Board of Health, Eakin had made, by contract, the abandoned pit available to Guy Foster for a landfill operation.

WTVN-TV BUILDING MODERNIZED

THE FACILITIES of WTVN-TV at Harmon and Griggs were recently modernized. The addition of 7,500 feet of floor working space makes the station one of the most efficient and best-equipped television facilities in the Midwest.

Heart Fund Pin Tourney Opens Nov. 10

All lanes in Franklin County are participating in the Seventh Annual Heart Fund Bowling Tournament Nov. 10-16.

Earl Flora, public relations director of the U.S. Trotting Association and television personality, is tournament chairman for the second successive year.

SERVING on the committee with Earl Flora are: Mrs. Richard Glenn Holliday, Sr., 3755 Karl-rd; Mrs. Russell H. Keyser, 1807 Inchcliff-rd; Mrs. Walter K. Shaw, 170 Olentangy-st, Powell; Bob E. Pugh, 680 Whitethorne-av; and Tom B. Dern, 2545 Homecroft-dr.

All league bowlers may compete on payment of a donation of $1.00, of which 70 cents goes to heart research and 30 cents for cash prizes.

The cash prizes will be awarded to winners at the respective houses. In addition, a trophy will be awarded to the man and the woman in the county rolling the highest scores. Entry blanks will be available at the lanes.

WINNERS will be determined on the basis of the greatest number of pins downed over the bowler's current league average in a three game series with ABC and WIBC rules prevailing.

Sponsored locally by the Franklin County Heart Association the tournament has the endorsement of the Bowling Proprietors' Association of Ohio.

Last year tournaments were held at over 100 lanes in the Central Ohio Heart Association 50-county area and netted $20,717 for the research.

One year ago, President Kennedy ordered 4,000 additional U.S. troops into Thailand, at that government's invitation to cope with the Laotian crisis.

Time For Service Found By Nominee

By VIRGINIA WOLF

Mrs. William Moeller, 75 N. Huron-av, a busy young woman, has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that being a wife, mother and homemaker still leaves time to take part in community, church and volunteer work.

Mrs. Moeller has been nominated in Hartley Newspapers' search for Suburban Homemaker of the year.

It does not stretch the imagination to understand why she was nominated for the contest, which offers a final prize of $5,000 to the winner, an award presented by the American Dairy Association.

Mrs. Moeller, or Agnes as she is better known in her neighborhood, lives in a seven-room house and is the mother of five children, ranging from four to 10 years of age, all attending St. Aloysius School.

Mr. Moeller is employed at Dennison Engineering, and takes charge of the family in the evening while Agnes does private duty nursing at Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Agnes is first to volunteer for work in the community when her service is needed. She was a volunteer nurse when the Sabin Polio Vaccine was administered to the public, and she does work for the school and church.

During the summer months the family enjoys cookouts in the back yard. The highlight of all the family meals is dessert which usually consists of a fancy cake baked and decorated by Agnes. Her family's love for cakes induced Agnes to take a special course in cake baking and decorating.

Why was Agnes Moeller nominated in the Hartley Newspapers' search for a national Suburban Homemaker of the Year? Is Agnes really unusual?

The answer is no. Her name was submitted because someone cared enough about her, and appreciated her enough to seek for her the recognition she honestly deserves.

Agnes verified this when notified that Mrs. Jack Jenkins, 77 N. Huron-av, had nominated her for the Suburban Homemaker Contest. Agnes said, "You just go along and do your job, never knowing that neighbors are even paying any attention to what you are doing or even taking an interest in a family with five children." She concluded with, "being recognized as a homemaker has made me very happy and if there is a cloud nine I am on it."

Do you know of a homemaker you would like to enter in the Hartley search? Why not send us a letter of 500 words telling us about the particular someone you have in mind.

Your letter and the style of presentation of your nomination will not be judged.

Several Columbus area women may enter the national finals in Chicago next month. The national winner will be selected through a series of interviews. Homemaker candidates will not be called upon to demonstrate any physical household abilities.

Deadline for nominations is midnight Oct. 28. Write your letter today. You have the opportunity to make a person very happy by recognizing her homemaker qualities and you can achieve a personal happiness by making this recognition known.

Send your letter of nomination and entry blank to Suburban Homemaker Editor, Hartley Newspapers, 2465 W. Broad-st, Columbus, Ohio, 42304.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD Maryann Moeller is the official icing bowl "licker" while her mother adds that final touch to the fancy birthday cake. Mrs. Moeller is a nominee in the Suburban Homemaker Contest.

The Suburban Homemaker Editor of Hartley Newspapers announces the following women will serve as judges in the local area search for the Suburban Homemaker of the year:

Mrs. Paul V. Crosier, 260 S. Algonquin, is past president of West High School PTA, past president of Westgate Elementary PTA, a member of the National Board of Foreign Missions of American Baptist Convention, and the president of Ohio Baptist Women. She is a registered nurse and the mother of two children, Joan, married in August, and Lynda, a freshman at Ohio University in Athens. She is also the church organist at Hillcrest Baptist Church.

Mrs. William Miller, 1462 Berkshire-rd, is the president of United Church Women of Columbus and Franklin County and former Program Director of Hilltop YWCA. She is the mother of one teenage daughter, Laurie, and is a member of First Community Church.

Mrs. Walter Harris, 2538 Berwyn-rd, is the president of Diocesan Council of Catholic Women, the chairman of Diocesan Better Entertainment committee, deanery BTA chairman and president of St. Agatha's Women's Club. She is the mother of two sons, Mike and Dick, ages 15 and 18, respectively.

Early this year a steel beam, able to bear twice the weight of the 2,080-pound Liberty Bell, was inserted into the worn wooden yoke. The bell also got sturdier side frames, attached to a new steel platform.

in community affairs, working for betterment of street lighting and control of industry in the community, yet never neglecting her home and family to do so."

"Her home reflects an atmosphere of cheerful cooperation between parents and children yet each child receives individual attention and love."

"My mother has a part-time job which is helping toward our future education and to take us on vacations so we will learn more about our country and its history. Her job, however, does not prevent her from making our home warm and happy where we three children are proud to bring our friends."

So the letters read, from New York to California, simple friendly letters about women who deserved the tribute of Suburban Homemaker of the Year. A new award has been added this year. To the writer of the letter nominating the woman who is selected as National Suburban Homemaker of the Year will go a check for $500 from the Suburban Press Foundation. Isn't right now a good time for you to sit down and write that letter about the woman who gets your vote as our community's outstanding homemaker?

Versatile Natural Gas Helps Industry Stay Young

Versatility is the important quality of natural gas that helps industry in this area stay young. In steel making, for example, the development of new techniques and processes using natural gas has kept older industrial plants competitive.

The versatile qualities of natural gas have helped our chemical industry develop space age plastics, wondrous fibers, and myriad "miracle" materials.

Glass, pottery and hundreds of other industries in this area are kept young with help from natural gas.

We Favor . . .

For many years our newspapers have adhered to a policy of making a limited number of endorsements in our elections. This year we are continuing this policy along the following lines:

Elsewhere we are stating our preference in the Columbus mayoralty campaign and we have already gone on record as favoring all the school levies in our area.

Columbus has the good fortune of having several very fine candidates for the Board of Education. We feel that the voters of Columbus will not go wrong if they cast two of their votes for Paul Langdon and John Nippert.

Langdon is currently the president of the Board of Education and has several years of valuable experience on the Board. He has long been a member of the staff of Battelle Memorial Institute and has shown outstanding leadership in business and civic affairs in our community.

Nippert, well-known resident of this area, as a prominent businessman and civic leader, has long been interested in the welfare of our educational system and will be a distinct asset to the Columbus Public School system.

Paul Langdon should be returned to your School Board and John Nippert should be elected next Tuesday.

William "Bill" Hoermle has served the city well as a councilman and should be returned. He has worked under both a Democratic and a Republican mayor and has stood for those things he felt were best for the city regardless of party affiliation. He is honest in every respect and a good business man. The voters will do well to return him to council.

One of the best qualified men in the city council race is Maurice Portman. He has made extensive studies of city finances and served Columbus well back at the time of the previous Sensenbrenner administration. Regardless of the outcome of the current mayoralty campaign Portman should be elected to the council. He is a diligent and fearless public worker.

Gifts That Keep On Giving

In the past several weeks I have been involved in a big drive to secure funds for a church building campaign. My experiences in this drive brought memories of some of our many drives for funds to assist in the YMCA program.

While there are many who are reluctant to give of their worldly goods and many who give far less than one might expect, it is a great pleasure to know that there are so many who so willingly assist in such matters and want a was the site of one of the most stirring speeches in American History. Although it was received with mixed emotions at the time, it has become an inspiring statement of the American spirit. This week antiqued copies of Lincoln's Gettysburg address are being offered by Hartley Newspapers as a public service. See the advertisement in this paper for details.

AN EDITORIAL

We Back 'Jack'!

We have said little and listened much during the Columbus mayoralty campaign. We have tried to take a fair look at both the candidates and the arguments they have presented. The course of the campaign has provided a keener insight into the candidates—their records and their programs for the future of Columbus. It is on this basis that we recommend the election of M. E. Sensenbrenner.

The records of performance have been written for each candidate — Mayor Westlake's over the past four years, and Sensenbrenner's during his six years as mayor.

Sensenbrenner compiled his record first. It was one of growth, progress and planning. Indeed it was not without controversy, because Sensenbrenner is a man who openly fights for what he believes to be best for Columbus. Columbus grew in area under Sensenbrenner's annexation program. But the growth also included equal attention to expressways, sewers, streets, recreation centers and other programs and plans for total Columbus growth.

These are the elements that gained for Columbus the title All-American City — an honor Sensenbrenner willingly shared with the people of Columbus.

The Westlake administration came into office with the task of continuing programs of growth and progress. Westlake was not saddled with a dragging, limp city that had to be started on the move. Columbus was already rolling. Westlake's job was to improve — or at least maintain — the rate of progress. The task has not been met.

It is ironic that the Westlake administration should seek re-election by taking bows for completing programs and projects planned and initiated by the Sensenbrenner administration. It is sad that the Westlake administration chose to operate a "closed corporation" at City Hall, lacking in communication with the people.

It is almost commonplace to learn that Mayor Westlake does not know the thinking of fellow-Republican councilmen on vital issues, and that no effort is made by him to apprise council of his position. The Westlake administration has adopted an "ivory tower" policy. They have "come down to the people" only long enough to ask that they be permitted to return to the "tower" for another four-year residency.

We feel there were things "left undone" during the past administrations of both men. However, under Westlake, they are undone "quietly"; under Sensenbrenner they are undone "noisily" . . . the daily press sees to that. So which is the better? Possibly the latter —for the public will, in the end, serve as the proper prod.

But, realizing that it is not generally wise to vote for a change for the sake of changing, we watched the campaign to see how the Sensenbrenner of 1963 stacked up with the Sensenbrenner of 1959. This is what we learned:

The enthusiasm is still there — and this perhaps is Sensenbrenner's finest quality. He has maintained a deep and abiding faith in the people of Columbus. The infectious zeal is as evident and strong as ever. He is an independent in all matters concerning the welfare of his city. He continues to refuse support from any source that would place an intermediary between him and the people of Columbus.

Sensenbrenner is not afraid of "right now" action, basing his decisions on what will provide the greatest good for the greatest number. He remains eminently qualified to serve the city he loves and has served so well.

CSSO Will Dine Police Auxiliary

Plans for a Christmas party honoring Co. A of the Auxiliary Police were begun when the executive board of the CSSO met last Thursday.

Mike Lower, president, explained that the men in this organization have done so much for the South Side that the council wishes to show its appreciation.

(The patrol duty which the auxiliary undertakes on Halloween and that has done much to curb vandalism is but one of their activities.)

The dinner, which is subject to approval of the general membership, is scheduled for Dec. 12.

Other business included the board's recommendation for purchase of a pool table for the South Side Y, and a review of the constitution of the CSSO which has been revised.

Because the regular meeting date conflicts with Thanksgiving, Lower announced that the November meeting of the board has been moved up to Thursday, Dec. 5, at 5:30 p.m. A catered chicken dinner will be served.

South High Girl Earns Recognition

In the top two per cent of high school seniors who took the National Merit Scholarship Qualifying test last spring, Gloria Jeanne Wiegan of South High has received a formal letter of commendation signed by her principal H. Delbert Swain and the president of National Merit Scholarship Corporation.

She is the dauhter of Mrs. Evelyn G. Wiegand, 786 Bruck-st.

These letters were presented to 32,000 students in the schools of each state who, although they did not attain semi-finalist status, turned in outstanding performances in the three-hour examination that covered five areas of educational development.

The names, home addresses and test scores of all commended students are sent to the two colleges of their choice to increase their opportunities to obtain financial aid if it is needed.

Columbus Mayor Race Is Top Voter Attraction

The Columbus mayoralty campaigns of Mayor W. Ralston Westlake and challenger M. E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner will go to the voters for a decision in a few days. From time to time in the campaign various issues have been spotlighted by the candidates and through news media.

In the interest of summarizing some of the campaign issues, Hartley Newspapers posed 11 questions covering identical areas to each of the candidates. Printed here are the questions asked each candidate and his answers.

WESTLAKE

Q. What is the city's program for Sunday closing enforcement? Will it change in the near future?

A. Our policy has not changed. We will continue to enforce the Sunday closing law in clear-cut cases according to the interpretation of the courts.

Q. Will you press for enforcement of the "Red Goods" law?

A. We "press" for enforcement of all city ordinances. Enforcement of the Red goods law will be continued, as all enforcement is, based upon advice of the city attorney.

Q. What will be the relationship of Columbus to other Franklin County communities in Blue Plan participation?

A. The Blue Plan was established on a regional participation basis. Naturally, we encourage full participation of all Franklin County communities. Without such teamwork, there could be no regional Blue Plan.

Q. Why the apparent high priority for the proposed Wilson-rd extension? Will the project be undertaken without federal and /or county participation?

A. Traffic studies prove conclusively this improvement is required. The county is participating and is resubmitting application to the Bureau of Public Roads for federal aid, in accordance with the expressed wishes of more than 2,300 citizens who petitioned for the improvement.

Q. Has anything been done to solve the water odor and bad taste problem evident on the West Side after each spring thaw?

A. Construction of the Scioto Main Trunk Sewer, now well along, will provide service to Hilliard and northwest Franklin County and alleviate this problem at its source.

Q. A bond issue approved by the voters authorized construction of swimming pools. Why haven't they been built?

A. The bond issue provided for parks and recreation centers, as well as swimming pools. Priorities for these improvements were established by the City Recreation Commission, based on year-round needs. One year-round pool is programmed for 1964 in the Thompson Recreation Center area and another is planned for Sunshine Park. Other

SENSENBRENNER

Q. What will be your program for Sunday closing law enforcement?

A. The state legislature has a positive responsibility to clear up the present confusing situation, and only by clarification of Ohio law can this question be dealt with equitably. As yet, the legislature simply has not faced its responsibility.

Q. Will you press for enforcement of the "Red Goods" law?

A. Attorneys tell me that jurisdiction over all interstate commerce is exclusively under federal government regulations. Under the U.S. Constitution, any so-called Red goods law would not be legal by local action. The courts should be asked to clarify the question immediately, instead of stalling the question as the Westlake Administration has done with this and countless other messes which he has created.

Q. What will be the relationship of Columbus to other Franklin County communities in Blue Plan participation?

A. There is no question about the need and the logic of Columbus having the most friendly concern for all the other units of government which are an important part of this great metropolitan area. The Blue Plan gives us the opportunity to work together as a team to solve our common problems and to cultivate our opportunities in the most constructive way.

Q. What priority, if any, would you assign to the proposed extension of Wilson-rd? Should the project be undertaken without Federal and/or county participation?

A. The principle of using federal aid funds in helping to build highways in Columbus appears to be fundamental so as to conserve our local funds for matching purposes, in order to build the most roads for Columbus. Also, it is logical whenever possible in the building of streets to conform to what citizens want. As I understand it, citizens on the proposed Wilson road want a two-lane street. They are entitled to it if that is what they want, and there are plenty of highway situations on the West Side where highway improvement funds can be used.

Q. How do you propose

City, School Offices, Four Issues On Ballot

An estimated 104,000 Columbus voters are expected to cast ballots Nov. 5 to elect a mayor, four councilmen, a city attorney and four school board members. The electors will also answer three local questions and have their say on a proposed $250 million state bond issue.

The issues at stake are:

Renewal of an existing 15-mill operating levy for Columbus public schools.

Approval of a 1.5-mill levy to meet child welfare needs in Franklin County.

Ratification of a proposed three-year electric rate contract between Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. and the City of Columbus. The contract calls for a rate reduction, retroactive to July of this year.

The main attraction for the voters has been the spirited mayor's race between challenger and former mayor M.E. (Jack) Sensenbrenner, a Democrat, and incumbent Republican Mayor W. Ralston Westlake. Sensenbrenner is seeking to regain the office he lost to Westlake by less than 5,000 votes in 1959. Sensenbrenner had served the previous six years as mayor.

The race for city attorney has gained heavier-than-usual news coverage. The five-way write-in battle includes four

Division Kiwanis Post Goes To Ed Gearhart

E. E. Gearhart, 708 Chelsea-rd, will travel more than 1,000 miles next year in making his official visits to the 11 Kiwanis clubs of Division 10-W as the newly-elected lieutenant governor.

E. E. Gearhart

Gearhart, who is the director of personnel in the Columbus Public Schools System, was the charter president of the Columbus South Kiwanis Club, taking office in October of 1957 and serving through 1958. He then served on the board of directors for two years.

The past chairman of the education and fellowship and the inter-club committees, he has also worked as chairman of the boys and girls committee of the division.

Gearhart has attended three district conventions and two international conventions.

One of his first duties as incoming lieutenant governor will be to chair the training conference planned at the Deshler-Hilton Hotel Nov. 17 for the presidents-elect of the division clubs.

Gearhart, who holds a bachelor's degree from Otterbein and his master's from Ohio State, is a member of the Brookwood Presbyterian Church and a Mason.

German Village Commissioners Deny Certificate To Miss Dineen

When Miss Mary Dineen, 672 City Park, arranged to have her home painted, she neglected an important item—a certificate of appropriateness.

As her home is within the boundaries of German Village, it is legally a misdemeanor to alter its exterior without first applying and receiving the certificate which is in effect a building permit.

Once the painting was begun, the matter was promptly (but not before a fairly complete coat of pink paint had been applied to the west and south exterior walls of the dwelling) brought to the attention of the building inspection department which issued a stop-order.

According to Frank Fetch, president of the German Village Society, Miss Dineen, when she later appeared before the German Village Commission, stated that she was unaware that painting of her home was in violation of the law.

After hearing her belated request for a certificate of appropriateness, the commission denied it and suggested that she restore the home to its original condition.

Fetch and Mrs. Helen Bell, secretary of the commission, explained that enforcement of the ordinance is up to the building department, and that once the certificate is refused, the action of the Commission itself is over.

Tony Lorraine, of the building department, confirmed this Tuesday.

He stated that although the department always preferred to have the offender comply voluntarily, it seemed very likely in this case that an order would be issued to remove the paint.

He stated that, except in cases of emergency, which he explained did not exist here, 30 days are allowed in which to carry out the order.

The German Village ordinance carries with it a penalty of $50 to $500 for acting in violation of the ordinance.

CONSIDERABLE SYMPATHY was expressed by Frank Fetch, German Village president, for the plight which Miss Mary Dineen, 762 City Park, found herself in when she authorized painting of the above home in which she lives without obtaining a "certificate of appropriateness." After the legal steps that were taken, beginning with a stop order from the building department, it appears she will, at considerable expense, have no alternative but to remove the offending paint and restore the red brick to its natural color.

Bill Hoermle After Second Council Term

William P. Hoermle, Columbus businessman and five-year member of Columbus City Council, is seeking re-election to council. Hoermle, a Democrat, resides at 2434 Beverly-pl.

Appointed to Columbus City Council in 1958, Hoermle was elected to a full term the following year. He has operated Hoermle Appliance Store for the past 38 years; is a past president of the Columbus Appliance Dealers Association, and a member of the National Appliance Dealers Association.

Hoermle is chairman of Selective Service Board No. 39 and a board member for the past 23 years. He is a past president of the South Side Business and Industrial Association and of the Southeast Lions Club. He is a member of the Board of Trustees of Mercy Hospital, Board of Directors of Main Federal Savings and Loan Association and a board member and officer of Redi Foods. He is a past recipient of the silver Beaver award in Scouting.

Hoemle has called for more efficient use of present revenue producing systems to meet the needs of General Fund deparments. "With improved methods and business practices," he said, "additional money would be available to furnish the manpower needed in the departments."

Hoermle advocates closer co-ordination of activities of the various city departments to prevent overlap of functions.

South High News 'n Notes

Carla Jividen was crowned Homecoming Queen of South High School at the half-time of the South-West game last Friday. The announcement was made by Jim Lyle, vice-president of Student Council.

Jeanne Teel, last year's queen, presented Carla with a bouquet of white mums. Carla's escort was Roger Peer.

Other members of the court included Kathy Fletcher, Judy Hessenauer, Patty Moeckel and Virgene Watts. Their escorts were Ron Price, Joe Middendorf, Lucky McCaleb and Marc Borst.

Jim Reinhart and Jim Walker, co-captains of the football team, crowned Carla in the auditorium while the band played "Miss America." The queen and her court then led the way to the cafeteria for the dance. The theme was "Homecoming Down South," and the M-K Combo, with some members former South High graduates, played.

Over 8,000 spectators saw South win its first homecoming in four years.

At the pre-game show Oct. 25 the senior members of the South High School marching band were presented to the audience.

Senior members recognized were Bob Truax, Vickie Olgesbee, Norris Green, Dan O'Neil, Ray Brookins, Dick Evans, Don Cary, Peggy McCathern, Diana Parsons, Sue Steffens, Jody Keach, Harold Denny, Walter Kuepfer, Clyde Potter, Walter Steffens, Charles Sailor, Don Goff, Dale Goff, Beverly Oursler and William Spencer.

Senior majorettes are Karen Fisone, Nancy Fortier, Donna Jenkins, Dorothy Marte and Diane Cary. Ray Lamberson is the senior drum major.

Latin Club

Connie Roser was recently elected president of Romani Novi, South High School Latin Club. Assisting her are Nadine Wright, vice-president; Judy Lynch, secretary, and Margaret Sterling, treasurer.

Wiseman Named To Manager Post With Contractor

Joe Wiseman, 216 Yearling-rd, has been named service manager of Fremco Contractors, 1462 Cole-st. It was announced by George Frank, Jr., owner.

Wiseman will co-ordinate the newly formed furniture restoration and custom cabinet department with the Home Maintenance Division. He will be responsible for customer relations and assist in company development.

Seeks 2nd Term

Mrs. Golda May Edmonston is a candidate for re-election to city council for a second term. An error in a headline of last week's edition stated she was seeking her sixth term. This paper regrets the error.

TO ILLUSTRATE A POINT

FUN WITHOUT DESTRUCTION was the theme of the city-wide poster contest sponsored by the Altruss Club and the Columbus Public Schools this year to emphasize that Halloween and vandalism are not synonymous. When Mrs. Esther Chaney, art teacher, selected posters of Jeff Granick, left, Sam Borden and Stan Mosley to represent Marion-Franklin, she selected two winners. Jeff Granick took top honors and $7.50 and Sam won one of the two honorable mentions given. Second place winner was Michael Allen, sophomore from South High.

Showgirl or Theologian

We have at hand a little book just off the press and authored by Dale Evans, TV star and wife of Roy Rogers.

"No Two Ways About It" is outspoken and in plain language. It takes aim at materialism and explores her faith. It talks of pressures of modern life and the one way to real satisfaction.

While she is best known as a show girl, she is in her own right a theologian.

NO VANDALS HERE

LOOKING TOWARD A "Fun Halloween" the Student Council passed a resolution calling for fun on the coming holiday without vandalism. Each member was asked to sign a pledge that this would be his or her policy on Halloween. Firmly supporting the resolution are the newly elected officers. From the left they are Nancy Bressler, president; Dan Hoffman, vice-president; Sue Dennis, secretary; Sue Hackett, treasurer; and Fred Nagy, sergeant-at-arms.

DeVore Seeks Re-Election To City Council

Councilman Ronald E. DeVore, Republican, is seeking re-election on Nov. 5 and after four years in council states, "As a professional income tax economist the past 32 years my business has been saving money for other people. I promised to work toward this end in City Hall and I have kept my promise.

"As chairman of the Judiciary Committee, I have saved the city over $170,000 in the past 21 months."

DeVore points out that he believes central market tends to stabilize fresh food prices over the city and has voted to save the market for this reason. It is his claim that food prices may rise as much as 10 per cent all over the city if the market was eliminated.

DeVore claims that the United Redevelopment Corp. has promised to build a new central market at Fourth and Mound-sts in the near future at no cost to the taxpayers.

Your Auto Can Become A Mule And Haul Trailer, Boats, etc.

The growing trend in American families is the use of their cars for practically every family function. Perhaps it can be called the "spirit of togetherness."

An interesting use which cars are now being subjected to is use as a mule.

The family auto is loaded with all the necessary picnic, fishing and outdoor living paraphernalia and hitched to the car are a boat and trailer.

Suddenly the family is transformed from average exurban type people into adventurers, explorers and pioneers.

The largest growing sport and family pastime in the United States is boating and water sports.

More and more families throughout the country own boats but not all families can afford the fee required for membership in a yacht club or other boating facility.

This fact gave rise to trailers with families taking their boats to the water for a day's pleasure sailing or boating.

As soon as the subject of boats is discussed, the first question is: Well, isn't that expensive and, therefore, beyond the average family's reach?

Information from boating and trailer manufacturing companies indicates just the opposite.

For instance, if a family of moderate circumstance wanted to purchase a 16-foot sailboat, complete with sails, and a trailer, the total price would be about $1,789.

The trailer itself, which is custom designed for the particular boat it hauls, according to the quoted price of a manufacturer, is $189.

This total cost of slightly more than $1,600 is far from an exorbitant figure and is certainly within the reach of the average family wanting to make sailing or boating a hobby.

The trailer itself can be stored in a garage or even in a backyard when not in use.

It is designed so it is easily attached to the back of a car and may be pulled with complete safety at any speed.

When arriving at a boating area, the driver only has to back it down the launching area, slide the boat into the water, and he is set for a day on the lake or river.

The boat is just as easily replaced on the trailer at the day's end.

Trailers are built for all types of boats; however, the usual boats which are hauled are "run-abouts," the smaller sailboats, and outboard boats.

The larger boats are stored in shipyards when not in use and then taken to the launching place by some other method, such as a truck.

Many of the championship sailboat racers trail their boats to the various races and even trail to their own club because of the shortage of mooring.

Automobiles again prove to be an able partner in family fun and an interesting companion to boats and trailers.

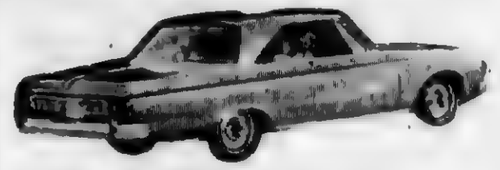
Poet Carl Sandburg's Daughter Will Speak To Ohio Librarians

Helga Sandburg, daughter of Carl Sandburg, and Alice Brooks McGuire, well-known Texas librarian, will speak when the Ohio Association of School Librarians confers Friday and Saturday, Nov. 1 and 2, at the Nationwide Inn.

Seminars, discussions and lectures on library practices are also part of the program for the more than 500 librarians expected to attend from all over the state.

With three published novels, poems and short stories which have appeared in major literary magazines to her credit, Miss Sandburg is fulfilling the prophecy of a critic that the author would become a major American novelist.

Miss Sandbury has revealed that as a child she was consumed with the desire to express herself through the written word.



Once, after burning notebook after notebook of beginning efforts, she finally presented to her father some poetry with which she was satisfied.

His satisfaction was evidently less than hers. He advised her to "Kick them around awhile. Let them sleep."

Taking his advice, Miss Sandburg temporarily shelved her ambitions and from 1952 through 1956 worked in the Library of Congress.

She made her official literary debut in 1958 with the publication of her first novel, "The Wheel of Earth."

FOOD MARKETS THIS WEEK

Good November Fare Fills Food Stores

THIS WEEK LOOK FOR:

Fruits — Apples, cider, grapefruit, cranberries.

Vegetables — Potatoes (white and sweet), cauliflower, broccoli, leaf and Bibb lettuce, winter squash.

Meats and Poultry — Fryers, pork roasts (loin and shoulder), beef "specials," bacon, medium eggs.

Other — Cheese, canned pumpkin, frozen vegetables.

Turkeys and cranberries will top the list of plentiful foods for November, according to the latest report from the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

There will be about the same amount of turkeys coming to market this year as last. Poultry men say that, while wholesale prices may be slightly higher this season, you can expect turkey to be a good buy around Thanksgiving time. In most instances, the large birds are more economical and excellent for use in future meals.

Mrs. Franks

The cranberry crop is expected to be the third largest ever. That means you can have your pick of cranberries—canned (sauce, jelly or juice), frozen or fresh. Your best bet will be the fresh berries, though. They'll be at their peak of goodness in November and their price will be right, too. You may want extra packages for the freezer.

Apples keep that fresh off-the-tree flavor during November, and they will remain on the bargain list of fruits. Citrus shipments increase steadily during the month; you can look for low price tags on grapefruit. Emperors will be the grape in heaviest supply, and they'll continue to reign supreme throughout the winter months.

The recent weather has been favorable for at least one group of growers. Greenhouse men say their crops have been benefited greatly from the bright sun rays. They say the lettuce and watercress are just the shade of green desired, and have the tenderness preferred. The quality of the greenhouse tomatoes is excellent also and harvest is near the peak for the fall crop.

A good crop of late fall potatoes assures low potato prices for now and well into the winter months. Other vegetables that belong to November are cabbage, broccoli, cauliflower and Brussels sprouts. It also is the time when the big dark green Hubbard squash show up in markets. They are never the cheapest squash available, but certainly one of the most delicious.

Ohio bees have been busy. This year's crop is estimated at about two per cent above last year and about the same as the average for recent years. And to dress up what might be an ordinary meal, there'll be a good supply of tree nuts. Pecans will turn in a record production — 64 per cent above average. There'll also be big crops of almonds and walnuts, but fewer filberts than usual.

Worker bees live only four to eight weeks after the honey gathering begins. Buzzing tirelessly from flower to flower, they gradually wear their delicate wings to a frazzle.

THE SEASON FOR . . .

COLDS AND FEVER

THE COMMON COLD . . . one of the few viruses that man has not conquered with a cure. The only thing that we have come up with so far, are medicines to give us relief. Perhaps, some day, someone will come up with the solution.

There are many spiritual things that we do not know the answers to. These things we must accept on faith.

"The secret things belong unto the Lord our God: but those things which are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law." Deuteronomy 29:29

God has revealed himself, his son, and his commandments, these are the major things. Attend church Sunday, learn more of God's will for your life.

EVERYONE IN THE CHURCH . . . THE CHURCH IN EVERYONE

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Alston Is Guest At Agonis Fete

Walter Alston, manager of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers, will be the guest of honor when the Agonis Club holds its weekly pre-game football luncheon Friday at the Gloria Restaurant, 2195 Riverside-dr.

Chuck Stokes, luncheon chairman, stated that the Agonis Club was honoring Walt Alston as "a fellow Ohioan for his outstanding contribution to the world of sports as manager of the world champion Los Angeles Dodgers."

STOKES ALSO disclosed that the Agonis Club is attempting to have Frank Howard, the ex-South High School, OSU star, and Dodger outfielder, fly in from his home in Green Bay, Wis., to join his boss for the luncheon.

Eric Wilson and Bud Suter from the Athletic Department at Iowa University will be on hand to report on the Hawkeyes football squad prior to their date with OSU the following day.

As usual, many other surprises have been planned for the Agonis luncheon which is open to the public. Tickets may be purchased at the door.

Underwater Explorers Go Indoors For Winter Season

Now that the cooler (?) months of the year are here, one would imagine that those people who spend their leisure hours in some outdoor sport will sadly put their gear away until next spring.

Not so, however, with one group in Central Ohio who simply move their base of operations indoors.

THROUGHOUT the fall and winter months the skin and scuba divers of the Columbus Underwater Explorers practice and teach the various skills of their sport.

Of course, one will not find the marine life in an indoor pool that is found in open waters. However, the techniques and safety factors of skin and scuba diving are the same in both places.

The safety record of this club is unsurpassed by any organization involved in water sports. For the past 10 years it has had a perfect safety record.

This has been due to the quantity and quality of instruction and training that new members and old members alike have received. Its members are all qualified by the Ohio Council of Skin and Scuba Divers.

ANY PERSON looking for a sport that offers both excitement and a fuller understanding of the lands beneath the seas is invited to contact this club about its forthcoming training program.

This program, which begins on Nov. 4, is open to all experienced swimmers of legal age and those 15 years and older with written consent of their parents.

Anyone interested may contact the club at 2524 Sullivant-av, or phone 274-9889.

'HE' GETS LETTERS

Dear Editors:

We don't know who makes your fearless predictions but we have a few words to say to him. So far he has been right about every game our South High Bulldogs have played and he may be right about our losing to Aquinas. (Editor's note: South won, 24-12).

If we lose it will not be because we have lost Lloyd Pate! Granted, Lloyd Pate is one great player and truly deserves all the recognition and honors given him. But he is NOT the whole team!

WITHOUT the rest of our great Bulldog players we would NOT be on top. Every player does his best to put South up on top and other players will replace Pate.

Remember, one player is not the whole team. He is just a part of it. All the boys are the team, all of them are good and if we lost any of the boys on our team we would feel just as bad as we do about the one we have lost.

We don't think you realize how this might make our boys feel when you write things like . . . "Pate lost . . . Aquinas."

WE KNOW it makes our boys feel disheartened, but we know and we are confident that our boys will play their best, and, win or lose, we still have a unified, spirited, terrific team!

Sincerely,
South High School
Reserve Cheerleaders

Dear Girls:

I agree with your argument completely. I understand that one player does not make or break an entire team. However, you must realize that, due to space limitations, I cannot say, "Pate lost (but he's only one player and everyone else on the team is trying hard so the loss won't affect the team) . . . Aquinas."

I'M SURE you'll admit that the loss of a player who can pick up 205 yards in one game for your team would surely be felt. I'm sorry if you interpreted the words as a detriment to the rest of your team. They were not intended that way.

"FEARLESS"

Dear Fearless:

Well, C-W fans had a couple of reasons to be happy Friday night (Oct. 18). First of all, it was homecoming and the Indians beat good ol' Fairfield Union in a spectacular second half.

WHAT MADE it even better was the fact that our GOOD BUDDY at Rural-Urban News headquarters predicted we'd lose. (That means another black mark for you).

You never want to take any advice but here is some, anyway. This week (Oct. 25) we play a team from a certain school (while I won't mention the name) whose initials are C-A-R-R-O-L-L.

In case you don't know, there is a good bit of friendly (?) rivalry with this school. Of course, everyone here is losing sleep over how the prediction for this game will read. (Everybody but me, that is. I know you're gonna be a nice guy this week).

We'll be watching.

PS — Do you realize that I've wasted 28 cents on stamps, just writing to you?

Dear?,

Guilty, guilty, guilty on the Oct. 18 prediction. You were undoubtedly surprised at the Oct. 25 prediction. (By the way, I do wish you'd get your letters in here earlier. They miss our deadline and I hate to run them a whole week late).

PLEASE forward me your '64 football schedule so I can start on next year. You people have only two more games remaining and I want to get an early start on next year's work.

"FEARLESS"

PS — About those stamps, just write off that expense as the price of fame.

KEEP YOUR SCHOOLS STRONG!---
RENEW THE 15 MILL SCHOOL LEVY!

The Columbus Public Schools depend upon this levy for much of their operating revenue.

The levy itself provides 57% of the money needed to operate our schools this year.

This levy also qualifies our schools to receive funds from the state of Ohio. Net state aid this year accounts for 15% of the income of our schools.

The Columbus Public Schools stand to lose 72% of their income unless this levy is renewed! (57% + 15% = 72%).

The Columbus Board of Education is asking you to RENEW school taxes already in effect.

This levy, which totals 15 mills, has been in effect in 1962 and 1963. However, all 15 mills will expire at the end of 1964 unless the school levy is RENEWED.

This levy WILL NOT increase the tax rate for school operation.

By voting FOR the 15-mill levy, you will not increase the tax rate for school operation.

Dry Conditions Hamper Early Grouse Hunting

INSIDE ON THE Outdoors By ROB COCHRAN

Well, the longest grouse hunting season in the nation is off and running. Opening in Ohio on Oct. 12, the season runs to Feb. 23.

I haven't been out yet, but hope to remedy this situation soon. A. F. "Bud" Geibe, 2673 Johnstown-rd, one of the most avid grouse hunters I know, opened his season in the Southern Ohio hills. "Hunting is tough with a lot of leaves on and the dry conditions," he reported the other day.

It seemed that Geibe was wishing for some precipitation and a little cooler weather as we talked. "Do you like to hunt at the beginning of the season," I asked. "Yes, but I like it better a little later on."

This about sums up my sentiments. Grouse hunting is fun anytime, but the best is yet to come.

Early autumn is a good time to be outdoors. The weather is comfortable, and sometimes too warm as it was this year. Climbing steep hills for grouse is a little more tiring in warm weather.

Drought conditions make any hunting chancy. You never know where game might be — at water holes, resting in the shade and the like. Animals tend to change their normal habits and environment. So when the woods are as dry as tinder, its not so much fun trying to scare up some birds.

The main factor, however, is the foliage on trees. With a lot of leaves on, you simply can not see grouse when they flush. They are tough enough anyway, and a lot of leaves on the trees tip the scales too much in their favor.

I am not trying to scare you out, simply stating the facts — October is often a pleasant time to hunt, but it's not the best time to shoot a grouse.

After the leaves are down and we have some ground moisture you will be able to see more birds. For one thing, they won't hear you coming two miles away with the leaf sounds deadened by some rain. You will not have so many wild flushes.

I am often asked the question, "Where do you hunt grouse?" Any place to the south or east of this area. Vinton County is excellent and so is quite a lot of Hocking County. Listing counties would be too much for the space here, but a good rule to follow is: grouse are likely to be found anywhere south and east where you find woods, hills, thickets, brambles and evergreens. When you find these ingredients togther, look for grouse.

Hunting tactics vary, but I usually start up a hollow, zig-zagging some across the flatter portions in the bottom. Then I work up to the head of the hollow, on the ridge top. If no grouse are flushed, I start back on one of the ridges. If I'm still drawing a blank, I try the hill about half way down. Then I search for certain areas — evergreens, an old orchard, brambles near a stream. By this time I'm ready to go home whether I have flushed any grouse or not.

Local TV Station Will Broadcast English Series

Starting Monday, Nov. 4, the 15,320 men and women of Franklin County who are unable to read and write English well can learn these skills while watching television in their own homes. The opportunity will be given them through a series, "Operation Alphabet," which has been designed by educators especially for the adult who lacks these essential abilities.

The educational series will be broadcast every weekday morning for 20 weeks on WBNS-TV, Channel 10, from 6 to 6:30 a.m. This program is being co-sponsored by the station, the Columbus Council of Adult Education of Greater Columbus, and the Section of Adult Education of the State Department of Education.

According to Karl F. Kessler, supervisor of Adult Education, State Department of Education, the adult who conscientiously follows "Operation Alphabet" throughout the 100 lessons and who studies and practices with the "TV Home-Study Book" will have a basic reading ability.

May 31, 1889, between two and three thousand lives were lost at Johnstown, Pa., when heavy rains caused the dam across South Fork, 12 miles above the city, to burst.

to solve the water odor and bad taste problem evident on the West Side after each spring thaw?

A. Here you pose a question which I would not attempt to answer, for it is technical and requires specialized knowledge to answer it. However, we all want good water, and as mayor I certainly would do everything possible to have good water for our whole city.

Q. A bond issue approved by the voters authorized construction of swimming pools. When and where do you propose such construction?

A. The people voted a bond issue for such a program, and it has not been carried out by the Westlake administration. As mayor I would carry out the entire program just as the people voted for it. Generally speaking, Columbus is far behind other large cities in its parks and recreation facilities, and I have continually supported better programs to meet the needs of our rapidly growing city.

Q. How do you feel about the program involving relief recipients working for the City?

A. I see no reason why able-bodied men should not be required to work to be eligible for relief, rather than just giving them a handout. Work permits them to have self-respect. It also helps to develop fine park systems to serve all the people. However, families and children should be cared for whenever a legitimate need exists.

Q. What is your feeling on the Sawvel Water Rate report? What rate changes, if any, would you recommend?

A. This Westlake political document was exposed by the Hartley Newspapers as coming close to being a fraud against the public interest. The rulers of Rome in the dark ages tried to give the people circuses instead of bread. This is what Westlake tried unsuccessfully to hand out in his politically-inspired water report which has been forthrightly repudiated by the leading civic and business people of Columbus. It's a phony by which Mr. Westlake tries to fool the people and jeopardize the growth of our city and sabotage industry. It could be that Mr. Westlake is thus trying to buy a few votes for himself at the expense of our city. Everybody knows if we are to protect our city's water supply there must be an adjustment in rates. This should be done on an equitable basis. We should safeguard our city's water supply as our most valuable asset, which we cannot afford to have Westlake use as a political football.

Q. Do you favor a merger of the Recreation Department with the Division of Parks and Forestry?

A. What better program can we have for all our citizens, and especially for families, than our parks and playgrounds. Yes, I feel that our city could do a better job if all these public outdoor recreational facilities had the coordination of a single city department to give this most important service greater focus and strength.

Q. How do you feel about the proposed light plant-CTC swap?

A. Mass transportation is one of the major problems of all large cities . . . The question can be asked: What will it cost a city not to solve this problem? I do not pretend to know the answer. Any approach to this problem will require searching, scientific analysis and evaluation before any intelligent action can be formulated. I do know this is not a question for political manipulation for it is a public problem of great concern to the future of our city, and I do not propose to guess about it.

Q. What is the future of the Columbus water plant? Do you see an eventual end to the "freeze" and/or county-wide service from Columbus?

A. I believe our city's concern should be to provide the best possible water facilities for Columbus and to have our metropolitan water system give good service to other municipalities in this area on a cost basis plus a reasonable over-ride to cover the overhead expense of such a large operation. The present rate freeze in reference to unincorporated areas has proved itself to be sound and in the best interests of Columbus. Other cities have had a similar experience. When it comes to attracting a major industry to Columbus with many new jobs, we would give most careful consideration to meeting its needs in order to build Columbus. As your mayor, I will do my best to bring new industry and jobs into our fine city.

pools will be scheduled by the same criteria.

Q. What is the current program involving relief recipients working for the city? What will be the future program?

A. Able-bodied recipients of relief are given the opportunity to participate in the expanded work-relief program requested by the city. This program has been most successful and has resulted in the rehabilitation of many through job placements which have reduced the poor relief rolls.

Q. What is delaying action on the Sawvel Water Rate report? Where is the sewer section of the report? What rate changes do you recommend?

A. An ordinance based on the Sawvel report is now before city council and will be acted upon after thorough study. The sewer portion of the study is being completed and will be submitted by the consultant. If, after we have exhausted all efforts to further economize in the Water Department (savings this year alone total $190,000), it is necessary to adjust rates, we will recommend fair and equitable adjustments which will not unduly burden small consumers.

Q. Do you favor a merger of the Recreation Department with the Division of Parks and Forestry?

A. Such a merger would require a city charter amendment, subject to a vote of the people. However, I see no reason to recommend an amendment at this time. There is close coordination of the two programs, but each is also highly specialized and is now being carried out efficiently and cooperatively.

Q. Do you still oppose the proposed light plant-CTC swap?

A. Definitely. The Municipal Light Plant was established by a two-thirds vote of the people. It should not be relinquished without the same approval. The light plant is important to the people—not only by providing free street lighting, but also because it serves as a yardstick on the cost of electric power and, thus, keeps private utility rates in line.

Q. What is the future of the Columbus water plant? Do you see an eventual end to the "freeze" and/or county-wide service from Columbus?

A. We expect the Columbus water plant to FIRST provide service to the residents of this city at fair and equitable rates. Then, when economical, the service could be expanded for others.

Army Schedules Aerial Show Near Plain City

Skies over Plain City will be buzzing Saturday, Nov. 2, with Army aircraft, and military and aerobatic parachutists in a demonstration of aircraft capabilities, fly-overs, aerial delivery equipment and air drops of personnel and cargo.

Commander of the Army Mobility Support Center, Colonel Gomer A. Sweeten, invites the public to this free exhibition beginning at 9 a.m. and running through 10:30 a.m., at the Columbus Sky Divers Jump Field.

Participating in the show, which will also include static aircraft exhibits, and precision drill team demonstrations, will be: personnel of the USAMSC Aerial Delivery Equipment Division; the Ohio Air National Guard, led by Captain David Guest; the Ohio State University Pershing Rifle Drill Team, headed by Major Robert Sykes; and the Columbus Sky Divers Club Incorporated.

The Air Show will present spectacular jumps by the Sky Divers from 12,500 feet with 60-second delayed chute openings and eye-catching smoke trails.

The site of the show is located three miles south of Plain City on Rt. 42 and one mile west on the Price-Hilliard-rd. Refreshments will be available, and there will be free parking.

PLANNING FOR A DAY of Recollection Sunday, Nov. 3, are the above ladies of St. Leo's Altar Rosary Sodality. candidates who share common last names. Initial entries for the office were incumbent City Attorney John Young, a Republican, and Fred Rose, a Democrat.

The name confusion began when Jack F. Young, an Upper Arlington attorney, moved to Columbus to enter the city attorney race. Midway through the campaign a secodn "Rose," a Republican, entered the contest. The fifth write-in entrant to the race is Joseph D. Bryan, a Democrat.

Four Council Seats Open

The electorate will choose four of eight candidates to serve four-year council terms. Although the council race is non-partisan, (party affiliation will not show on voting machines) the candidates carry party endorsements.

Three of the Republican candidates for council are incumbents: Council President Mrs. Golda May Edmonston, Ronald E. DeVore and Roland A. Sedgwick. The fourth Republican is Harvey H. Alston, Sr.

Democratic candidates include incumbent William P. Hoermle and challengers Maurice D. Portman, Russell M. Jones and Joseph Jennings Murphy.

Columbus voters will also choose four members for the Columbus School District Board of Education from among a field of 10 candidates. The candidates are:

Donald E. Calhoun, Robert R. Garrison, Lawrence E. Hughes, Norma W. Jones, Kenneth J. Kabelka, Paul R. Langdon, William B. Logan, John E. Nippert, Robert A. Ramsey and Celeste M. Taft. Calhoun and Langdon are incumbents.

Paul L. Walker will be the only listed candidate for election to the Ohio State Board of Education.

Three municipal court judgeships will be determined by a county-wide vote. Incumbent Judge Russell Leach and Robert D. Holmes will vie for a six-year term beginning Jan. 1, 1964; incumbent Judge Dean Strausbaugh and Richard L. Brennan will be paired for a six-year term beginning Jan. 2, 1964, and incumbent Judge William H. Brooks is challenged by Tom Moody for a term ending Jan. 2, 1968.

Voters will also choose a clerk of courts on a county-wide ballot. Incumbent Ted Hysell, a Republican, will face Democrat John W. Clifford. The Columbus Municipal Court has county-wide jurisdiction.

The state issue to be voted on by Columbus electors seeks the approval of the sale of bonds totaling $250 million. Proceeds are to be allocated to higher and secondary education, development of natural resources and parks and for a state capital improvements. The bonds, if authorized, would be paid off by continuing an existing one-cent tax on cigarettes.

The bond proposal calls for the following allocation of funds:

Higher education, $175 million; secondary education, $35 million; natural resources and parks, $25 million, and capital improvements, $15 million.

Parish Plans 4th Retreat

Both breakfast and lunch will be served at the event which is sponsored by the Altar Rosary Sodality of St. Leo's.

Further information may be obtained by calling Mrs. Robert Burkey, HI. 3-6302.

Vote Nov. 5, Weather Or Not

There are many very good reasons why Election Day should be considered an important occasion. It is the day when every eligible voter has equal power; and it is a day when that power will decide major issues and courses of action.

Franklin County voters will decide which candidates will govern their local communities, and whether or not we will meet our responsibility in the area of child welfare. Several areas will decide school support issues, and all of us will have our say on the $250 million state bond proposal.

It is a sad commentary on the free elections system when the size of a vote is determined to any appreciable degree by the weather. The important thought with the voters should not be whether or not it rains on Election Day, but whether or not we wish to protect our rights to self-government.

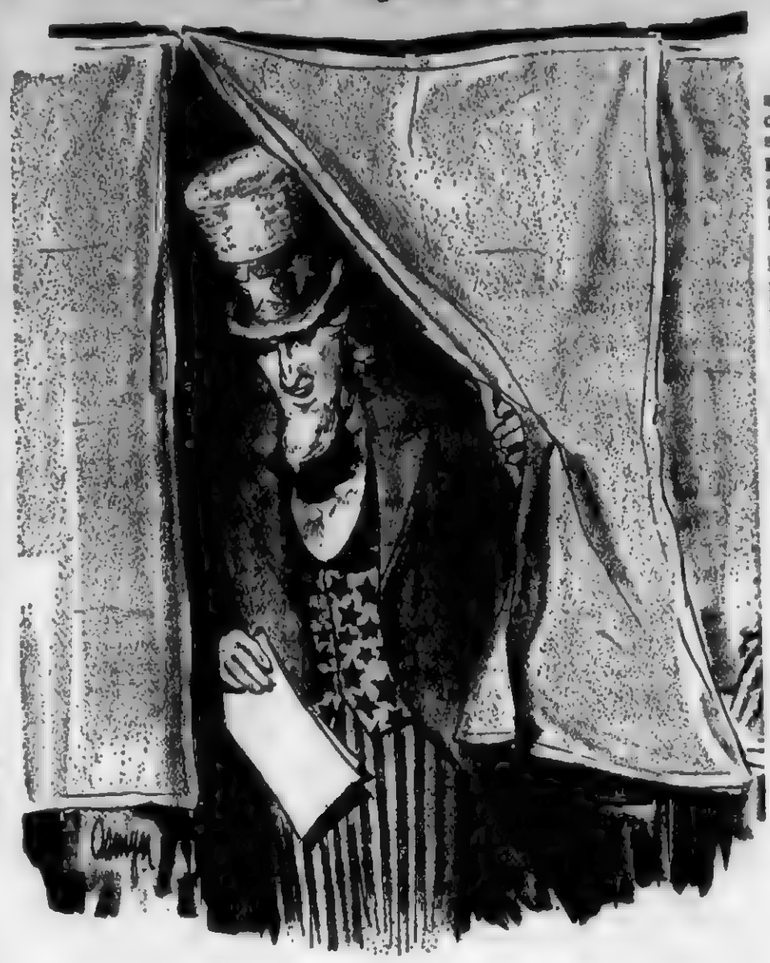
Let's each make our own campaign pledge to vote on Nov. 5—"weather" or not.

Ah-h-h Country Air!

Word of a vacation innovation aimed at city and town folk came across our desk the other day. It presented information on 14 vacation farms located in Brown, Highland and Pike counties.

The general idea is to offer the "fume and smoke-filled" city dweller an opportunity to spend a weekend or a week in a combination of the scenic beauty of Southern Ohio and a taste of farm life. (And what's more inviting — farm cooking).

While some farmers offer the live-in and eat-in arrangements, others provide cottages and cabins with cooking facilities for those who want to "rough it." The venture is both unique and inviting. And this beautiful fall weather makes it even more so.



Let's K.O. That CO

Columbus officials will wind up on Friday the city's annual five-day carbon monoxide drive to stop the "silent killer." Albert G. Giles, Columbus safety director, listed the following set of safety rules to follow in lighting or installing heating or cooking equipment:

Buy and use approved heating equipment; vent equipment into a clean chimney; check the chimney before using it by blowing smoke into it; install vent pipes on an upward angle from the appliance; allow some outside fresh air into the area where the heating equipment is located; have qualified workmen clean and check heating equipment.

Giles also noted, just prior to this year's drive, that next year's plans may be extended to include participation by other communities in Franklin County. The "silent killer" does not strike in Columbus alone, and we think it a good idea that all of Franklin County be alerted to the dangers of carbon monoxide.

MANNER OF SPEAKING

As has been said of other professional groups, real estate people (an overwhelming majority of them strictly honest), occupy an important place in the modern scene. They are specialists giving a necessary service to others too busy to gain essential information about land and shelter.

With this said in all sincerity, we hope our friends in the business will not be offended if we try to poke a little fun at them and ourselves. After all, most things have a humorous side if seen from the right angle.

Here are a few phrases seen in star listings about property and translations of what they might mean to prospective clients.

Prestige Location: It's a long way to the supermarket.

Estate Home: Requires power mower and yardman.

Authentic Abode: A mud hut.

Territorial Design: Executive mud hut.

Executive Type—Run the mower yourself.

Honeymoon Cottage: Itsy bitsy witsy.

Doll House: Teeny weeny meany.

Spacious Older Home: It's a dog.

Possibilities Galore: It's a shaggy dog.

Short Acre: Oversized lot.

Oversized lot: A short acre.

Realistic Price: Guess again if you dare.

It says here .....

A palace is just a king-size cottage.

Cheers, Mr. Postman!

The National Association of Letter Carriers and the Post Office Department cooperated in a Washington ceremony marking the 100th anniversary of home mail delivery. Ohio shares a significant role in the history of home delivery because it all started in Cleveland in the late winter of 1863.

The originator of home delivery, Joseph Briggs, conceived the idea when he was assistant postmaster, serving in Cleveland. Prior to the Briggs innovation, people had to visit the post office to pick up mail.

Briggs was filled with compassion for Cleveland women who stood for hours in the cold winter to check for mail from their husbands and sweethearts away at the Civil War fighting fronts. He began a system of sorting mail by areas, to be distributed from neighboring grocery stores. He later developed a system of delivery by uniformed post men to home addresses.

The system developed in Cleveland is now worldwide in scope, and the centennial of home delivery of mail is another chapter in Ohio history. The U.S. Post Office Department has dedicated a commemorative stamp, the first recognition in such a manner by the department of the nation's letter carriers and the service they represent.

And as thoughts turn to the approaching cold of winter, we can offer a "warm" thanks to Joseph Briggs and those who have followed.

Notes Progress Of Music

Good music is a rich heritage. Generation after generation has felt this God-given force which sustains faith, fortifies courage, and to some extent influences the universal experiences of all humanity. It is called the universal language because it appeals to every race in every land.

Ohio was one of the first states to introduce this cultural art in the schools in Cincinnati, 1845.

Other cities followed, and now Columbus and 35 universities throughout the state offer music courses.

Columbus has proven its musical progress with music departments at Capital and Ohio State universities, and our Columbus Symphony has become nationally known with its capable maestro, Evan Whallon.

Music continues to forge ahead, spreading joy and contentment wherever it is heard, inspiring future followers of this great art.

An Editor's Outlook by Jenkin Lloyd Jones

Mountains Are Murderous Magnets To Men

JUNGFRAUJOCH, Switzerland—Above the pretty village of Wilderswill with its flower-decked chalets, the Black Luchine boils and leaps down the narrow valley between the Mannlichen and the Faulhorn. High on the stream, looking east toward the massive Wetterhorn and southwest to the dazzling white crown of the Jungfrau, lies Grindelwald, the sparkling ski resort so often in the winter newsreels.

Jones

Above Grindelwald there is a broad meadow, on its lower reaches forming a steep but smooth slope that climbs 3,400 feet to the cog railway station at Kleine Scheidegg. In the snow months this is rated as the finest ski run in Europe.

But as the slope nears the mountain it steepens. It is studded by huge boulders and scored by deep ravines. Above that there is the area of fallen rock, hundreds of feet of crushed rubble hurled down from the crags and ledges by frost and thaw, wind and avalanche. And above all that begins the North Face of the Eiger—6,000 feet of nearly sheer rock wall.

Somewhere up there are two little mounds of snow, new to the mountain. They mark the bodies of two Spanish climbers, trapped in June. Somewhere, also, for the past six years, have lain the remains of Gunther Northdurft and Franz Mayer. All the rest of the climbers of the Eiger are accounted for.

It has been 28 years since Max Seidmayer and Karl Mehringer decided to smash the universally-held conviction that the Eiger's north face was unclimbable. In that time 114 men have hurled themselves against that wall. Seventy-nine have either made it to the top or been successfully rescued. Twenty-five are dead.

The pioneers, Seidmayer and Mehringer, led the parade of death. Crowds of sightseers queued up before the telescopes in the valley as the young Munich men rounded the First Pillar, made their way up the difficult Crack, crawled under the overhanging Rote Fluh and bivouacked for the night near the Swallow's Nest. But the next day in a bombardment of falling rock they only inched 300 feet up the Second Ice Field. On the third day they seemed hesitant.

You can study a mountain through a valley telescope or pore with a magnifying glass over an aerial photograph. But on the face it is never the same. What seems a mere shadow from a distance may be an impossible outthrust. What looks like an inviting ledge from a swift-moving plane may prove only a stratum of rotten rock. Pioneers are not armed with answers. They come only with questions.

On the fourth and fifth days clouds shrouded the fate of the climbers. The mountain was racked by blizzards, sleet and lightning. But on the sixth day the mists parted for a moment and there they were, struggling just above the Third Ice Field. That night the greatest storm of all scoured the face of the Eiger.

A year later two frozen bodies were lowered from what is still known as the Death Bivouac.

In 1936 the great Bavarian guide, Anderl Hinterstoisser, found the key to the lower part of the climb in what is now known as the Hinterstoisser Traverse. But he and two companions were swept down in an avalanche. The fourth member of the party, Toni Kurz, had lowered himself to within 50 feet of his rescuers when a knot jammed in a cleat. He died swinging.

But the challenge had been voiced. Now the bravest climbers in Europe began to slip into Grindelwald to study the Eiger. Most of them were poor and unheralded —clerks, masons, students, factory workers. But practically all were master rock men. Some came by motor bike. Some, too poor to afford sleeping rooms, camped in the meadow. Karl Winter started up the Eiger with five Swiss francs in his pocket. Only a few exhibitionists (who rarely got above the Ice Hose) boasted of their intentions. In the pre-dawn hours the good men just quietly left for the mountain.

And in 1938 the North Face was climbed. Andreas Heckmair, Ludwig Vorg, Fritz Kasparek and Heinrich Harrer made it in four days, and Harrer's book, "The White Spider," is a mountaineering classic.

Nine years later two Frenchmen got up, a month later three Germans. With each success the interest increased. The year 1952 was "the good year." Nineteen men reached the top.

Then the mountain turned. In July '53 Korber and Vass were swept away during a storm and the next month Wyss and Gonda fell from the summit ice-slope. In '56 it was Sohnel and Moosmuller and in '57 the Corti disaster. One body, held by a belt, swung grotesquely for two years before it was cut down. But still they come, and last month a young Swiss went up all by himself in 30 hours.

Why?

The safe wiseacres at the valley telescopes talk of "thirst for glory." The amateur psychiatrists suspect that these climbers are misfits trying to prove that they are conquerors. But the face of the Eiger seems to be no place for neurotics, and in their normal lives climbers rarely display personality problems.

So why, again?

Heinrich Harrer tries an answer:

"I do not think any one of us who climbed that 6,000-foot bastion of rock and ice was at any time in fear of his life. But after our safe return we felt more conscious of the privilege of having been allowed to live. The Eiger's face helped me to believe in life when all the circumstances seemed most hostile to life itself."

Or, as old Kurt Maix put it: "Climbing is the most royal irrationality out of which Man has been able to fashion the highest personal values."

I'll never understand it. But after a look at the Eiger I'll never sneer again.

One Man's Opinion . . .

CD Shelter Stay Sharpens Philosophy

This opinion is directed to people who (like the writer) have prayed for peace but have done virtually nothing to learn how to survive in the event of a nuclear war. (We are like the athlete who prays for victory but does not train for the contest.)

Ryan

I did some training last month for the grim contest of survival. I was a two - day fallout shelter "guest" of the Columbus and Franklin County Civil Defense unit. Thinking back now, one big question defies an honest answer from me. The question: Is death in a nuclear holocaust preferable to survival of the deadly fallout?

If you believe that the personal desire for survival is the strongest human emotion, you had better open your ears and your mind to Civil Defense activities. The message of survival is being delivered today, as it has been for the past 10 to 15 years. But far too many people, finding the subject too morbid and horrible to imagine, have chosen the extreme alternatives of peace or death.

There is no choice if we reside in the "ground zero" area of a nuclear blast. Death is a virtual certainty. But death can be almost as certain for hundreds of thousands of people outside the immediate target area —a torturous death from blast burns or deadly radiation; from disease, contaminated water, or the total panic that comes from being unprepared.

The death-dealing radiation cannot be seen, heard or felt through the human senses; nor is there a warning odor. The rays can be measured only through use of highly sensitive detectors. Survival, however, is not only possible, but also probable for those with a will and the knowledge to survive.

If (God forbid) a nuclear attack should become a reality, and if you are offered the alternative of survival, know you well this truth: It will be a grim experience; it will be hard, hard, hard; and the aftermath you face upon leaving a fallout shelter may make you wish you had not survived the first awful blast.

Having survived a simulated attack, I am not convinced that I would want to remain on this earth following an actual nuclear explosion. (But do I have the right to choose death for my children?) Perhaps, as the experts claim, I would cling to precious life with every ounce of my will and strength. I don't know.

I now feel, however, that I extend a personal invitation to any potential enemy to initiate an attack by showing him that I am not prepared to survive. This philosophy is a main reason why I now believe that the most effective deterrent to attack is a loud and clear message that we are prepared to survive.

As a nation, we have demonstrated well our ability to counter-attack and to destroy. Our government can talk as good a game as any of our potential enemies, But what if talk ceases and the fearful "button" is pressed?

If a nuclear war erupts, we must depend on our military might and strategists to win the battle. But you and I — the people — will determine if we win the war. If we are not prepared to survive, it is futile for our military forces to retaliate.

Prayer and hope are essential to survival. But prayer without action is meaningless, and hope without knowledge is lost.—FRANK RYAN.

Fear, Love Of God Can Banish Fear Of War

Jesus pictured the fear of modern man in the gospel of Luke: "Men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after these things which are coming on the earth." (Luke 21:26)

Rev. Holland

Jesus here makes two predictions: One, that men would be fearful; and the other, that things "are coming on the earth." We cannot say there is no fear at the possibility of war today because we never know what step the enemy might use next. There is no scientific explanation that will remove the fear of war. We cannot stop wars by saying, "There is no such thing as war." This would be evading the issue. Paul, in writing to the church at Thessalonica says, "For when they shall say, 'Peace and safety,' then sudden destruction cometh upon them." (I Thess. 5:3)

Jesus advised His followers, "And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh." (Luke 21:28)

I don't think that this is the coward's way of seeking the easiest road out. It is the wise man's way of accepting God's pathway out and up, while the worldly-wise fear and tremble. The Christian lives in peace while the foolish cry, "Peace, peace, when there is no peace." (Jeremiah 6:14). Jesus told the disciples, "Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: Not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." (John 14:27) The fear of war may be replaced by the fear and love of God.

God's love goes out first to all men. That love is manifested in the work of Christ. When we were yet sinners, Christ died for us. He died for the whole world. Today, put your faith and trust in Him and He will give you the inner peace.

Frosting On The Cake

By "UNCLE DOC" ROSS — U.S.A.

Some parents have been known to rush down to the police station to file assault and battery charges against some real old-fashioned cop who believes that the law is to preserve "law and order," not pamper spoiled brats.

Now, night after night, way past time for all parents to know exactly where their kids are, such criminal behavior gets a rude awakening because Pop's dear Junior, or Mom's darling Sissy is down at police headquarters.

The tragedy is that some of the crazy kids don't wind up in the "bull pen." They wind up in the morgue and nobody seems to have the slightest idea "how it possibly could have happened to MY kids." There is no mystery about it; at age six months, such kids were experts at psychological warfare. At age six years, they were miniature Castros and at age 16, completely out of control on their way to Lancaster or Delaware.

I was a kid 60 years ago, up in Adrian, Mich., and when it came dark my folks knew exactly where I was and why. We had a town marshal who knew every kid, who his parents were, and anyone's brats who got out of line got some action "right now."

Nowadays, young hoods get away with murder, almost, because no one dares to lower the boom on anyone for anything.

May Almighty God wake this country up in time.

Lands 5-Lb. Largemouth

The long drought might be rough on some people but there's at least one fisherman who isn't complaining about our elongated Indian Summer.

Terry Arnett of 365 Carillain in Lincoln Village pulled in a five-pound largemouth bass Sunday morning while fishing at the Scioto River.

Sore But Victorious

The Hartley Newspapers football team defeated the Catholic Times, 12-6, Saturday in a hard-fought, traditional-rivalry touch football game at Westgate Park.

The Hartley club finished its '63 season unbeaten with a 1-0 record.

WITH TIEBREAKER . . .

Cleo Noggle Is Winner In Contest Third Round

A retired State Hospital emoloye, Miss Cleo Noggle 2405½ W. Broad-st, is the third week winner in the Hartley Newspapers Football Contest.

Miss Noggle, who correctly picked 13 of 16 gridiron games, was a winner of $25 and topped 156 other entrants in the contest.

HER ENTRY on a Hilltop Record form, was a narrow winner as contest officials were forced to go to the tie-breaker for the first time this year.

Worthy Spurlock, 32 22nd-av, also missed only three selections but couldn't match Miss Noggle's prediction on the final score of the OSU-Wisconsin game.

A number of other entrants were close behind with four incorrect picks.

MISS NOGGLE, who could have doubled her winnings by being a paid subscriber to one of the seven Hartley Newspapers, admitted that this was her first year in football contest competition.

"I never win anything. I don't even know much about football," she smiled.

Oddly enough, Miss Noggle lives only steps away from the Hartley Publishing Plant.

BUT WHETHER you live next door or as far away as Ashville, Dublin or New Albany, you have a chance to win up to $100 in the Hartley Football Contest.

All you have to do is fill in the entry blank below, printing your selection next to the advertiser in whose block you find the game.

South 11 Ends 38 Year Drought; Perfect Mark Put On Line vs Central

By ART KIENZLE

A highly-spirited homecoming crowd of some 6000 fans was on hand Friday at Mahaffey Stadium to witness South High in its eighth straight victory of the year, 12-7, over West.

The win, coupled with Whetstone's 22-12 upset win over Central, left South all alone in first place in the City League race and gained the Rebs no worse than a share of the '63 loop title—thus ending a 38 year pennant drouth at the South Side school.

SOUTH MUST now beat or tie Central in the season finale tomorrow evening to take an undisputed championship.

The Bulldogs showed a strong running game plus fine ball handling in their win Friday as both touchdowns came on long possession drives.

The first TD, coming after a scoreless first half, resulted as South took the opening kickoff and marched 76 yards in 17 plays with Mickey Simmons going the final four yards to paydirt.

THE TD DRIVE ate up almost nine minutes of the third period.

In the last period, the Rebs consumed almost seven minutes to drive 74 yards in 13 plays — with Simmons again going over for the six-pointer from the five.

Thirty seconds later, John Morlan put West on the scoreboard as the Cowboy quarterback zig-zagged his way 62 yards for the score. Pete Krull kicked the extra point to make it 12-7.

WEST MISSED a chance to take the lead on the last play of the game when Don VanOrder picked up a blocked South punt on the Cowboy 40 and started to run for the goal line.

Three alert Rebs caught up with Van Order and stopped the threat as the final gun sounded.

West coach Gene Fekete commented after the game: "South deserved the game tonight purely on their playing ability. We just failed to cash in on our breaks."

COMMENTING on tomorrow night's game with Central, South coach Bob Jackson said, "We've got to beat them (Central) to take all the marbles. I don't think our kids will settle for a tie."

South has now gained 2046 yards in eight games with 1815 of them coming on the ground. The opposition has gained 1689 yards, 1173 running.

Elsewhere around the area over the weekend, Rosary racked up its third FCL game of the season with a 24-14 verdict over Dublin while St. Marys fell under powerful West Jefferson, 22-0.

IN OTHER AREA City League games, Marion-Franklin won its second game of the season, 12-0, over North, and East battered Aquinas, 26-6.

MARION-FRANKLIN 12, NORTH 0

The Red Devils snapped a five-game losing streak with a pair of first-half touchdowns.

Erwin Andy and Butch Daniels supplied the offensive punch for M-F, nothing TDs on runs of 44 and 30 yards respectively.

THE RED DEVIL defense stopped Polar Bear scoring attempts cold, allowing North to penetrate no nearer than the M-F 20.

The victory, the Devils' first in loop play this fall, pulled Marion out of the CL cellar and up to a 2-6 mark.

ROSARY 24, DUBLIN 14

The Crusaders took advantage of two Irish fumbles, converting them into touchdowns in their victory over Dublin.

ROSARY scored first, driving 87 yards following a Shamrock bobble, with halfback Don Spurlock doing the honors from the one.

Dublin tied the score but the Crusaders regained the lead before intermission, taking the kickoff after the Shamrock score and marching all the way with Spurlock again counting from the five.

Quarterback Randy Butler powered over from the one in the final frame after Dublin pulled within two, 16-14.

IN WINNING its fourth game in seven this season, Rosary compiled 243 yards gained as compared to Dublin's 192.

WEST JEFF 22, ST. MARYS 0

The Rams held onto upset hopes for one half Friday evening before the Riders broke through for two third-period TDs and the ball game.

Playing without regular quarterback Jim Yates and several other key performers, St Marys trailed only 6-0 at intermission after Dick Rice lassoed a 16-yard pass from Mike Healy.

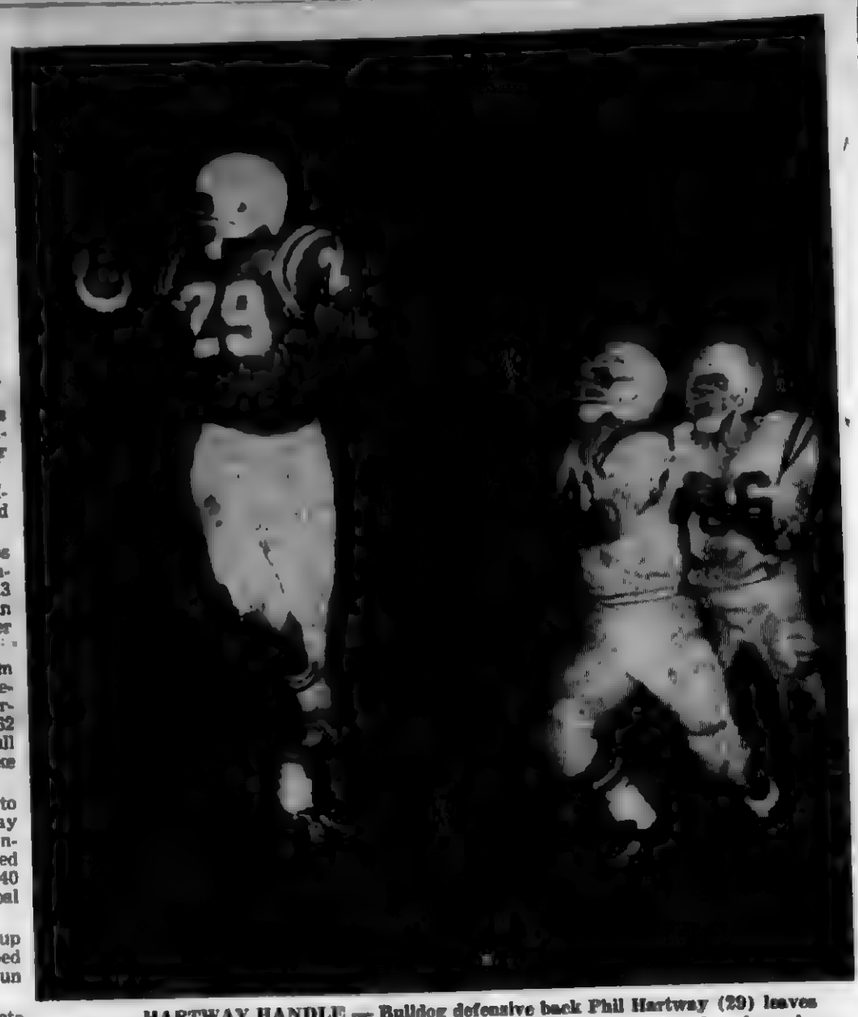
BUT THE RAMS couldn't handle Healy's passing in the second half as the W-J quarterback piled up most of his 142 aerial yards.

The Rider defense stalled each Ram drive until Jim Tinkler's 80-yard TD with a St. Marys punt put the game out of reach late in the third frame.

EAST 26, AQUINAS 6

The Terriers hung onto their own upset hopes for two periods Friday night before falling under the Tigers' title aspirations.

EAST, which outgained the Irish, 335-151, led only 6-0 at intermission but hit for two third-period scores to pull away.



Aquinas' lone touchdown came in the final frame when senior end John Jupinko latched onto a 25-yard scoring pass.

The loss dropped the Irish mark to 2-4-2.

ALL AREA elevens with the exception of Rosary close out their '63 grid schedules with finales this week.

South (8-0) is featured in the "big one" for the City League title as the Bulldogs play host to Central (7-1). Elsewhere, Aquinas (2-4-2) travels to Brookhaven (2-6) while Marion-Franklin (2-6) hosts Linden (4-3-1). All are Friday evening games.

Lone Saturday night contest finds Rosary (4-3) hosting St. Marys (4-4) at Academy in a traditional rivalry game.

A '66 Briefing Session With The Gridiron SS

The loudly-echoing argument on amateur athletics continues to be one that the pre-professional ranks are becoming more and more akin to their "play-for-pay" big brother every year.

Tongues are wagging all the way from the collegiate crowds, right down through the high schools and into the Little League organizations.

ONE OFFICIAL close to the LL program suggested that awards for a successful season on the kiddies' part have gotten so out of hand that it's probably just a matter of time until down-payments on new cars will replace the old-fashioned, out-of-date trophy.

What really concerns us is the growing veil of secrecy that has nonchalantly enveloped pre-game practice sessions.

It undoubtedly started with the pros, has spread to the college fields and someday soon will be a coming attraction at the neighborhood ball yard.

WHEN IT does, the noisy reporter, eager for information, will probably run into this type of situation:

"Good afternoon, gentlemen. Welcome to the Tuesday afternoon practice here at Carnegie High School. I am John Suspicious, the Secret Service chief here at Carnegie.

"I hope you haven't forgotten any of your equipment because the gates are locked and no one can be excused until Coach Winewall blows his whistle at 4:30.

"HOWEVER, that manager over there has pencils, paper and six different kinds of film on hand at the standard price just in case.

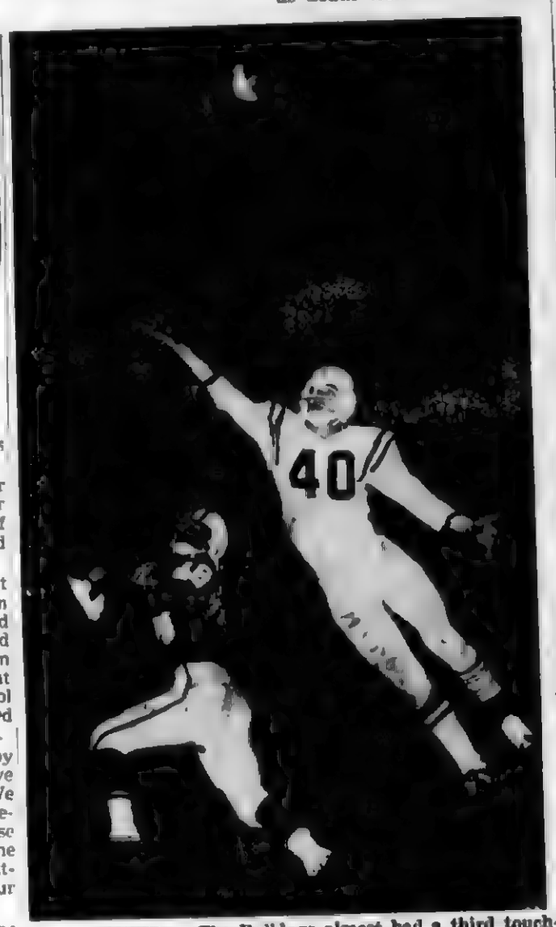
"The form you see in front of you will be filled out in triplicate. Please disregard number four on the second page. It concerns information on our opponent Friday night and the state high school commission has requested that we scratch that one out.

"The first seven there by the door can go in and have their pictures taken now. We are asking that you men return the little letters you use to spell out your name. The Booser Club is getting a little sticky about some of our expenses.

"OH, BY the way, I hope you all have your birth certificates. We don't accept press cards anymore — not since we discovered too many people were forging them.

"I see a few new faces out there. Glad to have you men aboard. I think you'll find we have an outstanding setup here. We've only lost six new plays to the opposition in the last ten seasons.

"Ah—don't write that down It sounds a little boastful.



"JUST IN case anyone of you is thinking about smuggling that thing out about our quarterback's weak knee, forget it.

"Our censors haven't missed a trick in three years and, of course, you're familiar with our little system with the telephones.

"Now, you morning boys will be notified over the loud speaker when and where to pick up your mimeographed 'Coaches' Remarks.' You photographers will pick up your processed film in 302 at the usual time.

"AND PLEASE, you photographers back there — let me caution you not to make any quick moves while you're ALMOST — The Bulldogs almost had a third touchdown against West Friday evening but Cowboy defensive back Jim Vance (40) leaped high to deflect this Reb toss headed for Paul Pate (48). South's win over West left the Bulldogs all alone atop the City League standings.

BEARCAT PLAY

AC Gains Title Share; Faces Pirates Sunday

Maryland AC clinched at least a tie for the Ohio Bearcat football league crown Sunday by walloping the Westgate Bears, 40-0, on the latters' field.

Maryland halfback Larry Davis was a one-man show as he scored all six touchdowns on runs of four, 13, 27, 34, 40 and 42 yards.

DAVIS RACKED up a total of 262 yards — all on the ground. Davis also scored both of the conversions which gave him a total of 40 points and Maryland's final score.

Maryland's defense held the Bears to only four first downs. The setback for Westgate was its fifth straight after an opening game win.

The Westside Pirates kept their title hopes alive by edging the Southside Eagles, 12-6, at Southview.

THE PIRATES struck paydirt early in the first quarter as Sonny Watson grabbed a Tweedy pass and scampered 30 yards for the score.

The Eagles came back in the second stanza to tie the score as Art Jefferson streaked over his left tackle for 30 yards and the TD.

After a scoreless third quarter, the Pirates' Roger Johnson intercepted a pass and ran to the Eagle ten. Two plays later, Kenny Jackson plunged over from the four for the winning tally.

IN OTHER league action, the Milo-Roc Mendel eleven won its third victory of the year, downing the Lockbourne Skyhawks, 58-0.

The win put Milo-Roc in a tie with the Eagles for third place.

Sunday is the final set of league games for the Bearcat loop. At Lockbourne, the Skyhawks host the Eagles at 2:30 p.m., preceded by the Milo-Roc Mendel vs. Westgate Bears game at 1:30.

AT HARLEY Field, Maryland AC will be shooting for a perfect record and the Bearcat crown as they host the Westside Pirates.

Two weeks ago, Maryland downed the Pirates, 6-0, in a real battle. The Pirates must win in order to have a playoff for the crown.

This one promises to be 'the' game of the Bearcat season. Kickoff time is 2:30 p.m.

HEAD-PIN TOURNEY SLATED

Faced with band uniforms that have been taken up and let out until many are threadbare, the Hamilton Band Boosters are making an all-out effort to purchase new uniforms before next year.

The head-pin tournament sponsored by the Boosters Club this Saturday and Sunday and the following weekend, Nov. 9 and 10 at Rainbow Lanes is a major fund raising project towards the Booster goal.

The band members are now selling adult tickets for $1 and tickets for junior bowlers at 50 cents apiece.

Each day of the tournament the competition will begin at noon and continue until 10 p.m. There will be door prizes each day, cash prizes for high scoring adults and trophies for the younger bowlers which are donated by the Rainbow Lanes.

With the motto, "Hit the headpin on the nose and buy the band some brand new clothes." The Boosters Club is determined to make the tournament a successful one, as without new uniforms it will be necessary to cut down the size of the band next year.

In case of a tie, a roll-off will be held. Mrs. Mary Martin who is working with Calvin Borden, Booster president, on the arrangements explained that 120 which is a perfect score has never been rolled.

HARPER, DEVILS PLAN LINDEN DEFENSE

Rick's father, Richard, 1213 Lilly-av, also attended South High and his sister Patty Arndt, 1403 Lockbourne-rd, was a cheerleader a couple years ago.

With her are Harold Miller, PTA president, John Nippert and Michael Lower, Marion-Franklin principal. SOUTH SIDE SUPPORT BRINGS UA VICTORY

Both the residential and business solicitation of the South Side phase of the Franklin County United Appeal campaign resulted in over-subscriptions.

The business solicitation raised $7,234 or 100.4 per cent of quota. The residential campaign hit $1121 or 103.6 per cent.

The residential fund-raising was headed by Mrs. Richard E. Donovan, 297 Markison-av, and the business by Ralph C. Duncan, Swift and Co.

The South Side area returns helped put the overall UA campaign over-the-top at the closing report session. The total reported was $4,002,749 or 100.1 per cent of goal.

This gave UA its second straight victory for the first time in history. The total amount was raised in 18 days—shortest campaign ever.

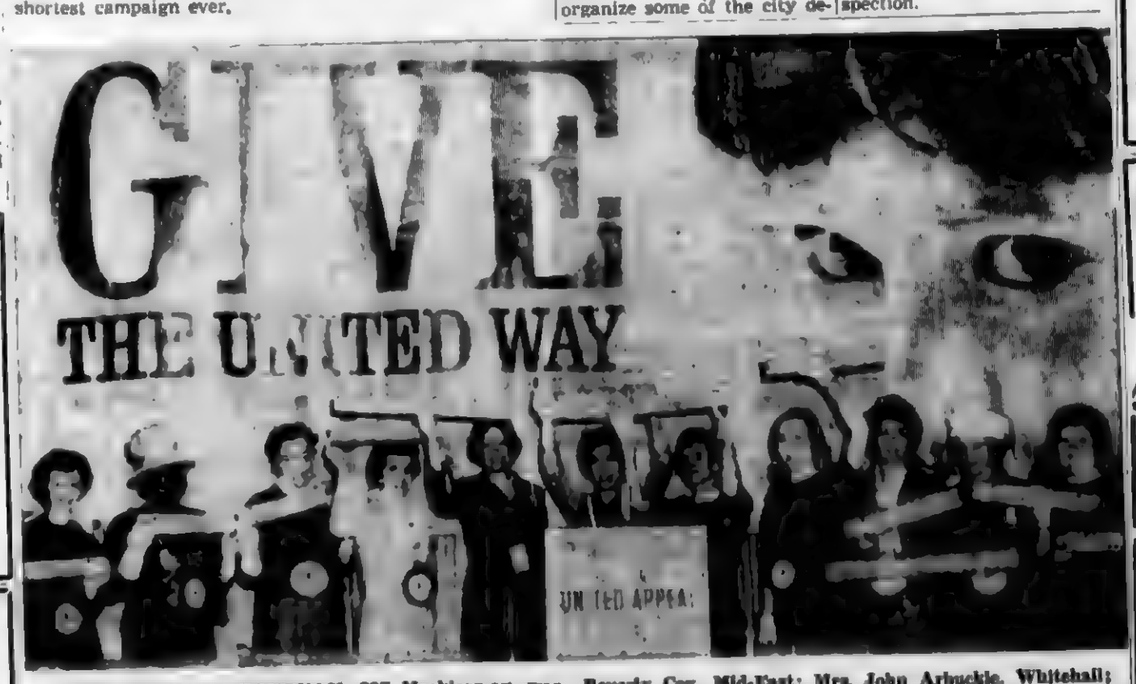
Portman Hits Non-Objective City Council

Columbus Council candidate Maurice D. Portman, Tuesday called for a non-partisan, objective approach to "the multitude of problems now piling up before our municipal government."

The city finance director and administrative assistant to former Mayor Sensenbrenner said that incumbents controlling council have "demonstrated a lack of knowledge of the inner workings of the city government, its needs and those of the community."

Calling for immediate consideration of plans to reorganize some of the city departments through charter amendment, Portman said that "huge sums could be saved and better services rendered through administrative reforms." He suggested more stringent budget controls, performance measurement, changes in purchasing methods and the equalization of responsibilities of the departments of service and public utilities.

"We have had in the past year flagrant abuses of purchasing methods disclosed by Councilman Robert Southwick," Portman said.



Portman also declared that the department of urban renewal should be raised to cabinet status and be given responsibility for housing inspection.

The essays which will be written Friday will be judged immediately, and $100, $50 and $25 as well as seven $10 prizes will be awarded Saturday from the Ohio University Fund, Inc. The Ohio Historical Society will also present special prizes to the first three winners.
